Encores in general were wisely suppressed on the opening night; but the irresistible "go" of this song roused the house to enthusiasm, and Mr. Wright had to comply with the demands for a bis. Hang-Kee is a man of many disguises, and the part should become even funnier than it was on the opening night, when the comedian has settled down to it. Mr. W. H. Berry is broadly droll as Cheoo, a retired merchant blessed with three wives; but he does not appear until the second act, when his command of humour, which has occasionally a cockney flavour, finds scope in an amusing song and some cleverly-written dialogue. The comicalities of Mr. Fred Emney have been very slenderly provided for, and his opportunities might be increased with advantage. Miss Denise Orme, who represents the Chinese maiden See-See, displays the charm of her voice in the song "Snowflake and Rose," and again in the duet "Doves," the success of which is shared by Mr. Maurice Farkoa, who plays the lover in his most taking style. Miss Orme further distinguishes herself by playing a Japanese fiddle obbligato to the song in the first act given by So-Hie, a boy's part, prettily acted by the winsome Miss Gabrielle Ray, who dances with a grace distinctly her own in the second act in a "doll's" song. Miss Amy Augarde has a part eminently fitted to her capabilities in that of the fortune-teller Mai-Yai, her song "Chang-Ho" being one of the most successful numbers of the first act. Miss Adrienne Augarde has but little to do as Lee, but her special number—"Butterflies"—in which pretty property coleoptera float about the Chinese palace, is a decided success. Miss Lily Elsie gives excellent aid as Humming Bird; the wives of Cheoo are presented with no little humour by Miss Lena Maitland, Miss Sybil Grey, and Miss Lilian Hewitson; and Miss Kitty Hanson gives effective aid in the part of Mrs. Hoang. The chief "Pearls beyond Price" are impersonated with considerable charm by Miss Shelly Calton, Miss Doris Dean, Miss Dora Langham, and Miss Mabel Russell.

A PLEA FOR ENGLISH OPERA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I wonder how many people reflect that if the critics had not killed English opera at its inception in 1762 it might have been a flourishing national institution to-day! It is curious that even to this moment the musical critics consistently ignore the claims of English composers and English opera. I venture to say that the production of a new musical comedy would receive longer and more favourable and sympathetic consideration than the production of a grand opera by a British subject.

I may just mention in passing that during my eight years as director of an opera company I have produced four operas by English composers. The last of these, Mr. Nicholas Gatty's Grey-Steel, was played only a couple of weeks ago at the Crystal Palace.

I am a firm believer not only in English opera, but in opera in English, and I am thoroughly convinced that there is a large public for grand opera on these lines. I am only too painfully aware of our innumerable shortcomings when we essay either of these forms of musical art, but then I remember "A child must creep before it walks." If it can creep there is obviously at least a possibility (some would say a distinct probability) that it will one day walk.

At any rate, no great amount of logic is required to enable one to say if it never creeps it will most certainly never walk.

Now, in view of the possibility in question, and because English opera, or opera in English, does most certainly give great pleasure to innumerable people, I am all in favour of encouraging the creeping child, giving it a pat on the back or a help along, or, at the very least, not deliberately putting obstacles in its way.

In England we are very unpatriotic where artists are concerned. If a musician or singer arrives from a foreign country, leaders of the social and artistic world rush to do him honour, while a native-born artist must either change his name or go abroad for recognition.

English opera as a national institution can only come into existence by way of opera in English, and for this reason the composing of an opera is a long and very laborious task, and composers must first see that there is some chance of their work gaining at least a hearing before they can afford to spend two or three years writing an opera.

This is undoubtedly one reason why the English operas which are heard are unworthy of support. Instead of being the outcome of genuine inspiration and an impelled artistic impulse which must find its expression in great music, they are too often either the pastime of a wealthy dilettante or the hobby of an elderly musician filling a high official position, and whose inspiration is most probably deadened by long contact with tradition and the schools.

If English opera were in a flourishing condition, and paid those who followed it as an art, then we would not have to put up with the terrible English librettos that are now so annoying. When a new opera was produced abroad the followers of letters and poetry in England would, if they were assured of a demand, turn their attention to making a literary and beautiful translation, just as at present they make us translations of Maeterlinck, Ibsen, d'Annunzio, and a score of others

Hitherto composers have devoted little or no attention to the libretto of their operas; but I think those days are past, and I look forward to a time when we will have men like Arthur Symons, Stephen Phillips, and John Davidson writing librettos for our great musicians. At any rate, it is this hope which makes us work; it is a hope dear to many of us, and it makes the prevailing conditions not only endurable, but even acceptable.

With regard to the objection urged against the connection of exquisite musical phrases and commonplace, everyday words, may I take the liberty of reminding the public that Shakespeare, and many lesser artists, too, have dealt with the most commonplace incidents of life in language that was not only acceptable to the most fastidious ear, but was not seldom "a thing of beauty and a joy for ever"?

The English language is second to none in its capacity for expressing human thought and emotion in a beautiful and fitting manner. I look forward to the time when it will have become possible to have fine translations made of all the operas in one's répertoire by cultured Englishmen who have artistic instinct and poetic feeling, joined to a command of the language which we are all so proud to call our mother-tongue.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES MANNERS.

Un Ouvrier — M. ANTONIN
Le Petit Raymond — LE PETIT CORNILLIA

Mme. Jane Hading inaugurated the second week of her stay at the Notting Hill-gate house by the production of Maurice Donnay's play, entitled Le Retour de Jérusalem, originally produced at the Paris Gymnase on Dec. 3, 1903. Any work from the pen of such a clever author as M. Donnay invariably excites considerable interest; and though he is not at his best in this play, we understand that its suggestions of racial animosity between Jew and Gentile won for it more than a succès d'estime. According to the popular playwright, a rapprochement between Aryan and Semite is a matter of impossibility, and they therefore should remain apart. This contention roused fierce controversy in Paris at the time of the première of the play, in which Mme. Simone Le Bargy was the Judith, a somewhat unreal personage, scarcely representative of the Hebrew race. A freethinker by conviction, Judith goes over to Rome in order to marry a Marquis. When she visits Jerusalem, the glorious past of her people and their subsequent troubles are supposed to work so much upon her mind that she determines to return to the old creed and devote her life to the welfare of her co-religionists. On the whole, Le Retour de Jérusalem is a rather gloomy, pessimistic play, in which M. Donnay appears to gibe at the phase of love termed the intellectual companionship between man and woman, the sexual distinctions preventing real Platonic love, and therefore wrecking the whole scheme of mental amitié.

Judith, an intellectual, cultivated, but somewhat hysterical Jewess is inspired with a desire to further the advancement and solidarity of the Hebrew race. She changed her religion externally when she married, while still quite a girl, but she is far more ready to change her husband than the real religious belief which is part of her life, and which later on her honeymoon in Jerusalem deepens and strengthens. After a brief but stormy scene, in which Suzanne Aubier discovers by means of a letter in Judith's reticule, that her husband Michel, entertains something more than a mere platonic affection for the beautiful and talented Jewess, she dismisses him, and he goes to join his new love. In a sumptuously furnished flat we find Judith and Michel carrying on a constant intermittent mental warfare, he in vain endeavouring to uphold French traditions and honour. He refuses her friend Lazare his signature to a league of "Progress, irrespective of race, religion, or nationality," and eventually requests another of Judith's Hebrew friends to quit his house, owing to his disparaging remarks concerning the French Army. This is the thin end of the wedge, and, after Suzanne has come to tell him of her intended marriage, and to gain his consent to her taking the children with her, Judith also claims her liberty, and Michel is left alone to ponder on the utter failure of his cherished schemes for intellectual regeneration. Act III. ends with Judith working herself up into a frenzy, which ends in her swooning. The arrival of Lazare and the confession of her love for him is omitted in the present version.

Mme. Hading gives a magnificent performance as Henriette, alias Judith, and paints in glowing colours the almost frenzied ambitions and aspirations of the beautiful Jewess. Her restless, feverish energy of mind, mingled with a certain amount of animal passion, is portrayed with rare grace, charm, and feeling. It is hard to condemn so seductive a creature, though really there is little to admire in the selfish, scheming nature except her fervent racial devotion. M. Rouyer has the great man's part of the play as Michel Aubier, a self-centred seeker after intellectual advancement who learns too late that one's own individuality cannot be successfully cultivated at the expense of suffering in others. He acts with great dramatic power and ability, and earns a sympathetic tear for Michel, in spite of the weak, contemptible nature of the man. Mme. Feriel is very sweet and gentle as the deeply-wronged wife, Suzanne Aubier; Mme. Florian is full of joie de vivre as Andrée Daincourt, and we cannot for the world help liking this extremely "modern" but exceedingly charming and typical Parisienne. M. Arnaud has a very small part as Lazare Hændelssohn, which he plays to perfection; and Mme. Alcime-Leblanc, Mme. Sauer, M. M. Lenoir (very amusing as Aubier, père), Peyriere, Garat, &c., successfully fill in tiny silhouettes of character.

On Wednesday, June 20, the Drama, entitled "SAPHO."

On Wednesday Mme. Hading gave a fine performance of "Sapho" in Alphonse Daudet's well-known play. Miss Olga Nethersole has already made this piece well known to English and American audiences. Mme. Hading's wonderful witchery as the fascinating Fanny Legrand, her gentleness and grace, mingled with almost animal fury, quite electrified the audience, and her paroxysm of passion at parting with her lover, Jean Gaussin, elicited repeated recalls. Hers is a wonderful exposition of a complex character. M. Rouyer gave a fine performance as Jean Gaussin, his stormy tumultuous passion, his intense jealousy and chagrin at finding how he has been duped, were admirably portrayed. M. Arnaud gave a very effective and touching embodiment of Déchelette; Mlle. C. Fonteney was very sweet as the all too loving Alice Doré; Mme. Florian was excellent as Francine; Mme. Feriel delightful as Divonne; and Mme. Alcime-Leblanc was capital as the cheery Mme. Hettéma. Mlle. Sauer was well in the picture as Iréne Vitalis; M. Bour was a most amusing uncle Césaire; and the other minor rôles were cleverly sustained.

"HER NAMELESS CHILD," a drama in four acts, by Madge Duckworth and Ridgewood Barrie, was produced for copyright purposes at the Theatre Royal, Ton-y-Pandy, on Monday afternoon.

THE King has graciously accepted a copy of Mr. Sterling Mackinlay's recently-published book, "Antoinette Sterling and Other Celebrities."

AT a special sitting of the Southampton County Court on the 15th inst., before His Honour Judge Gye, William Dunn, a local musician and licensed victualler, sued Messrs. Frederick Mouillot and Walter de Frece, proprietors of the Hippodrome, Southampton, to recover the sum of £4 2s. 6d. for one week's wages as a musician and two weeks' wages in lieu of notice. His honour found for plaintiff, with costs. Notice of appeal was given, and leave granted.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"LA MIOCHE DORÉE,"

Drama, in Five Acts,

by MM. Alphonse Lemonnier and Louis Péricaud,

Produced at the Ambigu, on June 14.

Marie Rousset .....MLLE. BERTILE LEBLANC
Madeleine Rousset .....MME. RENÉE LEMERCIER
Berthe de Rosay .....MLLE. MAGDA
Comtesse de Saint-Simond..MME. LOUISE DAUVILLE
Toussaint Rousset .....M. HENRY KRAUSS
Robin père .....M. LOUIS PERICAUD
Charles de Saint-Simond .....M. ROGER
Jean Robin .....M. PRADELY
Le Docteur Andrieux ....M. CHARLES BERTEAUX

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, June 21.—It is a long time since the ladies enjoyed such a good old-fashioned cry like they did at La Mioche Dorée, the new drama brought out at the Ambigu. No tremolo greeted the appearance of the villain, but otherwise, as far as the sentiment was concerned, we might have imagined ourselves assisting at a play written twenty years ago. The plot is as follows: Touissaint Rousset and his wife Madeleine are true Normandy peasants, who, through hard work, have amassed some thirty thousand pounds. They have sent their daughter Marie to a first-class college, where she makes the acquaintance of Berthe de Rosay and of the latter's cousin, Charles de Saint-Simond. When Marie returns home she turns her back on her rustic lover because she has lost her heart to the aristocratic Charles, who, overwhelmed with debts, is glad to ask for the hand of the rich peasants' daughter. The noble Charles not only sells himself for thirty thousand pounds, but he is faithless to Berthe de Rosay, to whom he was engaged. When Marie's child grows up Berthe is engaged as governess. Charles at once starts making violent love to Berthe, and one day Rousset, Marie's father, comes in unexpectedly when his son-in-law is taking the governess in his arms. He tells his daughter what he has seen, but to his surprise and indignation Marie, for her child's sake, refuses to leave her husband. The position becomes awkward, but the authors solve the difficulty in the usual banal way. Charles de Saint-Simond, having lost heavily at cards, blows out his silly brains; Marie becomes reconciled to her father, and we foresee that ere long she will marry the discarded Jean Robin, who, having enlisted, has been raised to the rank of lieutenant. The piece, well written, and containing many bright scenes, is a reminiscence of several well-known plays. It was creditably interpreted. M. Péricaud—one of the authors—supplied a good sketch of the sly peasant Robin; M. Roger imparted the necessary colour to the rôle of Charles de Saint-Simond; Mlle. Bertile Leblanc was a touching Marie; and Mme. Louise Dauville impersonated the old Countess de Saint-Simond with great tact.

FOR some unknown reason the Press was not invited to the performance of Francillon and La Visite de Noces, given at the Comédie Française in honour of Dumas fils. All I know is that the house was "sold out," which speaks well for Dumas and for the theatre.

BEFORE leaving for London Mme. Réjane has signed the engagement of M. Draquin, the excellent actor from the Vaudeville. M. Draquin made a hit in Le Péril Jaune and in La Belle Madame Héber, produced at the last-named house.

"LE CHEVALIER D'EON is the title of a new opera by M. Henri Cain, for which M. Rodolphe Berger has written the music. The story is taken from a work by Armand Silvestre.

M. COQUELIN aîné will make his reappearance at the Gaîté in Nos bons Villageois, M. Sardou having sanctioned its production at that house. M. Coquelin will interpret the rôle of Floupin, created by Arnal.

MLLE. MAIA, the clever young actress from the Theatre du Parc in Brussels, who has been repeatedly mentioned in these columns, has just been engaged by M. Franck. Mlle. Maia will make her début at the Gymnase in a new piece by M. Donnay.

M. ALBERT DARMONT, manager of the Champigny open-air theatre, announces the production of Xerxès Vaincu, by M. Hector Fleischmann. The latter, our youngest playwright—for he is only twenty-three—has already given us L'Affaire Capet, and his last work, Les Larmes du Masque, will be brought out at the Théâtre Molière next season. M. Damont has engaged for the principal rôle M. de Max, who for the last twelve months has kept away from the boards. The rôle of the blind queen will be taken by Mme. Laure Mouret, who played the leading part in Dyonisos, recently given at the Théâtre de l'Œuvre. The rehearsals of M. Fleischmann's work are in full swing.

THERE are several new engagements at the Théâtre de l'Athénée, among which that of Mlle. Juliette Garcia, who replaced Mlle. Marville in La Chaste Suzanne.

WE will not have the pleasure of applauding Miss Olga Nethersole at the Vaudeville. The English company was to have made its appearance there next month, but at the last moment difficulties arose, and Miss Nethersole's plans had to be abandoned. This is all the more to be regretted as the difficulties in question could have been easily overcome. The responsibility rests with a certain gentleman here, whose attitude in the matter has been reprehensible.

THE public in our outlying districts have not lost their taste for operette. Thus, at the Théâtre de Montrouge, Lecocq's La Petite Mariée is drawing well, and the work, despite the heat, will remain on the bill certainly until the end of the month.

GUILDHALL DRAMATIC STUDENTS.

The pupils of Miss Kate Rorke gave an excellent performance of W. S. Gilbert's Broken Hearts and Sydney Grundy's comedy Man Proposes in the theatre of the Institution before a very large audience on Thursday afternoon. In Gilbert's fairy play, Broken Hearts, Mr. Joseph St. Aubyn and Miss Annie Walden took chief honours, though all the performers showed the care and skill bestowed on their training by their eminent teacher, Miss Kate Rorke. Mr. Joseph St. Aubyn as the deformed Mousta greatly distinguished himself, and in his dramatic scene with the Lady Hilda proved that he has all the instincts of a true actor, both in his gestures and the delivery of his lines, being most ably seconded by Miss Annie Walden, who was a very efficient Lady Hilda. Mr. George Cooke also rendered good service in the character of Prince Florian, although at times his elocution was slightly unequal. The other characters of the Lady Vavir, Lady Melusine, and Lady Amanthis were well enacted by Miss Christobel Daniel, Miss Daisy Browne, and Miss Dorothy Roberts. The make-up of the various performers was excellent, the costumes being kindly lent for this performance by Mrs. Martin Harvey, and the one picturesque scene of the Island of Broken Hearts did the greatest credit to the Guildhall stage management. At the close all the principals and Miss Kate Rorke were called to the front and warmly applauded. Mr. Grundy's one-act comedy Man Proposes was acted with great spirit, Mr. Arthur Minton playing Captain Huntingdon in a most lively and amusing manner and Miss Olga Kent made a charming Belle Huntingdon, while we must not forget to praise Miss Winifred Barnett, who appeared as the pert maid Dinah. A small but effective orchestra, consisting of piano and strings, rendered good service in the following pieces:—March, "Avec Aplomb"; Michiels' "Hungarian Czardas"; and Sousa's "Mahattan Beach"; cleverly conducted by Mr. H. Phillipe Thomas. The stage furniture of the scene of Col. Campbell's house was kindly lent by Messrs. Story and Triggs.

ACTRESS'S CLAIM FOR SALARY.

At Bloomsbury County Court on Thursday his Honour Judge Bacon heard an action brought by Miss Italia Conti against Mrs. Margaret C. Scott, the widow of the late Mr. Clement Scott, of Woburn-square, W.C. The action was to recover the sum of £15 as damages, being for three weeks' salary on a month's engagement to play in the defendant's Diamond Express company.

Mr. Rowsell, plaintiff's counsel, said his client had acted under the management of Mr. Forbes Robertson, Mr. George Alexander, and in two plays by Mr. Cecil Raleigh. On Feb. 13 she received a telegram from Mr. Raleigh, author of the sketch, The Diamond Express, and had an interview with him. What took place at that was next day repeated to Mrs. Clement Scott. There was some question about plaintiff's terms, and it was agreed that she was to have £5 per week, a sum much lower than her ordinary salary, as she had never acted in a music hall before. There was a month's engagement, which was to comprise a week at the Canterbury Music Hall, a fortnight at the Metropolitan, and a week at Ealing. There was a rehearsal in the presence of Mrs. Clement Scott and Mr. Raleigh, and afterwards the plaintiff performed at the Canterbury. After four nights plaintiff was handed a week's salary, and upon going to the hall the following night she was told that she was no longer required, as Mrs. Clement Scott intended to resume taking the part. She now sued for the remaining three weeks of the month's engagement.

In answer to Mr. Robinson, plaintiff said that she had never been on a music hall stage before.

His Honour: What is your line, tragic or comic?

Plaintiff: I am a tragedienne and a comedienne.

His Honour: Both sorts.

In reply to Mr. Robinson, she said that there was no complaint as to the way she played her part. She did it very well, considering it was a first performance.

Mr. Robinson: Isn't it a fact that the villain locks the railway points with a chain and the audience think the train is rushing to certain destruction, and that if you don't speak your lines, "Locked on the down line, locked to certain death," the biograph man does not know when to turn the train on? Did the man also complain that you fired the revolver in the air, instead of on the ground?

Judge Bacon: Dear me! Was there a revolver in it as well as a railway train?

Plaintiff said she was holding the revolver up, and it went off by accident.

Mr. Robinson said that the plaintiff had to stoop down and fire four shots.

Judge Bacon: Whatever for?

Mr. Robinson: The pistol shots were to break the chain which the villain had locked around the railway points.

Mrs. Clement Scott, the defendant, said the plaintiff was engaged for one week, owing to witness's indisposition. She further stated that, although she had not recovered, she had to take the part on the Friday night, as Mr. Adney Payne had threatened to cut the sketch out of the bill.

Mr. Robinson: So you were forced to step into the breach and thus save the situation?

His Honour: Oh, nobody is forced to step into breach; it is an act of heroism.

Several witnesses were called on behalf of the defence, and in the end the Judge came to the conclusion that the plaintiff had failed to establish that her engagement had been for four weeks, and judgment was entered for the defendant.

"THE RANCHMAN'S ROMANCE."

A New Romantic Play, in Three Acts, by Constance Bromley, produced for the first time on any stage at the Queen's Theatre, Leeds, On Wednesday, June 20.

Fred Chesterton .....MR. HARVEY BRABAN
Harry Mason .....MR. CONRAD HEYWOOD
Binks .....MR. EDWIN C. BUFFUM
Jim .....MR. TOM ARMITAGE
Elsie Gordon .....MISS CECILIA GILMORE
Eleanor .....MISS CONSTANCE BROMLEY

The Ranchman's Romance is—as its title suggests—an episode occurring in the Far West, and its authoress, Miss Constance Bromley, a young Leeds actress of promise, has been fortunate in obtaining her local colour and detail at first hand, for several members of her family are in Canada engaged in farming and prospecting. The story opens with Fred Chesterton leaving his native town on the miscarriage of a love affair with a young widow, Mrs. Partington, and taking up ranching under the assumed name of Graeme. Now, this same ranch was formerly in the possession of Mrs. Partington's deceased husband, and that lady, thinking it is part of her patrimony, visits the place, and so again meets Chesterton, who does not acquaint her with the fact that he is the proprietor until a reconciliation has been effected. On realising the true state of affairs Mrs. Partington has a stormy interview with Chesterton, the outcome of which is her instant departure; but on the return journey she learns that a prairie fire has placed the occupants of the ranch in great peril, and retraces her steps, to find her lover badly burned. Then follow upbraidings, tears, a final reconciliation, and a happy ending.

Mr. Harvey Braban realised the manly and verile character of Fred Chesterton, or Graeme, in powerful style; his acting in the strong third act being a very masterful and convincing effort. Miss Constance Bromley gave a warmly-appreciated portrayal of Mrs. Partington, her emotional acting being of a high order of excellence. Mr. Edwin C. Buffum was decidedly good as the Yank Binks, in spite of somewhat restricted opportunities. Mr. Conrad Heywood plays Graeme's chum, Curley, and evidently has a part to his liking. He made a good impression. The humour of the piece was sustained in somewhat extravagant manner by Mr. Tom Armitage as the servant Jim. Miss Cecilia Gilmore played the part of Elsie Gordon in an eminently successful style. Incidental music has been specially composed for the piece by Mr. Carl Sherrington.

M. COQUELIN, the celebrated French comedian, and his company appeared at the Palace Theatre, Belfast, on Tuesday with great success in Cyrano De Bergerac. M. Coquelin's success in the title-rôle was in every respect complete. He was assisted by a remarkably fine company, honours being especially due to Mlle. Suzanne Devoyod as Roxane.

THE Besses o' th' Barn visited Norwich on Monday last, and gave two performances in Chapel Field Gardens, much to the appreciation of immense audiences. At the conclusion of the evening's performance Messrs. J. Pain and Son exhibited some very fine fireworks.

A FUND is being raised for the publication of Mr. W. Y. Hurlstone's greatly admired pianoforte quartett as a memorial to the late composer. The publication of this work, besides placing it within reach of those who are interested in chamber music, would be a material help to those whom he has left behind. Sir Hubert Parry has expressed his approval of the scheme, and Mr. Percy V. Sharman, of Limpsfield, Surrey, will receive subscriptions.

MRS. HAMILTON EARLE (Mme. Louise Dale), who has been so much missed for some time from the concert platform, gave birth to a son at her residence in Sloane-street on Tuesday, and it is satisfactory to learn that both mother and child are doing well.

"PUT IT IN BLACK AND WHITE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

DEAR SIR,—The Era having, ever since I can remember (and that dates from the year 1873) been the mouthpiece of the theatrical profession, I shall feel obliged if you will kindly give publicity to this letter.

If the verdict obtained against the Vaudeville Theatre to-day is to become a precedent for theatrical custom, viz.:—

That all engagements are for the run of the play unless there is a written contract to the contrary, then what I have always understood to be theatrical custom, viz.:—

That all engagements entered into, unless otherwise specified, are subject to a fortnight's notice on either side must be considered abolished, and it is most important that all managers and artists should become acquainted with this new ruling.

Artists of ability taking an engagement without a contract will find themselves very much handicapped in their career by being bound to remain in a small part, when, had the old ruling existed, after a reasonable run any better offer could have been accepted. And a manager would also find himself in a very awkward position by having to retain for the run of the piece some individual who at rehearsals might have seemed suited to a part, but whose subsequent performance turned out to be most detrimental to the play. Therefore, in the interests of both parties, it is most urgent for you to bring before the profession the fact that no agreements should be entered into except in writing, and thus, once and for all, put an end to this interminable question of what is the custom of the profession.

Although there are some extremely clever managers now in existence, there have in the past been equally clever ones, and it is not to be presumed that there was not an object in the old unwritten law that both parties could terminate an unsuitable engagement by giving a fortnight's notice, unless both parties concerned were so perfectly assured that they would meet with each other's approval that they were justified, prior to opening, in entering into a contract fixing the engagement for the run of the piece.

There can be no doubt that the old ruling is best. It has been proved for many years that if there is any doubt as to the capacity of an artist, or any hesitation on the part of an artist as to whether they desire to remain for any long time under one management, it is undoubtedly far better for such engagements to be terminable by a fortnight's notice on either side.

In asking you to give publicity to this letter, I do so with the knowledge that I have had to deal with thousands of contracts during the thirty-three years I have been in this business. I am perfectly aware that in the earlier years many engagements were for stock seasons.

I am, Sir, Yours truly,
HERBERT BLACKMORE,
Dramatic Agent.

[P.S.—The above interesting letter should afford material for discussion, and letters from managers and the theatrical profession are invited.—ED. The Era.]

JAMES NELSON, LTD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA

SIR,—May I beg the favour of your inserting in your next issue a few lines of personal explanation with regard to my connection with the above company, which has lately closed at the Standard Theatre, Johannesburg?

A syndicate was formed in Johannesburg for the purpose of running theatrical companies in South Africa, of which Mr. Sass and myself were appointed joint managers; but it being considered beneficial from a business point of view, my name was to be used alone—but solely and only as the style and title of the company and with no other liability whatever.

During my absence in South America the character of the initial entertainment was decided, and my co-manager was instructed to proceed to New York to purchase plays and secure a company.

On my return later to South Africa I was informed of this arrangement, and was directed to proceed to England on other matters connected with the syndicate's business.

After a stay here of some weeks I returned to Johannesburg to open the theatre on March 9 with the American company engaged in New York. I found that during my absence, and without my consent or even consultation with me, the syndicate had been turned into a limited liability company under the above title.

For various reasons the plays selected and the company engaged utterly failed to attract, and by a resolution of the board of directors I was instructed to return to England and send out a more popular class of entertainment; since which date—March—with the exception of two cables and one letter, I have been kept in total ignorance of the state of affairs in South Africa.

The news from an outside source of the closing of the theatre was a great surprise to me, and on consultation with my co-manager I found that he had made, prior to the company leaving America, special provision, under a substantial guarantee, for the return of all the artists to their homes.

In the face of this statement the article in a contemporary as to the stranded condition of the artists in Johannesburg is absolutely untrue, it being within my certain knowledge that the necessary funds have long since been cabled to Africa for their return.

The salaries, amounting to £430 per week, have, I am advised, been paid up to the closing of the theatre—May 26—so that the artists are in a better position than myself, for in addition to my having received no salary since April 1, I have been largely out of pocket for monies paid by me on behalf of the company.

Under these circumstances I feel it is unfair to suggest, as has been done in some quarters, that I am responsible for any trouble which may have arisen.—I am, Sir, yours truly,

JAMES NELSON.

THE GUILBERT-CHEVALIER RECITAL.

A new series of matinées, which has grown out of the success of the former ones, was begun at the Duke of York's on Tuesday, when a programme mainly fresh in its constitution was presented. Mme. Yvette Guilbert's contributions were divided into four groups, of which "Pompadour" and "Crinoline" formed two. The first was a tragic piece of grotesquerie entitled "La Mort du Mari," which held the audience entranced. The favourite "Glu," which reappeared in the fourth suite, with which was also associated a modern ballad of a French workman, entitled "Ma Tête," the grimly dramatic meaning of which was brought out with wonderful effect. In "Ma Grandmère" Mme. Guilbert is a venerable old woman, who dilates slyly and with exquisite finish on the gaieties of her girlhood. Three little English songs served as a contrast, and succeeded in quite captivating the audience. An irresistibly touching effect was exercised by Mr. Albert Chevalier in his pathetic portrait of "The Workhouse Man," in which he appears as a guest of the guardians, who has a mild lament concerning the separation of aged couples who are forced to fall back upon the rates. "Hemmer," "What's the good of anyfink?" and "Wot fur do 'e love Oi?" were also superb examples of the comedian's inimitable art, and for "The Future Mrs. Hawkins" a welcome hearty and sincere was reserved.

"STOCK" IN THE TWENTIES.

I first met my new manager, says James R. Anderson, in his "Life," at a little town called Irvine, if I rightly remember. I found him at his lodgings, in a dirty public-house, seated at a common deal table, with some books and papers, pen and ink, a gill of whisky, and a broken wine-glass before him. I introduced myself to the great leader of the Thespian band. He rose from his throne courteously, and, I might add, majestically, bowed like a gentleman, shook me by the hand, and gave me a hearty welcome. He pointed with his finger, in a fine tragic manner, to a chair without a bottom on the other side of the table, and begged I would be seated. When I had accomplished this somewhat difficult feat by edging myself on to it cornerwise, he proceeded to replenish the cracked glass, and begged I would do him the honour to pledge him in a flowing goblet to our future friendship and success.

I politely declined the proffered bowl, as I was unaccustomed to partake of spirits so early in the day, adding that such nectar could only be drained with impunity by Jupiter.

He smiled blandly at my grandiloquence, and said, "Young gentleman, I applaud your prudence and discretion, and if you only adhere to your virtuous resolution, I have no fear of your future success. Ah! my young friend," said he, as he raised the little glass to his capacious maw, "I never saw an actor with a gill of whisky before him without mentally exclaiming, in the words of the immortal bard, 'Oh! the drink, Hamlet, the drink!' Ah! the number of good actors and fine fellows I have seen succumb to the foul fiend whisky. Did I but name them, 'twould fright the isle from its propriety.' However, there is no time to moralise; we must soon meet at rehearsal. So again I bid you welcome.

As I watched him while writing out the cast for Douglas (it was agreed I was to open in Young Norval in a night or two), I thought his friends never could have imagined for him a name of such appropriateness as they had bestowed, namely, Greasy Sam Johnstone.

He was a big, burly man, and very broad-shouldered, with a large head and most unmeaning features, a wide bladder-of-lard face, fearfully pitted with the small-pox, and he had a husky, grating voice, compounded of fog and whisky. He played the King in Hamlet, Henry VI., and similar parts

The whisky, together with the excitement of having obtained a young recruit, caused him to stream at every pore, and here he sat like a fine Gruyère cheese cut in halves, and running rich at every hole. Oh! he was an unctuous morsel, was Manager Greasy Sam.

Having finished his writing and his whisky, he accompanied me to the theatre, and I was introduced to the company. Good heavens! Never shall I forget the shock I then received. Of course I was prepared to witness something very different to the company of the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh; but the contrast here absolutely took away my breath, and my beating heart fell plump into my half-boots.

The "Temple of the Drama," as they facetiously called it, was literally an old barn, with a few school benches for boxes, pit, and gallery, or front and back seats. A scanty bit of proscenium representing red drapery with a framework behind it, six wings with flaps to serve for interiors and woods, half-a-dozen scenes on rollers, the ropes attached to big tenpenny nails driven into the wall, with two or three ragged "sky-borders" fluttering above, made the theatre.

Each wing had three tin sconces to hold as many candles, and the "float," or footlights, was made up of ten black bottles, with the remains of last night's tallow guttered down their sides There was a fixed board on the auditorium side to shield the eyes of the audience from the glare of the light, and another on the stage side, raised by a string, to make a dark scene. As I contemplated all these arrangements my surprise and horror were complete.

After some little time, however, my disgust wore off, as I listened to the merry jests, laughter, and cackle of these badly-fledged barn-door fowls. The company consisted of about six men and four women, a prompter and a property-man, who both acted. There was a grand orchestra of three musicians, placed on the O.P. (left-hand) of the proscenium.

The first morning I went into the "Temple of the Drama" they were rehearsing Macbeth, in which every one, save the leading man and woman, took two or even three parts. All Locke's music was sung, and not badly either. Greasy Sam doubled Duncan and Hecate, and something else. Besides "doubling," everybody was expected to put on a cloak and assist in the choruses. I offered no excuse, as no one knew me, and it could not spoil my first appearance. The "leading man," however, felt his amour propre considerably hurt. He had never heard, he said, of Kean or Kemble being asked to do anything so degrading. Greasy Sam was peremptory, however, and insisted that he should do as the others did, observing at the same time that he above all the rest ought to recognise the value of discipline.

I learned soon afterwards that our Macbeth had been a sailor in his youth, master of a small fishing-smack, who had exchanged the mariner's boots for the player's buskins, and was always called captain by the rest of the company. He was a terribly inflated party, short and thick, with bandy legs, a large face, small eyes, a curly head of red hair, and a voice like a speaking-trumpet. When they came to the cauldron scene I wondered how they would get on without a "trap" for the apparitions. But, Lord bless you! they were equal to every occasion. The painted set-piece for the cauldron was sufficiently high to hide anyone behind it; there lay the property-man with three little canvas frames, painted to represent the armed head, the bloody apparition, and the crowned child. At the proper cue he raised those pictures out of the cauldron, and at three different wings three different voices gave the three different speeches. The effect was really telling in a dark scene, and surprised as well as amused me greatly.

Lady Macbeth was, to my mind, the best artist in the troupe. She was a long way past her meridian, tall and gaunt, but very lady-like, and read her part well, in a full, clear voice. The great drawback to her success was the misfortune of having only one eye, that is, only one natural eye; the other was glass, and by no means good at that.

The play that night was a great success, so the actors said, and was repeated two nights more to fair houses, which gave me a better chance of having rehearsals for Douglas, besides bringing me a few shillings for my three nights' shares.

It was the manager's invariable rule to count the nightly receipts in presence of the entire company. The expenses were first taken out of the cash, such as hire of room, musicians, candles, &c. What remained (if anything) was divided into equal shares, and handed to each individual. The manager, of course, took the lion's share—that is, he had a share for his management, a share for his acting, a share for the company's wardrobe, a share for his scenery, a share for his play-books and music, a share for his wife (who took money at the door, and had a reputation of being rather clever at it), and a share for his daughter as the "walking lady" of the company. In this fashion the Greasy One rolled up for his own use seven shares of the receipts.

On my first appearance as Young Norval I made a considerable impression, was received with much applause, and soon became a favourite both with town and company, receiving from the latter the flattering sobriquet of "Young Roscius the Second."

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

IT is a pleasure to be able to announce that the directors of the Alhambra Theatre, Leicester-square, have decided to increase the rate of pay for the night men employed in the stage department from 2s. to 2s. 6d. per performance. The increase dates from Monday of this week. It is, unfortunately, too true that for many years no general increase of pay has been secured by the working staff, who, with other sections of the community, have to bear their proportionate share in the general increase in the cost of living. On the other hand, a decrease of pay has been imposed in several suburban theatres and halls, where the pay has, in few cases, been equal to the West End rate. In these circumstances, the directors of the Alhambra deserve great credit for an act of justice and consideration to a hard-working body of men, and it is to be hoped that such an example will find favour in other quarters.

THERE is trouble between the management of the Grand Theatre, Islington, and the general staff branch of the National Association of Theatrical Employees, owing to the management of that house having "locked out" the members—practically the whole of the working staff—of that branch. The matter has been the subject of discussion in the local Press, and the Islington Trade and Labour Council have issued handbills and provided boardmen in support of the employees' case.

AT the meeting of the General Staff Branch Committee on Wednesday evening it was reported that the absence of the president, Mr. C. Thorogood, was due to the lamentable death of his wife, on the morning of that day. The following resolution was unanimously passed by the committee:—"Resolved, that this committee convey to their honoured and esteemed president, Mr. C. Thorogood, their deep regret at the great loss he has sustained by the death of his wife, and beg to assure him of their most sincere sympathy with him in his bereavement." It was also decided to send a wreath on behalf of the members, and that the Society should be represented at the funeral by the committee.

AT the same meeting several applications for sick pay were granted, and two applications for grants from the Benevolent Fund, one applicant being granted 5s. per week for a month and another 10s. per week for a month.

A MEETING of the Theatrical Carpenters' Branch N.A.T.E. will be held on Sunday evening in the Salisbury Hotel, St. Martin's-lane, W.C., at 8.30. Members are urged to be present.

ON the occasion of her benefit performance Miss Ellen Terry presented W. W. Simmond, call-boy at the Court Theatre, with a silver watch and chain inscribed with her autograph.

THIS week's programme of the Victoria Theatre, Broughton, shows that the name of Mr. James W. Haworth, managing-director and licensee, has dropped out of the management of the theatre, leaving Mr. J. Fred Watson in sole charge. Since Mr. Watson came to the theatre several improvements have been made in the arrangements for the comfort of the patrons.

THE full rehearsal for the Handel Festival takes place at the Crystal Palace to-day, the festival itself being fixed for Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday next. The Messiah will be given on Tuesday, the selections, which include the most popular numbers from Israel in Egypt, on Thursday, and Judas Maccabæus—which has not been heard in its entirety for many years—on Saturday. The list of soloists is exceptionally strong. The London Symphony Orchestra will form the nucleus of the band, and Dr. Cowen will conduct.

THE question of costume and ladies' hats came up again at the last rehearsal of the Handel Festival Choir on Monday night at Exeter Hall, when Dr. Cowen announced, amid much laughter, that gentlemen were not to wear sashes. After many sleepless nights and numerous board meetings, he added, it had been definitely decided that ladies might wear hats or not, just as they pleased. Among the latest suggestions was one that the ladies should appear in mantillas. He was told by one who knew that mantillas were quite as beautiful and some of them quite as expensive as hats. Besides, it would be a compliment to the Queen of Spain, who, it was reported, had taken a great fancy to the mantilla.

"ENTERTAINING THE DOWAGER," a comedy in one act, by G. Colmore, was produced for copyright purposes at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, on the 13th inst.

AN application for an unrestricted licence for the Opera House, Buxton, made at the local Town Hall on Saturday, met with opposition. It was eventually decided to grant the licence on the condition that no intoxicating liquors should be sold or consumed in the theatre except in the two saloons, and between the time of the commencement of the performance and the ending thereof, or 11 o'clock, whichever time is the earlier. Furthermore, no female is to be at any time allowed to serve in either of the above-mentioned two saloons, and actors and actresses and the theatre staff are not to be served at any time in either of the saloons. For every breach of the above rules the manager is to forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding £5.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual (1s.) is, of course, issued by our premier theatrical journal, which, under the literary supervision of Mr. T. P. O'Connor, has recently improved an already strong position. The Annual is better than ever, and includes, besides details of all plays produced in London, the provinces, Paris, and Berlin, lists of all theatres and music halls in the United Kingdom, &c., many stories and sketches by and portraits of actors and actresses. It is a remarkable shillingsworth; useful and interesting to all playgoers and members of the profession alike.—Sunday Sun, Jan. 21, '06.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

Mr. EDWARD LAURI and COMPANY arrive home per R.M.S. China July 2, after an enormously successful tour of Australia and New Zealand. Mr. Lauri is empowered to purchase pieces, and engage Artists and Novelties in all branches of the profession for a six or twelve months' tour of the Colonies.
The Sydney Referee, April 11, 1906, says:—Mr. Stephenson's company is one of the best, if not the best, that has ever toured this colony. Never before have we had five capable comedians, all expert dancers, in one company, while vocally there are no less than ten cultured singers.
The above company was organised and the pieces produced by Mr. Lauri in England and Australia, originally for a six months' tour, and on May 28, 1906, they concluded a two years' engagement.
Notice.—To authors, composers, artists, and others.—Mr. Edward Lauri begs to inform all whom it may concern that he terminated his engagement with Mr. George Stephenson, of Australia and New Zealand, on May 27, 1906. Address pending arrival, Care of "The Era" Office.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, JUNE 23, 1906.

THE STATUS OF THE MANAGER.

Turning over the other day the leaves of an old novel of EDMUND YATES'S, we came upon these words: "His business instincts made him turn to a file of THE ERA on the table." We found that "he" was Mr. WUFF, the manager of the "splendid Theatre Royal, Hatton Garden." This Mr. WUFF, it appears, was originally a sheriff's officer, but, coming into a sum of money on the death of a distant relative, he forsook the necessary, but hardly popular, calling of a sheriff's officer, took the Theatre Royal, Hatton Garden, and opened it "with a revival of the legitimate drama in general and of Shakespearean plays in particular." His leading actor was BUNCLE, a "heavy, ignorant, ill-educated" man, who had played fourth-rate parts in the "palmy" days of the drama, and who now, faute de mieux, found himself pitchforked into the leading characters. SHAKESPEARE, as interpreted by BUNCLE, Mrs. BUNCLE, and a certain STAMPEDE, "whom BUNCLE always took about with him to play his seconds," drew for a certain length of time. Then the audience thinned gradually, and WUFF found it necessary to supplement King Lear with The Harem Beauties, a ballet "supported by the best band of coryphées in Europe." "While BUNCLE was lying down and dying as Lear, the clubmen came trooping into the house; and BUNCLE'S apostrophes to his dead daughter were nearly inaudible in the creaking of boots and the settling into seats. The pit cried 'Hush!' and 'Shame!' but the 'swells' did not care about the pit, and the curtain fell on BUNCLE thirsting for aristocratic blood."

The ballet at first attracted largely. But after a time it ceased to draw; and Mr. WUFF could not supplement it by another, for the coryphées had all returned to their allegiance to the manager of the opera-house, whose season had just commenced. Then we have described the consultation of WUFF with his treasurer, Mr. BOND:

"What's it to be, Tommy?" repeated Mr. Wuff for the twentieth time. "They've had it all round hot and strong, and what's the caper for 'em now, I don't know."

"What do you think of reviving Julius Cæsar? The classic costume has not been seen on these boards for years."

"What, Billy's Julius Cæsar? No, thank you! I've had enough of Bill to last me for some time. Is there a good lion-and-camel lot about?"

"There's Roker's troupe, at North Shields."

"Roker's are performing lions, ain't they?"

"Yes."

"All right. Write to him about terms at once; and send to Darn, and tell him we want a piece to bring out this lot at once. Must be Eastern, because of the camel—long procession slaves, caskets, and all that kind of thing, and a fight with the lion for Roker. That's all Roker's to do, mind; he can't act a bit."

Finally, it is decided that the new sensation shall be a leading actress from America, who is "bōomed" to the British public by a canard being spread to the effect that she is the daughter of an English nobleman, and has left her home because her father was cruel to her.

EDMUND YATES was a keen observer of his contemporaries; and doubtless Mr. WUFF was typical of the London manager of his day. But how the whole system of theatrical management then was permeated by a kind of vulgar primitiveness! How crude and simple were the methods by which the public was attracted and a theatre kept going! The machinery, compared to that of modern management, was that of the wheelbarrow to the locomotive. In Mr. WUFF'S idea of management there seems to have been no principle of continuity or of sustaining the reputation of the theatre. He simply put on anything that would draw for the moment. SHAKESPEARE, with BUNCLE for a leading man, did sufficiently well; and when the receipts dropped it was supplemented by a ballet. When both failed, WUFF fell back on performing lions. The whole thing was in a state of almost savage simplicity. And the manager himself was in harmony with his business and his surroundings. He leapt at a bound from the position of sheriff's officer to that of entrepreneur; and he was utterly "impossible," both socially and artistically.

We have heard a great deal about the status of the actor; but even more extraordinary is the change which has taken place in the status of the London manager. Our actor-managers are amongst the most interesting figures in modern Society. It would be taking a liberty to allude to their private careers, were not the knowledge common property. Sir SQUIRE and Lady BANCROFT have long held high positions in London Society, by whose members they are equally respected and beloved. Mr. and Mrs. KENDAL, though recently they have spent much of their time in the provinces, have always been "smart people"; and Mr. JOHN HARE'S social position is equally enviable. As for Mr. and Mrs. ALEXANDER, at their pretty house in Pont-street they receive everyone who is worth receiving and know everyone who is worth knowing. Even Mr. TREE, whose arduous occupations leave him little time for frivolity, finds himself able to spare the smart set some of the attention which he devotes to the elevation of the drama and the delight of the public. Mr. CYRIL MAUDE was "to the manner born," and only takes his inherited place in the beau monde. Beautiful West End mansions, motors and chauffeurs, art, comfort, country houses, "pleasure-horses," and the admiring estimation of their contemporaries—our actor-managers have them all as the reward of their labours.

It is probable, however, that no class of men is more indifferent to these accessories of life than our actor-managers. The greater overpowers the less; and the ruling in the heart of the actor-manager is artistic ambition. Compared with the gratification of this master-passion, luxuries and greetings in the market-place are but as toys, or are only important as evidences of artistic success. The actor in Society, even more than other artists, is superior to his surroundings. Practised in the detection of pretence, humanised by contact with all classes in his profession, he is able to take Society for what it is worth and no more. The vie intime of the great actor-managers is simple, in many cases comparatively ascetic. And probably the great secret of their social success is the insouciance with which they may treat the assumptions of superiority made by wealth and rank. The actor-manager, unlike the painter, need not seek patrons in Society. Smartness may bring a few friends to the stalls; but in the last resort the manager's appeal must be to the general and not to any particular public, and he values the friendship of the former more than all the caresses of the "fashionables."

MR. GILBERT SHORTER'S RECITAL.

Among the not too long list of really able male reciters it is a great pleasure to add the name of Mr. Gilbert Shorter, who on Saturday last, at Steinway Hall, gave the fifth of his series of dramatic and musical recitals. Mr. Shorter has a distinguished appearance on the platform, a fine, rich, melodious voice, and, lastly, above all, youth. Mr. Shorter was assisted by Miss Jean Newman, a talented Canadian soprano, Mr. Stanley Adams, Mr. Julius Falk, Mr. George H. Shapira, and Little Beryl; while Mme. Lillian Adams presided at the piano. Mr. Shorter was first heard in "Isura," by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, to incidental music composed and played by Mme. Lillian Adams. The quaint piece of Rudyard Kipling, "The Story of Uriah," was given in the reciter's happiest vein; this also was accompanied by the music of Mme. Adams. "An Old Sweetheart," by Whitcombe Riley, with the appropriate air of "There's nothing half so sweet in life as love's young dream," softly played on the piano, greatly pleased the audience. Mr. Shorter's best effects seem to lie in recitations of this character, full of refined sentiment. Other interesting examples given by this clever reciter, who follows the method of Clifford Harrison in neither shouting nor "tearing a passion to tatters," were "Platonic" (Wheeler Wilcox), Marie Corelli's "God and Satan," and the popular and dramatic sketch, "Devil may care." In all these Mr. Shorter was well received, and heartily greeted by his audience. In the second part of the programme the reciter also gave "At the Opera," by Lord Lytton. Little Beryl, an extremely youthful reciter, gave "The Tendril's Faith" and "A Little Fairy Story," to the manifest delight of her hearers. The little lady also joined Mr. Shorter in "The Maelstrom," especially composed for Mr. Shorter and Little Beryl by Ida Mansfield Wilson. The vocal numbers in this recital were of more than usual interest. Miss Jean Newman sang "Fuyons," by Gaston Paulin, and "Si tu veux Mignonne," in a most artistic and finished style, the vocalist being possessed of a very pure and flexible voice. Miss Newman was also heard to great advantage later in the programme is Strauss's "Standchen," Chaminade's "L'Amour Captif," and "Happy Song," by Theresa del Riego. Mr. George H. Shapiro in Chopin's "Scherzo," for the pianoforte, so greatly pleased the audience that he was encored. Some able violin solos were given by Mr. Julius Falk, who played "Sonata" (Le Tombeau), by Jean Marie Leclair, and Hubay's "Scènes de la Csardas"; and Mr. Stanley Adams was completely successful in his singing of Hahn's Reverie, "D'une Prison," and Chadwick's "The Maiden and the Butterfly." Mme. Adams also may be heartily commended for her incidental music to several of Mr. Shorter's recitations.

REJANE AT THE ROYALTY.

Mme. Réjane returns with the roses in June, and brings with her the bouquet of Parisian comedy. She has the faculty of not growing old. So fascinating indeed is her art that we listen to her voice, we hear her laugh, and we forget the passage of years. To her première at the Royalty, where she was welcomed with great cordiality on Monday evening, more than the customary importance may be attached, as she presented for the first time on any stage a new play in four acts, adapted by Dario Nicodemi from the late Henry Harland's novel, "The Lady Paramount." The title chosen is

"SUZERAINE."

Anthony Craford	M. PIERRE MAGNIER
Adrian Willes	M. NOIZEUX
Le Commandeur	M. ARVEL
Baldo del Ponte	M. DAUVILLIERS
Marson	M. SAINT-BONNET
Wickersmith	M. BOSMAN
Un Domestique	M. MONTVALLIER
Susanna, Comtesse de Sampaolo	MME. RÉJANE
Miss Sandus	MME. MILLER
La Baronne	MLLE. JEANNE EVEN
Pya	MLLE. HARDY
1ère Invitée	MLLE. CELIA
2ème Invitée	MLLE. VARNAND

M. Dario Nicodemi is already known here by his three-act comedy L'Hirondelle, originally produced in Brussels, we believe, which was first seen in London at Terry's during Réjane's season last year at that house. "The Lady Paramount" is a charming story, and was told in a pretty narrative style by the lamented author, but it is essentially undramatic, and loses rather than gains by its transference to the stage. The heroine of the play, as of the novel, is Susanna, the suzeraine of a little island on the Adriatic called Sampaolo. But she has no claim to the sovereignty of the place, the rightful heir being her cousin, Anthony Craford, who has settled down as a country squire in Dorset, and apparently takes not the slightest interest in his own island or in the inhabitants thereof, who adore their princess. With a love of adventure natural to a heroine of romance, Susanna travels to England incognita, determined to seek out her unknown relative and lawful owner of the island she inhabits. Susanna, who gives out that she is a widow, meets him, and promptly falls in love with him. The affection is mutual, and when Craford asks her to become his wife she insists as a condition of her assent to the proposal that he shall take a journey to the home of his ancestors. He goes to the island in company with his friend, Adrian Willes, who is well aware that Susanna and a lady companion have also travelled to Sampaolo by another route. When staying at the inn in Vallanza, the chief town of the island, it is suggested to Anthony Craford—at the instigation of Susanna—that it would be prudent for him to marry his cousiné, who had usurped his rights, but he peremptorily refuses to consider any such proposition, alleging his betrothal to the "widow," who he thinks is still at Craford Manor. Of course he is highly delighted when he discovers that the "lady paramount" of Sampaolo and his fiancée are one and the same.

Mme. Réjane, without any special opportunity, plays with finesse, delicacy, and charm in some well-written comedy scenes, in which M. Dario Nicodemi has retained much of the English author's distinctive wit. M. Pierre Magnier, as Anthony Craford, struggles gallantly with a purely Anglo-Saxon rôle, and if its essentially British characteristics are a little beyond him, we must confess that he is always gay and debonair.

On Thursday, June 21,
the Comedy, by Edmond Pailleron, entitled
"LE MONDE OÙ L'ON S'ENNUIE.

Thursday evening saw the very interesting revival of Pailleron's masterpiece, Le Monde où l'on s'ennuie, which has always been one of the most popular pieces in the modern repertory of the Comédie Française. When the play was produced at the house of Molière on April 25, 1881, it ran for 122 nights. It is an exceedingly brilliant and effective satire on the pedantry of science and moral philosophy, and on certain typical figures of political society in Paris. Much of the ridicule reminds one of Les Femmes Savantes, the last act being borrowed from Le Mariage de Figaro. The action takes place in the country house, near Paris, of the Comtesse de Céran, who is the centre of a circle of ponderous wiseacres, pseudo philosophers, prigs in petticoats, and other portentous bores. Her house is the place where reputations are lost and won, and where advantageous introductions are managed for those who are place-hunting. Throughout the second act the author suspends the action of the piece in order to give play to his satire. The curtain rises on the learned coterie of guests seated in the Comtesse de Céran's drawing-room in a semi-circle and listening to Bellac's profound absurdities about the mysteries of soul love—a rigmarole about which there is much pretended rapture expressed, except on the part of the Duchesse, whose blunt and highly amusing interjections provide a droll contrast to the nonsensical and bombastic periods of the professor. He is not, however, allowed to have the whole field to himself. The ladies have also to listen to a long-winded discourse on the Vedic mythology by the Baron de St. Réault, and hardly have they stifled their yawns over this than they are hurried off to hear the poet Des Millets read his five-act tragedy in blank verse. A translation of the comedy by Mr. J. T. Grein, in three acts, was given under its French title at a matinée at Terry's in February, 1901, but when produced later at the same theatre as an attraction for the evening bill the title was altered to The Lion Hunters. It was not, however, a success.

Interesting characters in Pailleron's witty and amusing work are Jeanne Raymond and her husband Paul. He utilises his wife's talents for assuming the air of a femme de ministre to obtain a position as a sous-prefet. The two have not long been married, and the allotment, therefore, of a separate bedroom to each by the Comtesse is a thoughtful little attention that is resented by both inwardly, though not outwardly. The character of Jeanne was originally assigned at the Comédie-Francaise to Mlle. Reichemberg, and Mme. Réjane plays it brilliantly at the Royalty portraying the frank spirit of mischief that dominates the sunny disposition of Jeanne with much vivacity and breadth of style. M. Pierre Magnier gives good support as Paul Raymond; and Mlle. Lanthelme makes a spirited Suzanne, being especially good in the second act, in which she interprets a touching scene with much pathos. The revival gave considerable pleasure to a large house.

MME. ALBANI, who will take part in the Handel Festival at the Crystal Palace on Tuesday, when The Messiah will be performed, sang in forty-two concerts during her recent tour in Canada. The tour lasted for fifteen weeks, and she never missed a single song. Besides giving these forty-two concerts, she travelled from the Atlantic to the Pacific, making railway journeys amounting to at least 9000 miles.

MR. H. BERNHARDT has provided a very attractive programme for next Sunday at the Palace Pier Theatre, Brighton, where he alternates light entertainments with more serious and ambitious concerts. Miss Alice Esty is the bright particular star, and other artists include such well-known singers as Mr. Herbert Grover. An interesting first appearance is that of Miss Marguerite Pedley, a charming young contralto whose singing at a recital this week gained great praise.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN

The first performance in England of Massenet's Le Jongleur de Notre-Dame was given on Friday, June 15, preceded by Pagliacci. Massenet, the French composer, has many years ago given us Le Roi de Lahore, a work full of Eastern colouring, and later on the delightful and dainty Manon, therefore expectation ran high as to the merits of the new work. M. Maurice Lena has written the book of Le Jongleur de Notre-Dame, the opera being divided into three acts, the last two being given without any break. In the first act an open space is shown near a monastery, a crowd are watching Jean, a poor travelling juggler, who, with his tricks and capers is trying to amuse his audience but without success, so to please them the half-starved mountebank sings a sacrilegious Alleluia in praise of wine. The song is received with favour by the crowd, when the stern Prior of the monastery appears, rebukes the people, who fly, leaving Jean alone with the angry Prior, who sternly rebukes the poor jester. Jean is so overcome with remorse that the Prior relents, and offers to pardon him if he will turn monk. Jean hesitates, as liberty is dear to him, but at the same time he is very hungry, and as Boniface, the cook of the monastery, at this moment arrives laden with good things for the monks' dinner, the poor juggler accepts the Prior's offer. In the next act Jean has changed his dress for a monk's cassock, the scene being the interior of the monastery, where the monks are getting ready for the Feast of the Assumption, each making an offering to the Madonna: one can paint the image of the Virgin, another is a sculptor, another a poet, while a fourth has composed a new anthem. The poor juggler, although now well fed, feels unhappy—he can do nothing for the Virgin; but Boniface, the kindly cook, comforts him, telling him of the Divine acceptance of even humble things, and by this gives Jean an idea. The same night he enters the chapel, and before the image of the Virgin he goes through all his old tricks, dancing, singing, and juggling. Aroused by the noise, the monks, headed by the indignant Prior, rush in, and are about to seize Jean when a cry of "A miracle!" is raised; the statue of the Virgin is seen to be flooded with light, one hand being raised in benediction over the prostrate form of Jean, a halo shining over his head, but on the monks endeavouring to raise him it is seen that the poor juggler is dead. The opera, which was first produced at Monte Carlo in 1903, and afterwards brought to the Opéra Comique, Paris, contains, as might be expected from the composer of Manon, music of a refined and delicate order. The first act is written somewhat in the spirit of light opera, with the songs and dances of the juggler, the most important item being the clever "Alleluia du vin," sung by Jean, and his invocation to liberty. The church music and chants in the second act are effective, as well as the "Légende de la Sauge," which Boniface the cook sings; and in the last scene the striking features are the music which accompanies Jean's songs and dances before the altar; but the solemn climax to the opera is not entirely realised by the music, and to a great extent depends on the dramatic situation. M. Laffitte, the new tenor, made a good impression in the part of Jean by his ability as an actor and vocalist, although his voice is slightly hard in quality; and M. Gilibert as the genial Boniface proved excellent, humorous, and quite in the spirit of the character; nor must we fail to praise the performance of M. Seveilhac in the part of the Prior. The smaller characters of the monks who represent Poetry, Painting, Music, and Sculpture were well filled by M. Dognies, M. Artus, M. Crabbé, and Mr. Frank Arthur. The mounting of the opera reflected the greatest credit on the management, and the performance generally went very smoothly under the conductorship of M. André Messager. In Pagliacci the cast was as on a previous occasion, Mlle. Destinn, Signor Caruso, and Signor Scotti repeating their former triumphs. The work was conducted by Signor Campanini.

The performance of Pagliacci and Le Jongleur de Notre-Dame was honoured by the presence of His Majesty the King, the Prince and Princess Christian, and Princesses Victoria and Louise Augusta of Schleswig-Holstein.

On Thursday night, June 14, Gounod's opera, Romeo et Juliette, was heard for the first time this season. Although never quite so popular an opera as Faust, Romeo contains much charming music. Mlle. Donalda, who appeared as Juliet, has several times during the present season proved her title to be regarded as an operatic singer of great gifts, and her performance on Thursday night showed that Mlle. Donalda is an artist both in her acting and the delightfully pure and sympathetic quality of her voice, the rendering of the Valse Song in the first scene being admirable; while throughout the opera the young vocalist displayed great intelligence both in her acting and singing. M. Atechevsky's rendering of Romeo was unequal, though at times successful, but his acting always deserves praise. M. Journet made an excellent Friar, and M. Gilibert a capable Capulet. The Mercutio of M. Seveilhac and the Tybalt of M. Dognies were clever performances; and the small part of the Duke received careful treatment in the hands of M. Artus. The chorus were not at all times above reproach, but the finale to the third act was finely given, and the orchestra under M. Messager secured an effective ensemble.

M. COQUELIN, the popular French comedian, has determined further to strengthen the entente cordiale by the institution of a Molière Festival on his return to London next year. For two weeks he intends to play only the works of the great French writer—Tartufe, Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme, Les Précieuses Ridicules, &c. M. Coquelin has very favourable views on the culture of the English nation. "Classic comedy," he says, "enjoys here all the prestige which is its due—a fact which proves that Englishmen have an excellent taste in masterpieces. I have been astonished to meet everywhere that I have been in society so many people with a knowledge of our literature. English ladies, who speak our tongue so daintily, can quote the chief passages in most important plays of the French stage, and I only wish that their sisters in France had an equal knowledge of Shakespeare and other English authors."

"THE popularity of Molière's works in this country," continues the eminent comedian, "may be due to the educational element they contain, which undoubtedly must appeal to the well-known English leanings towards the practical. I do not merely allude to our great dramatist's masterpieces as being educational in the general sense that they help us in 'knowing ourselves,' but also to the simple, direct, clear style in which they are written, and which, to foreign students especially, must be of enormous assistance in the study of the language. It is obvious that such assistance is increased tenfold when the works are not only read, but seen on the stage. To an Englishman, anxious to know French, a stage performance, in my opinion, is worth twenty lessons from any teacher, however experienced he might be." M. Coquelin has just begun a tour in the course of which he will visit Dublin, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Manchester, and Newcastle-on-Tyne.

THE Theatre Royal, Dumfries, which is now closed for repairs, is to reopen in August under the management of Mr Payne Seddon, who will run companies at Dumfries and Hawick three days each.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

MR. T. P. O'CONNOR has undertaken to insert the following proviso in the "Definition" clause of the Musical Copyright Bill: "Provided always that the expressions 'pirated copies' and 'plates' shall not for the purpose of this Act be deemed to include perforated music rolls used for playing mechanical instruments, or records used for the reproduction of sound waves, or the matrices or other appliances by which such rolls or records respectively are made."

MR. T. ERNEST POLDEN, who has been a director of the Palace Theatre company since its inception, has been unanimously elected chairman in the place of the late Count Max Hollender; and Mr. Alfred Butt, who has been associated with the Palace for some years, and has been manager since Mr. Charles Morton's death in October, 1904, has been elected to the vacant seat on the board, and has now become managing-director.

MISS VESTA VICTORIA, our readers will learn with considerable regret, has contracted an affection of the throat that will prevent her from fulfilling her engagements for the next month. A slight operation may be necessary, and Miss Victoria's medical advisers have every confidence that she will be able to reappear in the time mentioned. As most people know, Miss Victoria scored a veritable triumph in America recently, and her vocal resources were much taxed by singing at dozens of benefit performances for the relief of the sufferers in the San Francisco earthquake disaster. Uncle Sam has shown his appreciation of the popular comedienne's hard work by naming one of the new thoroughfares now building "Vesta Victoria-avenue."

THE Swanborough matinée is fixed for Thursday afternoon next at the London Pavilion, and in connection therewith we would draw the attention of our readers to a letter from Mr. Henri Gros, who is unhappily laid aside by illness. Mr. Gros' brotherly sympathy has helped along a cause that is in every way worthy of the support of our readers, and we sincerely hope there will be a bumper house.

The following prominent artists have kindly consented to appear by permission of their respective managers:—Messrs. Charles Hawtrey, in Time is Money, Wilkie Bard, Harry Tate, Louis Bradfield, George Robey, Arthur Prince, Jordan and Harvey, J. H. Barnes, Stanelli, and Rutland Barrington; Misses Victoria Monks, Florence St. John, Winifred Hare, Vesta Victoria, Alice Hollander, Ida Rene, Rose Stahl, Margaret Cooper, La Milo, and Cruickshank, and the principal members of the London Pavilion company. Mr. Edward Terry, a staunch friend of the Swanborough family, and a comedian who did much for the prestige of the old Strand Theatre, has kindly consented to address the audience, as the beneficiaire is too ill to be present.

MR. FRANK MACNAGHTEN has just acquired the lease of Stoke Newington Theatre, which he will reopen as a variety house on August Bank Holiday. Mr. Frederick Baugh, Mr. Frank Macnaghten's chief lieutenant, during his chief's absence in America, took over the Lyceum for a certain term at a certain rental. The term was fulfilled and Mr. Macnaghten was perfectly satisfied with his deal.

THE fatal accident to Miss Lily Cove, a parachutist, as a matter of course prompted questions in the House of Commons, and Mr. Herbert Gladstone, in answer to Mr. Fell, expressed his regret that through the existing state of the law he was powerless to arrest the exhibition of performances by women which were dangerous to life and limb. After a woman has attained her majority the law against risk to the person ceases to be operative. He has now stated that the Government intends to initiate legislation to put a stop to "dangerous performances by women."

THE words quoted may be interpreted to have a very wide meaning. There is an element of danger in every acrobatic or trapeze performance, as there is in a football scrummage or in cricket. A troupe of acrobats go through some graceful exercises in Risley tumbling; but their feats must be accomplished subject to conditions of accident or chance, and we remember the case of a member of a highly-skilled and accomplished gymnastic troupe in which an awkward slip and fall resulted in a spinal injury and a painful death.

THE Government have their hands pretty full at present, but it behoves our readers to do their utmost to protect the gymnastic and equestrian professions from being harassed by grandmotherly legislation. Now is the time for the Variety Artists' Federation and the International Artists' Lodge to show their activity by placing the views and opinions of acrobatic trainers and performers before the Home Secretary.

THERE is no truth in the statement made in various quarters that there is any likelihood of Mr. Martin Harvey becoming a tenant of the Lyceum Theatre, which, in that case, of course, would return to its original status of a "legitimate" house. Mr. Harvey has no intention of permanently re-entering the ranks of London managers.

"THE LADY BURGLAR," a clever sketch by Mr. Charles Brookfield, will be presented at the Palace Theatre on Monday, with Mr. H. J. Ford and Miss Stella Hammerstein. Mr. Ford is a brother of Miss Audrey Ford and son of Miss Lottie Venne, and Miss Hammerstein is a daughter of Mr. Oscar Hammerstein, the well-known theatre proprietor of New York. Mr. Brookfield was the author of the successful sketch, The New Régime, produced at the same house, with Miss Lottie Venne and Mr. Henry Vibart in the chief characters. He is also the librettist of See-See, the new light Chinese opera at the Prince of Wales's Theatre.

MISS MILLIE PAYNE returns to town on Monday, when she opens at Collins's and the Cambridge. At both halls she has previously scored, and as she brings new songs she will doubtless add largely to the cohort of her admirers.

MR. WALTER MUNROE'S new song, "You're a jolly fine fellow when they want you," by Murray and Everard, has been secured for publication by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

MISS JESSIE PRESTON, we are pleased to hear, is feeling much better after a rather serious illness caused by defective drains at one of the London music-halls.

MLLE. PILAR MORIN, who was the original Madame Butterfly in Mr. David Belasco's pathetic little play of that name in America, will be remembered in the halls by her powerful performance of the chief character in a Japanese playlet at the Tivoli when under Mr. Philip Yorke's management. This accomplished player has been appearing this week at the Metropolitan in a duologue entitled My Twin Wife, by Mr. Lawrence Sterner, in which she is supported by the author. A young wife's suspicions being aroused concerning her husband's admiration for her sister, she resolves to test his fidelity by disguising herself as her relative, with a result that causes no interruption of the perfect amity that brightens the domestic hearth. The dialogue is witty and telling, and Mlle. Pilar Morin plays with unbounded vivacity and grace. Mr. Sterner is also excellent as the husband.

MR. JAMES CHAPPELL opened his Beach Concerts Ring for the summer season at Great Yarmouth on Monday. The popular seaside resort is being favoured with brilliant weather, and the entertainment afforded by the veteran caterer's strong combination of star artists has been highly appreciated every day by large audiences of visitors, who have even thus early found their way to Yarmouth's sunny shores. We are glad to see that Mr. Chappell is still able to get about and visit the various places of entertainment in the town.

AT the Wolverhampton Police-court on Wednesday, George Frank Carpenter, in the employ of Mr. Arthur Roberts, who is appearing at the Wolverhampton Hippodrome this week, was placed in the dock, charged with being drunk in charge of a motor-car. The police evidence showed that the prisoner drove the car round to the Victoria Hotel, and there stopped. Mr. Roberts was in the car, and he called the policeman's attention to the state of his driver. Mr. Roberts, who was in Court, went into the box, and said the prisoner had been with him only a week, and was recommended to him by a London master.

THE stipendiary said it was a serious charge, and it was a miracle a tragedy did not happen. The evidence, however, did not disclose any recklessness, but the question was whether he should not send him to gaol without the option of a fine. This time Carpenter would be fined £2 and the costs, or one month's imprisonment with hard labour.

DR. WALFORD BODIE, the well-known electric monarch and bloodless surgeon, has again created a great sensation with his latest electric novelty, "The Magic Electric Chair," and hundreds are crowding nightly to witness its wonders. The doctor commences his annual Scotch tour in two weeks' time, and after an itinerary in his native land, he returns to London for four months to Stoll's Empires and the syndicate halls.

MR. JAS. WILLARD'S sketch The Strange Little Stranger was produced at the Royal, Oldham, on Monday. It immediately caught on, and its success is assured. No doubt it will soon be an attraction in town.

MR. ALEC HULINE (late of the famous Hulines) and Tom Le May (the well-known musical grotesque) will in future be known as Huline and Le May. After a successful run at the Crystal Palace they commence their provincial tour on Monday next at the Hippodrome, Wakefield.

ALTHOUGH Miss Vesta Victoria has been away from America for some weeks, the song craze there is still Leigh and Pether's "Waiting at the church." Nothing else is heard at Coney Island, the pleasure resort which has been aptly described as the World's Fair sandwiched between Douglas and Blackpool. Parodies of the song abound, one being entitled "There was I waiting in my shirt."

WE regret to announce the death of Mr. John Pearce Butler, which sad event took place recently at Genoa, Italy. Mr. Butler had just terminated a two-and-a-half years' engagement with Bostock and Wombwell's Circus and Menagerie, which is at present touring through Australia, and was on his way home to England per s.s. Bremen when he was stricken down with rheumatic fever. On the arrival of the vessel at Genoa, he was conveyed ashore and taken to the hospital, but despite the best medical assistance he gradually grew worse, and passed away after a few days' illness.

MR. BUTLER was well known and extremely popular in the arena and among the circus profession. During his career he was engaged at various times with John Sangers and Sons, John Henry Cooke, Tudor and Bostock, and Wombwell. For nearly four years he acted as ring-master with Mr. E. H. Bostock at the Zoo Circus, Glasgow, afterwards taking up the management of the Empire Theatre of Varieties at Greenock. Immediately after giving up this position he again joined Mr. Bostock as equestrian director with his circus in South Africa, and during the tour of the Bostock and Wombwell amalgamation in Australia he acted in the capacity of agent in advance. Mr. Butler, who was the son of the late Rev. J. E. Butler, was in his fifty-fourth year, and leaves a widow and only daughter, who reside at 2, George-square, Greenock, for whom much sympathy is felt in their sad bereavement.

IN the Dundee Court of Session on Wednesday, Lord Johnston ordered intimation and service of a petition by Emslie Tosh, C.A., asking approval of his accounts as liquidator of the Dundee Gaiety Co., Ltd., his discharge as liquidator, and the dissolution of the company. The liquidator says that the theatre building is the only asset of the company, and it was bonded to the amount of £3000. Though widely advertised for sale, it has failed to find a purchaser at a price sufficient to leave any reversion. It has, therefore, been surrendered to the bond-holders. The theatre has, during the period of negotiations for sale, been let at a weekly rent, which, with the proceeds of certain items of movable property, forms the whole funds recovered by him. The fund is insufficient to fully meet the expenses of the liquidator, and accordingly there are no funds available for distribution to the creditors or shareholders.

MESSRS SANFORD AND LYONS conclude a most successful London engagement to-night at the Empire, Shepherd's Bush, and have been offered another three years' tour with Mr. Stoll. They return to town in November, previous to pantomime rehearsals at the Grand Theatre, Leeds

AT the Oxford, on Monday, Apollo, the European exponent of Jiu-Jitsu, and his pupils, will nightly demonstrate this novel system of defence against sudden attack, in which our allies the Japs are the greatest experts in the world. Apollo offers substantial prizes to the competitors who oppose him each night, and reserves the right to meet men over 14st., his weight being 12st. 6lb.

"SCENES IN EVERYDAY LIFE," with its lightning changes, has proved most interesting to audiences during the week at Olympia, Liverpool, where this clever act has been most successfully produced by John Terry and Mabel Lambert, whom we hope to see shortly in London.

MANAGER JOHN SMITH, of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter's establishment, on Monday last safely delivered to "the trade" the most enormous quantity of printed matter ever sent out from the firm's premises at one time, being the "silver wedding" issues of the twenty-fifth "Song Annual" and twenty-fifth "Dance Album," two works which are waited for yearly with great interest in every quarter of the kingdom and beyond. As in former years, every known method of conveyance was pressed into the service.

MR. SMITH, who has for a quarter of a century personally assisted in, and for quite a number of years directed, the arrangements, was congratulated by all concerned on the smoothness with which the big undertaking passed off, and a certain sound heard at the close of an arduous day was by no means a "sixpenny pop." The wrapper of the "Song Annual" is this year adorned with a striking portrait of Miss Victoria Monks, that lady's "Ain't yer gwine to say 'How do?'" holding a place of prominence in the contents. The number of pages in either work has this year been increased to seventy-two, in honour of the twenty-fifth anniversary of these "hardy annuals."

THE first general meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation, which is to be held at the Trocadero on Tuesday, July 10, will start punctually at 11 a.m. Members to obtain admission must produce their green cards fully paid up to date. The constitution of the Federation and its rules and by-laws will be submitted to members for their approval and discussed. The V.A.F. now numbers no less than two thousand members. On and after July 2 the entrance fee will be 5s.

THE secretary of the Music-Hall Benevolent Fund has received the sum of £40 from Mr. Thos. S. Ashmole, being part of the proceeds of the Liverpool Theatrical Gala. The president and committee beg to publicly thank all the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly gave their generous assistance on the occasion. The secretary has also received from Mr. Lyndon Greenwood the sum of £3 13s. 6d., the contribution of the staff of the Islington Empire.

THE Sisters Adele Levey and May Lilian Levey have again become partners, and intend reviving many of their famous character-comedy creations. Offers are already being made for their services, including one from Paris. The Sisters will open in America in November.

"LA MILO" will impersonate on Monday at the London Pavilion with her own natural figure a most interesting series of new classical studies, including "Peace," "Pandora," "Circe," "Maidenhood," and "Daphne." She will also essay the daring experiment of imitating in statutary the famous "Velasquez Venus," recently presented to the nation, and now exhibited at the National Gallery.

MR. HERBERT CLARK (the clever comedian of the duo, Clark and Hamilton) has just accepted from Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate a specially-commissioned new "tramp millionaire" number for his well-known comedy act, entitled Too Beastly Rich. Although Mr. Clark is a music publisher himself, this song will form one of the Monte Carlo Publishing Company's "Sixpenny Successes."

TOM COSTELLO, recovered from a severe attack of ptomaine poisoning, resumed business on Monday night at the Islington Empire, where a crowded house greeted his "Old Clown" scena with vociferous cheers. Another number, which seems destined to attain "Sail away" popularity, is "Good-by, dear old London town." On Monday, Mr. Costello is starring at the Hippodrome, Coventry, where he will introduce a new skit on the subject of "Woman's Rights," and receive deputations of suffragettes on the stage nightly. Messrs. A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott are the authors.

THE present programme at the Oxford is particularly strong. Miss Mayme Gehrue, the American sand dancer, exclusively engaged, appears in a novel boy's costume of black satin, covered with a design of spangled stars, the zouave jacket worn over a full white silk shirt. The Bargetti Troupe's extraordinary jumping and balancing feats are performed in ordinary lounge suits—the Pantzer Brothers seem to have set the fashion for acrobats to dress "as themselves." Miss Benson, of King and Benson, looks very smart in a thin white silk short frock over rose-red stiff underskirts, with small roses and leaves dotted here and there, and a tiny wreath of buds twined round her little muslin cap, with long ribbons of the same vivid colour. The King of Sahara, that is still going very well at the Oxford, is to have a new "book" written by Mr. Forbes Dawson when it is produced at the suburban halls in about three weeks time. There will also be several important changes in the cast.

MR. FRANK LEO, the author-composer of Wilkie Bard's "Cowslip and the Cow," is responsible for his latest London hits, viz., "Let me sing," "The scene-shifter," and "I want you to notice my leggings."

MISS FLORRIE GALLIMORE has just accepted from Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate a new comedy song, entitled "We'd like to be there," which she has in active rehearal, and will shortly produce on the Stoll tour.

MR. HARRY RICKARDS left Sydney for London in the India on May 12, in search of star artists for the Tivoli. Mrs. Rickards and Mr. Joseph Larkin (private secretary), and Mr. J. W. Winton, ventriloquist, accompanied the intrepid entrepreneur.

MR. WAL PINK has offered to present a substantial prize for the heaviest specimen chub, to be fished for by members of the Stockwell Angling Society, to which body he is attached. Mr. F. V. St. Clair writes enthusiastically of the fine fishing to be enjoyed just now at Windermere.

"BERTIE'S ADVENTURE," a farcical comedietta of particularly rollicking nature is to be given this evening at the Middlesex at 7 o'clock. It is written by F. L. Webber and Stewart D. Wright, and is of that lighttexture so suitable to warm summer evenings.

IN glorious summer weather the popular fraternity of Terriers and their friends on Sunday took their annual water trip, and heartily enjoyed the riparian beauties of Father Thames, finding delight in the sylvan glories of Quarry and Cliveden Woods during the journey down by the launch La Burgoine from Reading to Staines, where they disembarked for the return journey by train to Paddington.

THE happy party numbered about 100, and included Messrs. Jesse Sparrow (president), Mr. C. P. R. Burgess (hon. solicitor), Mr. George Preston (chairman), Mr. Douglas White (hon. treasurer) and Mrs. White, Mr. Michael Joyce, M.P., and Mayor of Limerick, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Lennon, Mr. Atlas and Miss Vulcana, Mr. and Miss Picton, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Millis, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neiman, Mr. and Mrs. John Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gage, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gage, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Stockton, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Aarons, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. White, Mr., Mrs., and Miss Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Cooke, Mrs. Thacker, Mr. and Mrs. Gate, Mr. and Mrs. George Pearson (Miss Peggy Pryde) and Tony Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Alexandra, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gray, Mr., Mrs., and Miss Wiltshire, the Brothers Obo, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Edelsten (Miss Marguerite Broadfoote), Mr. and Mrs. Martin, Miss Lillie Lester, Miss Barnett, Messrs. W. Jeapes, Moy, "Spot," E. C. Webb, Samuels, Mark Ringham, Will Van Allen, Francis, Rupert Burnham, Douglas and Claude Stuart, Leon and Will Bassett, Jimmy Traynor, Billy Kloof, George Gunnup, Walter Norman, Charles Cornish, and Harry Lester, the indefatigable secretary.

LUNCHEON and tea were served on board, the catering being in the excellent hands of Mr. J. Ucelli, of the Hotel Boulogne, Gerrard-street, W., who was highly complimented by the company.

CONTRIBUTIONS to the entertainment were given by Messrs. Leon and Will Bassett, Harry Gray, Tony Pearson, Walter Norman, George Preston, the Brothers Obo, Mrs. Joe Aarons, and Miss Marguerite Broadfoote. Comedy pictures of the entire company, taken for the cinematograph, were engineered by Mr. W. Jeapes. Everyone present declared the outing to have been the best on record, and Mr. Harry Lester was heartily congratulated on the success of all his arrangements.

THE Terriers, amidst their enjoyment, did not forget Hospital Sunday, and a collection made amongst them at Boveney Lock realised £2 2s.

ACCORDING to American exchanges Messrs. Thompson and Dundy have resigned the management of the New York Hippodrome. They started in the show business as partners some years ago, and have been very successful. The Hippodrome, which long was a dream of Mr. Fredk. B. Thompson, is the result of his energy and enterprise. It seats 5,500 persons, and is the largest place of its kind in the world. The land on which it stands, on Sixth-avenue, between Forty-third and Forty-fourth-street, is owned by the United States Reality Company. Mr. Thompson is not yet thirty years old. They begin hustling young in America. Foreign artists should note that all contracts are cancelled.

MR. ARTHUR PRINCE sails by the Umbria next Saturday for America, where he opens at Hammerstein's, New York, for a seven weeks' engagement, to be followed by a lengthy tour. He will be accompanied by his wife (Miss Ida Rene) and his business manager, Mr. A. McAllister. This will be the clever young ventriloquist's second visit to the United States. The farewell engagement that he is now playing at the Empire has been very successful, his turn being greatly strengthened by the introduction of new "patter," and a capital song, for which Mr. McAllister is responsible, called "One Day." When Mr. and Mrs. Prince were in San Francisco last year there was a slight shock of earthquake—a forerunner of the recent catastrophe; but they took it as a matter of course, little suspecting that they were playing in the Orpheum, one of the finest variety theatres in America, for the last time.

MISS LUCY ASHTON'S scena, called Skyland, is one of the new features in the Palace programme this week, and gives an opportunity for half a dozen strikingly handsome girls to appear in smart walking dresses of different colours, with flowery feathery hats and silk parasols, Miss Ashton herself wearing a little black satin frock, with a Belle of New York bonnet with ostrich plumes. She is an American—one of New York's pretty "Casino girls"—who has played straight parts, starred as a principal in comic opera, and seems to have made her chief hit in a piece that was very popular on the other side, called Piff! Paff! Puff! She has been on the stage for about five years, this being her first appearance in London. Skyland was arranged and produced in under three weeks.

SERVAIS LE ROY will shortly present Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco in a new and original mystical play, which this enterprising conjurer will aim to make of startling novelty and attractiveness. Weird mysticism, amusing tricks, and astonishing surprises are to be allied to dramatic cohesion and consistency in this remarkable production.

THE marriage of Mr. Bert Brantford to Miss Agnes Asher was duly solemnized on Tuesday at St. James's Church, Clapham-park, S.W. A large number of friends, relatives, and artists witnessed the ceremony, and at the reception afterwards held at the residence of the bride's mother (7, Park Hill-gardens) amongst the guests were:—Mrs. Asher (bride's mother), Mike Asher (brother), Mr. and Mrs. Ford, sen., Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ford (brother of bridegroom and sister of bride respectively), Miss Lillian Groom (bridesmaid), Miss Rosie Ford (bridesmaid), Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boden, Mr. and Mrs. Napoli, Mrs. L. Turner, Mrs. Spencer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Worton David, Mr. Walsh, Mr. Reeves and son, Mr. Dave O'Toole, Mr. Dave Cohen, Mr. Walter Inge, Mr. T. E. Dunville, Master H. Ford (aged ten months), and others too numerous to mention.

THE bride looked sweet in soft white silk trimmed with jasmine wreaths and orange blossom, with a jasmine tiara fastening the veil. The senior bridesmaid wore a very becoming turquoise gown (Paris shade) with Valenciennes lace hat; and the junior bridesmaid a white embroidered frock with Valenciennes lace bonnet. Mrs. Asher, the bride's mother, was dressed in a stylish lilac crêpe-de-chine gown trimmed with Paris lace, and in a Paris straw hat trimmed with lilac. Mrs. Ford, the bridegroom's mother, looked exceedingly well in a champagne-coloured crêpe-de-chine gown, with lace toque. Mrs. Harry Ford, the bride's sister, was much admired in her confection of pink chine silk skirt, guipure lace over-skirt threaded with black velvet ribbon, the Valenciennes lace bodice being trimmed with chine silk guipure lace, and the costume completed by a guipure lace hat.

THE presents, which were numerous and costly, included a hamper of Irish linen from the bride's mother, bronze clock and ornaments from the bridegroom's mother, luncheon basket from the bride's brother, sideboard and rolled-top bureau from the bride's sister, substantial cheque from the groom's brother. The groom presented the bride with a beautiful diamond ring, the bride presenting the groom with a plain flat gold ring. The bride was given away by her mother, the groom's brother officiating as best man. The honeymoon will be spent at Eastbourne.

"HOOCH AYE!" is quite the rage in Middlesbrough this week, where "The man you know of that ilk" has been expatiating.—Little Zola is receiving many congratulations on the success of his song, "Who would have thought it?"

THE rooms in Wellington-street wherein the committee of the Music-Hall Artists' Railway Association conduct their weekly deliberations are now adorned by a number of cartoons from the pencil of the late Mr. Tom Merry, presented by Mr. Douglas White, the hon. treasurer, and a founder of the Association. One of the pictures depicts the lamented Dan Leno in the character of a stoker, shovelling fuel into the engine that is to carry the petition for concessions before the railway magnates. The drawings are remarkably well executed, and possess added interest from the fact that they recall the early days of the Association before it had entered upon its present period of affluence.

THE 468th meeting of the committee was held on Tuesday, when Mr. Joe O'Gorman occupied the chair, and Messrs. Harry Blake, Jack Collinson, Charles Gardiner, Walter Munroe, Michael Nolan, George Preston, C. Douglas Stuart (secretary), and Douglas White (hon. treasurer), were also present. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and passed, and matters arising out of them discussed. In respect to the application of a medical gentleman in the provinces, it was decided that it would not be expedient to appoint specialists outside the metropolis. The resignation from the committee of Mr. Eugene Stratton was accepted with regret, and the succession of Mr. Barney Vox, the next in order of election, was approved. The secretary's financial report, showing the addition of twenty-seven new members for the week ending June 16, during which period the receipts were £27 10s. 6d., and the expenditure £10 6s. 2½d., was received, and the hon. treasurer's cash statement was also read and passed. The secretary reported that a satisfactory arrangement had been arrived at with the landlord, by which it would be no longer necessary to pay the rent of the premises in advance.

A STRIKING feature of the composition of the executive of the M.H.A.R.A. is the recent access of ventriloquists to the board. Three vacancies in succession have been filled by exponents of the polyphonic art, and the number of ventriloquists now on the committee amounts to five. It is hoped that no grave complications will be caused by one of these artists putting into the mouth of any of his colleagues sentiments directly opposed to those which he intended to utter.

MR. A. B. MARINELLI is the head of a variety and dramatic agency which rightly claims a cosmopolitan character, as it represents first-class houses of amusement in all parts of the world. He has been busily engaged of late in arranging the business in America of some of the world's chief variety entertainers, and was largely instrumental in the introduction of the delightful Mariette Sully into the production of The Geisha at Daly's.

ORIGINALLY intended for a commercial life, Mr. Ernest Ch. Gittins, one of the youngest theatrical and operatic managers "on the road," served for over six years in a well-known Liverpool office. Meeting a professional friend one day, they decided there and then to take out a concert party in the Lancashire and Yorkshire fit-ups, which proved a fairly successful venture, Mr. Gittins doing a turn as pianist, and playing a part in the sketch which terminated each performance.

HE next joined Mr. Lawson's sketches, Humanity and The Shield of David, &c., and was Mr. Lawson's aide-de-camp for three and a half years, during which time the People's Palace, Tottenham, was opened, Mr. Gittins also assisting in the management. Tired of being resident, he toured again with Mr. Walter Gibbons's animated pictures and phono. bio-tableaux from the Agricultural Hall, Islington, and, after gaining experience of "picture" business, accepted an engagement with the Edison Picture Company at the St. James's Hall, Manchester.

MR. GITTINS then turned his attention to comic opera, and joined the well-known Milton Ray's forces, appearing in the musical comedies A Hot Night and The Cruise of the Calabar, also in the pantomimes Beauty and the Beast, Aladdin, and Robinson Crusoe, the last-named being one of the most successful productions of the kind at the Theatre Royal, Belfast. From chorus and small parts he ultimately became Mr. Arthur Milton's manager. Drama also claimed him for tours with Siberia and Hardie and Von Leer's In London Town (under the direction of Jas. M. Hardie, jun.), in which latter piece he doubled the parts of Flemming and Joe.

MR. GITTINS'S first engagement in Grand Opera was with the second tour of the Moody-Manners Opera A Company, for which he was secretary (Mr. Gittins is an expert typist and shorthand writer). Since that time he has piloted the F. S. Gilbert Opera Company, the Elster-Grime Opera Company (Irish fit-ups), and, last of all, the oldest opera company in the world, viz., Her (late) Majesty's servants, the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, and with this company he has been associated for the past four seasons.

MR. GITTINS attributes his high position at such an early age to hard work and his ambition to get to the top of the tree, and the experience gained by commencing at the bottom rung of the ladder, and working in chorus, small parts, as pianist, amanuensis, "in advance," resident and touring management has proved a most valuable school for the arduous duties of an operatic manager. What spare time he now gets is always taken up in his compositions, and, although his songs and glees have never yet seen the light, the talent is still there, and no doubt one day will prove still another useful accomplishment.

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Company have in the press, and will produce, at an early date, Miss Marie Lloyd's latest success, by Harrington and Tate, "That's the custom of the country," with which this talented artist is nightly winning "golden opinions" at the Tivoli and her other engagements.

MR. GINTARO, whose exceptionally fine juggling is so highly appreciated in Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant's Mysteries at St. George's Hall, is one of the many Japanese in London who are masters jiu-jitsu. He met with a little adventure a short while ago in which his skill in scientific self-defence stood him in good stead. One night when he was returning home after the performance, accompanied by his wife, a man who had started by begging began to look dangerous, and Mr. Gintaro saw that a second morose-looking fellow was approaching from the shadow of a house. The street was deserted. The two men, both of whom were bigger and heavier than the Japanese, began to use threatening language and press closer. Then Mr. Gintaro, in the coolest manner in the world, suddenly seized one of his assailants, and, knowing exactly how to do it, put him flat on his back on the pavement. He said that the expression on the face of the second man, before he took to his heels, was too funny for words.

MR. JOE PETERMAN was sued at the Southwark County Court on Thursday on a judgment summons issued at the instance of Walter Bentley, a variety agent, of Stamford-street, S.E., for £3 15s., balance of a judgment for commission earned. The creditor said that Peterman was performing the sketch King of Sahara at the Oxford, for which he received £100 a week, out of which he had to pay about thirty people, and that he was living at the Hotel Russell. The creditor added that since the judgment he had made contracts for the debtor, one being for £125 per week, whilst Peterman had three or four sketches running. Judge Addison made an order for the payment of the amount within a month, twenty-one days in default.

MR. CHARLES CARTWRIGHT, who has just concluded a brief and highly successful tour with Em'ly, his play based upon incidents in "David Copperfield," and produced at the Adelphi on Aug. 1, 1903, has received a tempting offer to present a condensed version of the piece on the variety stage. If the necessary arrangements can be made, Em'ly will be given in about thirty-five minutes by six people, Mr. Cartwright, of course, playing the old boatman, Dan'l Peggotty, a favourite character with the late Sam Emery.

MLLE. RENEE, the clever instrumentalist, has been making a great hit at the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, this week, taking four curtains at each performance. She has just made her return contract with Signor Pepi at a large increase of salary.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In his report of the Hippodrome, Coventry, your correspondent omitted all mention of us. We appeared as the "Factory Nightingales," and were a great success.—Yours faithfully, DOLLY, AGNES, AND MAUD.

AT the County of London Sessions on Thursday, before Mr. Loveland-Loveland, K.C., at Newington, Nicholas McDonald, a coster, Herbert Higgins, a carman, and James Costello, a coster, were found guilty of wounding George Davey, and assaulting Charles Smith, at the Empress, Brixton. Evidence was given that, during a performance on the night of May 14, Higgins caused a disturbance in the gallery, and Charles Smith, an attendant, spoke to him. He immediately struck Smith on the right jaw, knocking him down, and kicked him. George Davey, another attendant, came to the rescue, and the scrimmage became general. The prisoners took the affair very lightly in court, and were only silenced when Mr. Loveland-Loveland commenced in a stern manner to sentence them. "You have been acting more like wild beasts than human beings," he said, "and I mean to give you such punishment as will deter others from following your example. This rowdyism and assaults upon peaceful citizens must be put a stop to." McDonald was sentenced to 15 months' hard labour, Higgins to 18 months' hard labour, and Costello to 15 months' hard labour.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

HOLBORN EMPIRE.

The Holborn Empire—known for so many years as "the Royal"—has, under the present management entered upon prosperous times, and the secret of the success which has undoubtedly been achieved may be attributed not only to the great improvements recently carried out in this old-established theatre of varieties, but more particularly to the series of excellent programmes which have been presented since the re-opening. Novelty has very judiciously been made a feature in the bill; and while old favourites have not by any means had the cold shoulder, many attractive items that present the charm of freshness have found a place in the programme. Visitors to the Holborn Empire this week have been delighted with the refined and artistic production, which, under the title of "Klio," is sandwiched between more ordinary items of a variety entertainment. Possibly the title was suggested by Clio, one of the muses, who presided over history, and recorded the heroic deeds of brave men. Miss Irma Lorraine, a lady whom Nature has endowed with a fine figure, represents a series of studies in sculpture, the originals of which can be seen in Continental cities. Each pose is a perfect simile of the original figures by eminent sculptors. The first of the series is Music, followed by Salambo, Nymph at the Fountain, Literature, Bacchante (the original, by Mlle. Amelie Colombier, was exhibited in the Salon de Paris last year), Fortune, Venus, Diana, Truth, and Electra. That at one time notorious individual, "the prude on the prowl," could find no valid objection to this display of the female form divine; for the canons of art are observed in the strictest degree, and not a suspicion of vulgarity mars this really artistic exhibition. The brief interval between each pose is filled by a charming fountain display. The water is thrown to a height of 30ft., and powerful limelight being employed, a variety of prismatic and kaleidoscopic effects are produced, to the evident delight of the audience.

Amongst acrobatic comedians Price and Revost hold high rank; and their performance is one that should not be missed. The artist that plays the comic part falls about the stage in such eccentric fashion as to cause repeated roars of laughter; and then, as a finish to his funny performance, he gets apparently hopelessly entangled with a number of chairs, and has to be extricated from his awkward position by his partner, who, by the way, is himself a very smart acrobat, who well deserves the applause accorded him. The Folkestones appear with much success in their comedy act, called The Channel Swimmers. As a matter of fact, the act has very little to do with swimming, though the scene represents the seaside, with a bathing-machine in the foreground. One of the two performers enters this, and prepares for the swim across the Channel. He has a rival, who disrobes outside the machine, and throws his discarded clothes in through the window. The couple conclude with a smartly-executed sand dance, which is greeted with much applause. Harrigan and Holt win favour as cross-talk comedians. They also introduce an amusing parody on "Only a Jew," called "Only a stew," and excel as dancers. The Three Sisters Sprightly are well received. One of them appears as a coon singer, and the other two as coons who do most of the work. With lively song and dance the trio achieve a notable success. Mr. Cliff Ryland, described as "the stolid comedian," rattles off his funny anecdotes about his friend Carey and other people and things with his usual glibness; his reception is of the most cordial character. The Four Papillons are young ladies, who, attired in pretty dresses, and carrying sunshades, do exceedingly well in both the singing and dancing departments. Mr. Jake Friedman, who rejoices in the title of "the one-man opera," upholds his reputation as a clever and amusing artist; Mr. Charles Lilburn, comedian, sings "It's better than nothing at all" in telling style; and Mr. Frank Gee, comedian, also contributes. Terry and Bentley, a lady and gentleman, score in the comedy sketch, called The Hunt. Miss May Edouin and Mr. Edwards are seen to advantage in A Bachelor's Dream; and the Jees are repeating their well-known Musical Smithy, both of which sketches have been frequently and favourably noticed in our columns. Eugenie Fougère, whose speciality is French chansons and American coon songs, is also engaged here; and the Imperial Bioscope is presenting "A Phantom Ride from Nice to Monte Carlo." Mr. Claude Marner is the manager at this hall, and the orchestra is under the leadership of Mr. James Sale.

FORESTERS'.

A big and varied programme is offered at the Foresters' this week. There is a very strong thing for a hot night in a new sketch,

"BLUE RIVER VALLEY,"

By C. Douglass Carlile.

Brian Nolan .....MR. C. DOUGLASS CARLILE
Dan Cooper .....MR. CHARLES A. CARLILE
Pete .....MR. JACK MANLEY
Sambo .....MR. LEE GILBERT
Myra .....MISS CARLOTTA DE YONSON

Mr. C. D. Carlile will be remembered as the author of several successful sketches, the present being his fifth attempt in this direction. The story of Blue River Valley opens, as the title indicates, at a Western American gold mining camp. Brian Nolan is seated playing cards with another miner, Dan Cooper. The latter is a sharper, and produces four kings from his pocket. Naturally Brian expresses his opinion upon this kind of conduct in the strongest terms, and Dan Cooper leaves the cottage vowing vengeance. Myra, Brian's wife, appears on the scene, she having walked from San Francisco with a letter which tells her husband that he has inherited a fortune. Dan Cooper, wishing to pay off the gambling score against Brian, tells the latter that women are not allowed in the camp; but Brian has already decided to quit the place. During his temporary absence from the cottage Dan vents some of his spite upon Myra, and Brian just turns up in time to prevent her being carried off by the ruffian. There is, of course, a fight, in which Dan gets considerably the worst of it. Later on there is still another encounter, and again Brian comes out triumphant. Miss Carlotta de Yonson displays all the qualities of a tragedienne in her impersonation of Myra, the heroine; and Mr. C. Douglass Carlile as Brian Nolan presents a virile and sturdy hero. Mr. Charles A. Carlile is sufficiently obnoxious as the blackguardly Dan Cooper; and Mr. Lee Gilbert as Sambo and Mr. Jack Manley as Pete adequately portray what is required of them. Mr. Marley shows decided ability.

As to the rest of the programme, we have Mr. Lew Lake and his company in the laughable sketch My Pal Jerry. Mr. Bob Morris as Jerry Jackson and Mr. Lew Lake as Nobbler Nolan create intense merriment, and the whole show is by far the liveliest item in the programme. Mr. Dave O'Toole also gives us plenty to laugh at in his song, "We all walked out again." Mr. O'Toole has a style all his own, and it is a style which has proved hugely to the liking of the patrons of the Foresters'. Four talented dancers come on the stage in the persons of the Society Quartette. The bâton dance and the long boot dance performed by two members of the little troupe are exceedingly smart in their way, the first being most picturesque. The verse sung by the quartette about one Stella is rendered harmoniously, and the turn is pleasing throughout. Miss Madge Morley and company have a very entertaining thing in the comedy episode, After the Races, written by Walter Howard. In her own part Miss Morley shows herself to be an accomplished comedienne. Mr. Andy Fagan is an amusing patterer and dancer, and his story about "Fighting Macanny" cannot fail to excite one's risible faculties. The spirit of comedy is strong in Mr. Fagan.

Mr. Andy Burn sings of the sorrows of a broken-down millionaire, and the lugubrious manner in which in the character he refers to past glories and compares them with present circumstances is really funny. Mr. Burn's eccentricities have quite gained the favour of East-Enders, and what enhances that favour is the fact that he is a talented dancer. Mr. Harry Lewis is another comedian who creditably acquits himself, and his ditty, "Is it true?" wins golden opinions from his hearers. Mr. G. H. Keith is a versatile mirth-provoker and entertainer, and he submits an agreeable number in "The Violet." Raymond's Bio-Tableaux comes in for a good share of attention. It would seem that animated pictures are becoming more popular day by day. In their own line Messrs. Raymond keep well to the fore, and are always to be relied upon for securing new subjects for the cinematograph screen. This week at the Foresters' they introdnce a couple of attractive series in "The Mistaken Laundry" and "The Deserter," the scenes in both of which are remarkably clear and well conceived.

PARAGON.

Miss Carrie Laurie's "model school" is by now pretty well known to music-hall habitués, but a renewal of its acquaintance is always welcome. The youngsters themselves are so clever, and enter so heartily into the fun of their mimic schooling, that it is a pleasure to listen to and watch them. The boy who appears as the dunce is a smart little comedian, who should make a name for himself as a single turn when he reaches manhood's estate. Miss Laurie may herself be congratulated upon the excellent results of her training, and upon the fact that she is ever developing whatever talents each child possesses. She is continually making changes in the business of her young protégés, so as not to weary an audience with too much repetition. The "bogie man" dance and song proves an interesting feature of the little show, as is also the playing of various musical instruments. Rivington and Gordyn make for merriment with their comedy duologue, "Not a single word," which is amusing throughout. Mr. Wilson Hallett is most entertaining with his imitations of children, every one of his efforts in this direction being highly characteristic of what it is supposed to represent. The whimsical Wilkie Bard, made up and dressed as a burlesque Tommy Atkins, is absurd enough in all faith, what with his comical mannerisms and his satirical lines about "one-and-a-penny a day," but he is even more absurd as a voluble woman who wishes to display "her" qualities as a vocalist. "Let me sing," cries the "lady," and then, as a reference is made to a fireman, a uniformed official rushes on the stage to object to being associated with the song. A laughable scene ensues. More laughter is caused when Mr. Bard invites a boy in the audience to join in the chorus, and an apparently elderly man in evening dress responds to the request, and sings in unison with the comedian.

Herr E. Rousby's electrical review, entitled Round Paris; or, Paris in London, is one of the prettiest and most attractive novelties we have seen for a long time. We get remarkably vivid representations of the Place de la Concorde, and a scene from the Louvre. The varying tints and hues of the sky as day breaks changes into sunset, and sunset into moonrise, afford a beautiful series of spectacles, and we should imagine that the inventive capacity of some electrical genius must have been taxed to the utmost to conceive and produce such wonderful effects. The "Palace of Illusions" and the "Summer Night Festival on the Champ de Mars," in which a neat model of the Eiffel Tower is brought into requisition, also are electrical wonders. We can heartily commend Herr Rousby's exceedingly interesting "review," and not the least surprising part of it is the production of melodies by electrically-worked contrivances. The rollicking Will Evans as a Spanish danseuse, ridiculously attired in flaming colours, is something to upset the gravity of a misanthrope. And the way in which this "Mlle. Flora de Dindigul" whisks and prances about the stage in a diaphanous "skirt," which it would be almost libellous to describe as comprehensive, is a sight for the gods. But the fun goes faster and more furiously as Mr. Evans' "grand corps de ballet" swing round and round in one another's arms, their physical endowments not altogether giving one the impression of dainty little ballet girls. It is laughter, laughter, all the time the popular Will is before the footlights, and laughter some time after as the recollection of his doings is borne upon one's mind. Mr. Charles Norton is, indeed, a versatile comedian. He gives us capital imitations of some of the leading stars on the music-hall stage. His representation of Harry Lauder in "Stop yer ticklin', Jock," and R. G. Knowles's song about women, are particularly praiseworthy, and characteristic, too, is his mimicry of Arthur Roberts, G. H. Chirgwin, Harry Ford, and T. E. Dunville in some of their best-known numbers.

Miss Sylvia Cavalho excites general admiration for her tragic and sympathetic representation of the deceived actress in Mr. Charles Darrell's dramatic episode, Lulu. It is an intensely clever bit of acting which Miss Cavalho treats the house to in the part. The plot of the sketch has been dealt with by us ere now, and it is not therefore necessary at this time to retell the story. Mr. Clifford Pembroke ably interprets the rôle of the unscrupulous theatrical manager; Miss Emma Chambers as Tabitha Tappitt furnishes a good character-study; and Miss Gertrude de Burgh is ladylike and appropriately subdued as Edith Montcalm. Mr. Harry Carr suitably fulfils the requirements of the part of the stage-manager. The Fred Gillet Trio acquit themselves creditably in a smart and novel equilibristic act. One of the gentlemen succeeds in balancing his body while supporting himself with his hands resting upon a couple of long lighted candles—not the same sort, we presume, that is brought into use in the ritual of the Roman Catholic Church; but, at any rate, similar in appearance. Several other feats are neatly executed by the trio. The Lowenwirth Brothers are a couple of delightful cross-talkers, and the fact that they are set down as Hebrew comedians ensures them a first-rate reception from a Paragon audience, which always comprises members of the fraternity. The patter of the Lowenwirths is highly diverting, and includes any number of funny jokes and witty sayings. The Sisters Marion distinguish themselves as duettists and dancers, their vocal performances being extremely acceptable and cordially applauded. Ruffell's Bioscope presents an admirable set of pictures, which add greatly to the pleasure of the house.

GRAND, CLAPHAM.

The pretty music hall at Clapham, under Mr. H. Ketteman's able management, has this week enjoyed a fair amount of patronage, taking into consideration the possible drawbacks in the way of attendance owing to the hot weather. The popular Mr. Joe Elvin is encouraging local joviality with his latest sketch, Two Nights Out. As the gay and festive bookmaker, who meets with such strange adventures, Mr. Elvin contrives to force the pace of hilarity, and induces one to think that after all the world is not such a dreary place. Mr. Elvin understands well how to squeeze the utmost humour out of his lines, and he certainly succeeds in carrying out this principle in the petite comedy referred to. The curious costerlike intonation he gives to his words seems appropriately enough to fit in with the requirements of the character, and of the sketch it seems scarcely necessary to say that it is a valuable item of any music hall programme. The parts of the wife, the burglar, and the policemen are all cleverly played, and the little piece is extremely well staged. Miss Mabel Thorne, the talented soubrette and low-comedy artist, has some amusing lines to offer in her song, "Sitting on the point." What the lady has to say is very much to the point, for she proves highly entertaining to the house.

Mr. Herbert Shelley, who is a great favourite with Clapham audiences, is this week delighting his old South-West London friends with his song on the subject of Sunday and what a good job it is that we have such an institution as a holiday once a week. The verses are given in Mr. Shelley's expressive style, and the good points are not lost upon his hearers. Roxburgh and Wright appear in "a farcical episode, in one jump," called Cockie. Farcical is the right word to apply in reference to this turn, for the story of Cockie cannot fail to arouse one's sense of the ridiculous. Messrs. Roxburgh and Wright display great originality, and the introduction into their act of a parrot and a cat is arranged with excellent results. Mr. T. E. Dunville is another successful merry-maker, and his latest song and patter, "Ticketitis," is excruciatingly funny. Mr. Dunville doesn't believe in being behind the times, and his satire on the latest craze is much appreciated. Mr. Herbert Madden is a character vocalist of no small order. He succeeds in compelling our admiration for his interpretation of some patriotic verses, in which one catches the names of Nelson and Beaconsfield. Mr. Madden's "show" is an agreeable and refined one. The popular Miss Florrie Forde, who had been announced to appear at the Grand, Clapham, has unfortunately been obliged to absent herself from the theatre in consequence of illness. We trust by the time these lines appear in print that she will have quite recovered. Miss Forde is such an immense favourite with variety theatre habitués that she is at once missed if through some reason or other she is unable to fulfil a previously-advertised contract.

Mr. Charles Morritt is a dealer in illusions, and a very able dealer, too. One sits and looks on in amazement as a young lady, in an apparently comatose condition, slowly ascends in the air without the aid of any visible power. Then, to prove there are no wires keeping the woman in position, Mr. Morritt passes a large white hoop over the body. An invitation to the audience, and three youths appear on the stage. Mr. Morritt touches the nose of one of them, and lo and behold! a couple of rabbits come into being. Then from pockets which were formerly empty are produced a variety of articles, including cards, flags, and birds. Of course, we presume it is a question of the quickness of the hand deceiving the eye, but the rapidity and neatness with which the different tricks are performed are most commendable. The electric table and chair causes endless merriment as each victim writhes and wriggles under the influence of the strange force. The entire act is surprisingly smart and interesting. Mlle. Alice Lorette and her prize medal dog, Ben, appear in attractive and artistically arranged "living statue" scenes which find high favour with the spectators. Brown and Robinson, "the bricklayer and his labourer," need no recommendation at this hour. We have on many previous occasions referred in eulogistic terms to their vocal abilities, and it is pleasant to be able to say that they appear to improve as time goes on. Their singing of "The Lost Chord" is a particularly fine bit of work. The Imperial Bioscope pictures, especially that series depicting the adventures of a fakir among foot-pads, provide an interesting and much appreciated concluding item.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, June 18, was produced, for the first time, a new farcical sketch, written by Hubert Bartlett, entitled

"HOW BAGGS WAS BAGGED."

Augustus Baggs .....MR. HUBERT BARTLETT
Nathaniel Peck .....MR. ARTHUR WALLIS
A Policeman .....BY HIMSELF (?)
Trixie Angostura .....MISS HELEN MARIUS
Mrs. Baggs .....MISS EDITH MUIR

A farcical sketch is just the light, easily digestible fare that is acceptable in mid-summer; and How Baggs was Bagged met with a decidedly favourable reception at its first production on Monday evening. The dialogue was found to be bright and crisp, and some funny situations were evolved. Augustus Baggs, a commercial traveller, has a weakness for carrying on flirtations with young ladies he happens to meet on his travels, and as he is a married man it is not surprising that this dangerous pastime eventually lands him in a domestic difficulty. Amongst the young women he has been paying lover-like attentions to is Miss Trixie Angostura, a Basingstoke barmaid, who, finding that Augustus is a gay deceiver, vows to have revenge. Mrs. Baggs keeps a boarding-house, and the barmaid, having traced the false Augustus to his home, becomes a paying guest at the establishment. Baggs finds himself in a very awkward position, and cudgels his brains to discover a way out of it. The presence at the boarding-house of a melancholy individual named Peck suggests a means of escape. Peck is by trade an undertaker, and has left his home in consequence of a serious disagreement with his wife, who, however, is resolved upon a restitution of conjugal rights. Peck is told by Baggs that the new lady boarder is Mrs. Peck, and he is induced to make up so as to resemble Augustus as closely as possible. This leads to a series of most amusing complications, as Mrs. Baggs mistakes the undertaker for her own husband, who is himself arrested for the wife deserter, Peck. Mr. Hubert Bartlett gets a lot of fun out of the part of Augustus Baggs, and Mr. Arthur Wallis scores all through by his capital sketch of the doleful undertaker. Miss Helen Marius plays well as the aggrieved barmaid, and Miss Edith Muir is good as Mrs. Baggs.

Amongst the comedians engaged here this week is Mr. Tom Bass, who, as a policeman known by the highly suggestive name of Moppit, indulges in some very amusing patter. His embodiment of a widow with an extensive matrimonial experience is also a richly humorous character sketch. The Larins (Frank and Alice) appear in a burlesque duo, entitled The Abode of Love, the Gentleman representing a curate and the lady impersonating the damsel who calls upon him in reply to an advertisement. The reverend gentleman falls an easy victim to the charms of his visitor, and the sketch concludes merrily and musically with a medley duet composed of snatches from many popular songs of the day. Miss Maud Prenton, dainty and fresh, sings in animated style a couple of ditties, "Make hay while the sun shines" and "She didn't even stop to say good-night." A successful appearance is also made by Miss Millie Denham, who sings "Charley's got curly hair," and another song the chorus of which is excellently rendered by a little girl in the auditorium. The strong man known as Ben Hur is the central figure in an athletic scena. He first gives a display of his fine muscular development, and then affords evidence of his prowess as a lifter of heavy weights. Some degree of amusement is derived from a competition organised by Ben Hur, the object of the competitors being to remove from the stage a heavy bag of sand, a feat that is easily accomplished by the strong man. The Four Watsons present a well-varied musical entertainment, in which vocal ability and instrumental skill are both displayed. The quartet are well received, and so, too, is Mr. Will Lytton, comedian, with a funny parody on "The pilgrims of the night" and a ditty in which he bewails the fact that his newly-married wife, being a Scotch woman, compels him to wear a kilt. Mr. Fred Lester, comedian, has a capital parody on the "Hiawatha" song. Miss Lil O'Gorman sings and dances successfully; Mr. Jake Friedman, "the one-man opera," meets with a good reception; and Mr. Mark Reeves, comedian, and Cliff and Kean, comedy duo, are also in the current programme which concludes with a series of animated pictures shown by the Edisonograph. Mr. Maurice Volny, assistant manager, performs his duties with commendable zeal, and Mr. Frederick Allwood is the able musical director.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

Business here may be described as unusually brisk for the time of year, when warm evenings and prolonged sunshine tempt people, in a place like this, to roam about in forest glades till the "sleepy bell" begins to ring, and wanderers are often too tired to patronise indoor amusements. But so long as Mr. Arthur J. Barclay offers a counter attraction so strong as his bill for this week, it will not be surprising if good business is done in the hottest of dog-days.

The engagement of Miss Marie Lloyd is no doubt partly responsible for the large attendances. The popular comedienne, who surely gets few warmer welcomes anywhere than that which attends her visits to Walthamstow, is as artistic in her methods as ever. It would be difficult to say whether Miss Lloyd is best in "The custom of the country," "Things of the past," or "She didn't like to tell him what she wanted," all of which she has been singing. An item on the programme that gives very lively satisfaction, and is warmly received, is Mr. Owen Hall's musical "comedy in little," entitled The Lady Bankrupt. Interpreted cleverly by Miss Elsie Molloy and her company, the piece is as bright and amusing as need be. Miss Molloy herself, whose fascinating personality is set off to the best advantage by a fetching costume, acts, as Lady Mary Pendillion, with a good comedy manner, sings very sweetly, and dances exquisitely. Miss Mabel Dent is bright and piquant as the lady's-maid; and the crowd of lady creditors are both smart and pretty. Mr. Armitage Laceby plays with great comic resource as the Official Receiver, a part conceived quite in the Gilbertian spirit. Mr. R. A. Beaton is very amusing as his clerk; and Mr. Fred de Vere is a capital Magnus Wenk.

A great success is made by Valazzi, in a "juggling, equilibristic, athletic act." All his feats are extremely clever, several of them exceptionally so; while his performance of "sloping the slope" on a cannon ball is watched with much interest. Valazzi is fortunate in having an assistant almost as alert as himself. Miss Daisy Davidson, a soprano hailing from New Zealand, has a voice of uncommon range and considerable sweetness. She sings first a brilliant Italian bravura air with fluency and precision, but achieves an even more popular success by her rendering of the pretty song, "Eyes of blue and eyes of brown." Miss Katie Marsh, in a pot-pourri entitled "Grave and Gay," imitates various styles of performance, so widely different as an impersonation of Lady Isabel in East Lynne, a variety comedienne, a dancer, and a "coon." Mr. Herbert La Martine, a young performer who is no stranger here, sings vigorously, and dances with a "go" that fairly rouses the audience. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope has some very good pictures of the processions connected with the recent Royal marriage in Madrid.

One of the best features of the programme is undoubtedly the merry trifle entitled The Substitute, played by Mr. Sid Cotterell and two supporters—a lady and gentleman. The plot of the piece turns upon the troubles arising from a gay young married man, who, wishing to absent himself at night without the knowledge of his wife, and for the purpose of meeting a former flame, enlists the aid of the new hall porter to occupy his bed till he returns. The complications that arise can be easily imagined; but, of course, all comes straight. The Substitute is well constructed and smartly written; while it enjoys the inestimable blessing of being absolutely free from the faintest suspicion of anything that might offend the taste of the most fastidious; it is, in short, a perfectly clean, wholesome, and amusing little play. It is admirably acted. Mr. Cotterell himself is possessed of a rich fund of humour, and employs it with good effect as the bewildered hall porter. The lady of the cast acts the young wife with great spirit, and looks charming; while the young husband is handsome and debonnair. Mr. John Grant is to be commended for his stage-management. The overture to Rossini's William Tell receives a very fine rendering from the orchestra, under the smart direction of Mr. H. Petersen.

THE EMPRESS.

The demand for novelty is constantly being met by Mr. Nelson Francis, whose management at the Empress has been marked by many fresh departures in the way of the musical sketch. The latest thing in trifles of this kind was given on Monday, when Mr. Bob Hutt produced a playlet "in two scenes and a lot of trouble," by Harry Leighton and George Errard, entitled Welcome Home. The piece deals with the misadventures of a newly-married man, who returns with his bride to find his mother-in-law in possession and his house in the throes of a "spring-cleaning." Painters and decorators invade every room, and the diminutive husband is openly defied by his dragon of a mother-in-law, who even refuses to allow him to write a letter in the front parlour. The newly-wedded victim insists on completing his correspondence, but the table is snatched away from him by a number of furniture polishers, and pens, ink, and paper sent flying. Eventually he comes in conflict with the workmen, a pot of varnish is emptied over him, and a sweep's sooty brush enters by the window and decorates the face of the bridegroom. Rushing upstairs, he engages in a terrific struggle with the painters, and finally comes crashing through the ceiling into the room below. The events of the piece are ludicrous and exciting, and the laughter of the audience knows no abatement from first to last. Mr. Bob Hutt enters thoroughly into the spirit of the part of the bridegroom, whose various encounters result in the destruction of at least one summer suit, while furniture, glassware, and china are recklessly shattered. He has a song in which the joy of the happy Benedict before his warm reception at home is enthusiastically expressed, followed by an eccentric dance. Mr. Hutt is well supported by a comely young lady, who sings excellently in the part of the wife, and by the other members of the company. The comic surprises contained in the piece are numberless, and the success attained was thoroughly borne out by the enthusiastic applause which awaited it from an audience who had been kept constantly in a state of laughter. The scenery of the little piece, which depicts the exterior and interior of Love Villa, is the work of the able artist Mr. Francis H. Bull, and it is to the effective mounting and the manipulation of the properties that the success is in a great measure due.

Mr. Joe Elvin is a great source of attraction in the sketch The New Boy—no relation, it may be said, to Mr. Arthur Law's popular comedy. The favourite coster comedian excites the wildest hilarity in the part of Obedient Billy, and the efforts of his company are effectively exerted towards a similar end. Another sketch with farcical tendencies is that of The Yorkshire Lad in London, in which Mr. Tom Foy, who receives a hearty greeting, arouses constant mirth in his well-known and drolly-finished impersonation of the lad from the county of broad acres.

An early place in the programme and a high position in favour is taken by Miss Maree Kean, a fresh and dainty young artist who possesses real comedy gifts. She has a novel song in "Why did I marry Mr. Brown?" a clever lyric from the newly-combined pens of J. P. Harrington and J. W. Tate; and the approbation of the audience is accorded with liberal hand. The Sisters Marion, a prepossessing pair of juveniles, win enthusiastic cheers for their prettily-sung duets, one of which is formed out of the ballad "Sing me to sleep,"; and the Howards supplement their clever playing on bugles and cornets with a large amount of fun.

Canine intelligence is conspicuous in the Two Bostons' comic sketch, The Novelty Showman, in which a well-trained retriever slips his collar and purloins his master's dinner, placing the cat on the table to bear the charge of theft. The animal acts entirely independent of his trainer, and goes through his allotted task with marvellous sagacity. Miss Daisy James, who dazzles the eye with some charming costumes, sings in her slyest style "The world will never know" and "He's just the same as me," gaining the good-will of the audience, who are enthusiastic in admiration. Mr. Wal Pink's popular monologue Cheap Jack yields a good deal of humour and not a little patriotic excitement. His alphabetical diary contains a picture and a poem on every page, and Mr. Pink has to return so many times that he runs the entire course from A to W. Something akin to sensation is caused by the dancing of Mr. Jack Lorimer, who renders Scottish songs in racy style; the Glenroy troupe of lady and gentleman dancers also show what can be accomplished by experts in the saltatory art; the Brontes appear in their funny sketch The Saucy Maid; and Mr. Fred Dunstone in parodies and patter; and Mr. Herbert Shelley, comedian, also contribute to the bill. An "extra turn" has been provided in Bolger and Gomer, a deep baritone and a tuneful mezzo-soprano, who enact an interlude in which a quarrelling duet is succeeded by an artistic rendering of Benedict's melodious composition "The moon hath raised her lamp above." The turn was well received, the latter duet going exceptionally well. Mr. Robert Allington controls the orchestra with care, and Mr. Francis Winchcombe acts with tact and courtesy as assistant-manager.

"WE DON'T WANT TO FIGHT."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I read with much interest the letter from Mr. J. W. Rowley in your issue of June 16. The song that "made" Macdermott was, as the writer of the letter says, "The Scamp," and, one might add, it was the best song that its fortunate singer ever had. This ditty, written by the late Henry Pettitt, was only second in popularity to Hunt's chef-d'œuvre, "We don't want to fight," whilst Macdermott's "swell" creation, "I'll strike you with a feather," made his third big hit. In a collection of old comic song-covers I find a capital picture of Macdermott in the character of "The Scamp," one of Alfred Concanen's cleverest productions in the way of frontispieces. "Jingo Mac" is there depicted as a smug, soberly-attired individual, but the song-verses reveal the fact that his methods and dealings are scarcely in keeping with his highly respectable, not to say clerical, appearance. The "scamp's" redeeming feature, however, is his candour, callous though it be:—

Oh! if there was ever a scamp,
I flatter myself I am he,
From William the Norman, to Brigham the Mormon,
They can't hold a candle to me.

By the way, Sir, your correspondent was, if I am not mistaken, the only music-hall "star" who, during the "Jingo" wave, or the reaction thereafter, ventured to say—or to sing—something on the other side. As I write, I have before me Mr. Rowley's song, "Gladstone, or The Tide's on the Turn," the frontispiece of which shows a remarkably good likeness of the Grand Old Man. Thus runs the prophetic refrain:—

The Jingoes may laugh, they may bluster, they may "chaff,"
But the tide's on the turn, never fear;
In the good times of peace, they'll in wisdom increase:
Then they'll give William Gladstone a cheer.

Yours truly,
W. E. IMESON.

THE MUSIC-HALL SICK FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Kindly allow me to supplement your report of our last committee meeting by mentioning a case which appears to have caused in certain quarters some discussion which may possibly prove damaging to the society, of which I have the honour to be president, if left unexplained. Unhappily, a member of the Fund recently took his own life, and a claim was made by the widow for the £10 which is in ordinary cases paid on the death of a member. But, deeply as the Committee sympathised with the applicant, and with every desire to assist her, they found that as members of a duly registered friendly society they were debarred by law from handing her the death grant. I enclose herewith a copy of Rule 3, par. 4, which states that payment is made in all cases with the one exception of a death from suicide. This rule has been in existence since the formation of the Society in 1867, and the Committee were bound by it.—Yours faithfully,

PAT CAREY.

HORACE WHEATLEY IN DUBLIN.

Among an extremely clever company of variety artists at the Tivoli last night Horace Wheatley was the great attraction. His abilities as a raconteur of humorous stories are well known and appreciated in Dublin and elsewhere, while his Irish songs are most catching, and his dancing is simply marvellous. He was encored again and again, each time delighting the audiences.—Irish Times, June 19, 1906.

That Horace Wheatley's great popularity in Dublin has not waned during his all too long absence from the city was forcibly demonstrated by the magnificent reception accorded him at the Tivoli last night. He told stories of his friend M'Intyre in that fresh and racy style so characteristic of him, and his dancing has lost none of its sprightliness. At the end of his three songs he was loudly called upon for an encore.—Mail, Dublin, June 20, 1906.

AFTER calls and recalls in the "second house" at the Walthamstow Palace on Monday night, Miss Marie Lloyd was presented with a handsome bouquet, which was handed to her across the footlights amidst the cheers of a crowded audience.

MR. AND MRS. WALTER DE FRECE (Miss Vesta Tilley) sailed from America per ss. Celtic on Friday, the 15th inst., and will therefore be in England by the time these lines catch the eyes of our readers, among whom the popular couple number a legion of friends.

MR. AND MRS. GEO. CHIRGWIN, who are giving a garden party to their friends on Sunday at Easdale, Streatham Hill, S.W., have arranged for a billiard match, 250 up, all in, "nothing barred," between Mr. Joe Elvin and Mr. Wal Pink. This sporting event, which is sure to excite immense interest, will take place in Mr. Chirgwin's handsome billiard-room. The match is for £10 a-side. The first contestant who succeeds in beating the record break of the room will receive a handsome silver cup, given by Mrs. Chirgwin. The stakeholder is to be Mr. John Barton, the referee Mr. Harry Tate—the "garrulous golfer"—and the marker Mr. Mike Conway.

THE SWANBOROUGH MATINEE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I want to thank you on behalf of the Committee and my good friend the beneficiaire for your sympathetic article appearing in your issue of the 16th inst. I ask your permission to tender my thanks to the ladies and gentlemen of the dramatic and music hall professions, who have agreed to give their services, and of which I enclose you a list, as well as the General Committee list, and through your columns I would make it known that we shall be glad to receive subscriptions and applications for tickets right up to the day, and that for subscriptions the list will be kept open up to and including August 6. At foot please find list of subscriptions received to date.

I take little or no interest in testimonials or benefits, &c., of which one way or another we get more than enough, but I have taken a particular interest in this matter for our old manager at Chelsea, who has earned during his services with us our affection, esteem, and respect.

I would not have troubled you with this letter, but I dictate it from a bed of serious illness, which deprives me of all interference with any business communications, and as I have taken the lead in this matter, I hope that your friend and my friend, "Teddy Swanborough," will not suffer from my illness or my absence.—I am, yours faithfully,

HENRI GROS.

THE performer Kioto, who was arrested in Northampton on the 12th inst., is in no way connected with the Original Kyoto, who has suffered considerable annoyance through the case owing to the similarity of name.

SERVAIS LE ROY.

Probably Servais Le Roy is one of the cleverest "mystery" men at present before the public, and his show now being submitted at the Alhambra Theatre literally "takes one's breath away." The speed at which the entertainment is taken, the remarkable element of novelty and perfection, and the weird effects, all tend to induce such a state of bewilderment in the mind of the onlooker that when the show finishes there exists a keen desire to see it again. This latter is the showman's secret. To invent an entertainment which the public enjoy repeatedly is the art of the true performer, an art acquired by an exceedingly small minority.

LE ROY, TALMA, AND BOSCO.

Servais Le Roy "knows his book," and in Mlle. Talma, the Vital Spark among magicians, and Leon Bosco, the genial humourist, he has colleagues who play into his hands with that acumen and ability born of long experience and association. To see these three producing rabbits, ducks, geese, pigeons (and we should not be surprised if an ostrich or two were ultimately introduced) from small vessels, and, in fact, nowhere, is too wonderful for words. People simply gasp with utter amazement, and before they can wink other rollicking feats almost beyond description are trotted out with a coolness and decision that positively electrifies onlookers. There is no waiting. One moment "the World's Monarchs of Magic" are producing scores of poultry from goodness knows where, and ere we have had time to think how it is done we are fairly staggered to find the lively three amongst us in the auditorium chaffing us in merry spirit, and under our very noses doing such wonderful tricks that we feel constrained to vote the "Comédians de Mephisto Co." the most successful dissipators of sorrow we have come into close contact with.

Le Roy believes in influencing good, honest laughter, and one has only to witness the entertainment of Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco to become immediately assured that there is no doubt whatever hereon. After coming amongst us, Le Roy appears on the stage with his two colleagues for his coup de grâce, which consists of vanishing Talma in full view of the audience. The charming and alert lady is first hynotised, after which she ascends in the air, and there remains without any visible means of support. Then, hey, presto! nothing remains, and—we look in vain for Mlle. Talma.

It is only natural in witnessing such a performance that there should lurk in the recesses of our minds the notion that we have been caught napping; we accordingly decide to see the show again, with our wits specially sharpened for the occasion. But each time we become more and more mystified, until we feel bound to admit that Servais Le Roy is one too many for us, and we reluctantly abandon all ideas of elucidating his mysteries. Besides being a staunch advocate of laughter, Le Roy firmly believes in constant change of programme, and the result is that when one show is in thorough working order he is experimenting on new feats of skill. During the twenty-six years Servais Le Roy has been performing in public he has invented hundreds of tricks, many, of course, taking months to reach to that degree of perfection which enables the adroit entertainer to deceive his audience.

There can be no possible doubt that the art of legerdemain will ever be an attractive one to humanity. The great difficulty at all times is to invent something entirely new, effective, and novel, as this is positively the only method to make the conjurer's entertainment attractive, and in this department the efforts of Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco may be termed eminently satisfactory.

Servais Le Roy has in prospective many new departures even more astounding than those at present or gone before, so we may confidently anticipate further great successes in the near future for this enterprising and versatile illusionist.

It is interesting to learn that wherever Le Roy's trio reappear on a return visit they invariably renew acquaintance with the people who have patronised them previously, and who bring along with them "expert" friends (many of them passable amateur conjurers) in the hope that the tricks of Le Roy may be explained. But, alas! for their hopes, "the quickness of the hand deceives the eye"; and although Le Roy and his companions insist that the tricks are very easy (when you know how to execute them), the would-be "exposes" depart, and return and depart again and again, fairly and squarely beaten by the artistic, scientific, and quaint tricks and illusions conceived by Servais Le Roy and presented with such irresistible spirit by Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco, "the World's Monarchs of Magic."

MASKELYNE AND DEVANT'S mysteries are so greatly in demand at seaside resorts that the season at St George's Hall will finish to-day. England's Home of Mystery will reopen on Bank Holiday, Aug. 6, with a new programme.

MR. GEO. F. SLATTER, the acting-manager at the Walthamstow Palace, leaves to-day (Saturday) for a fortnight's much-needed holiday and rest.

THE animated pictures at the Empire, Middlesbrough, have now been running seven years, which we believe constitutes a record for the provinces. Under the manipulation of Mr. G. W. Sangster the pictures are as big a draw as ever.

AT the Pier Pavilion, Portobello, on the 15th inst., on the occasion of the birthday of Mr. Phil Howard, the manager, a large company sat down to supper after the show, and dancing was enjoyed until the early hours, the music being supplied by the Pavilion orchestra. During the evening Mr. Peter Higgins, the well-known "professional publican," of Edinburgh, who officiated as chairman, presented Mr. Howard with a box of cigars from himself, and with a handsome silver-mounted walking-stick on behalf of some friends. Mr. Harry Marvello, the proprietor of the Harbour Green Pavilion, Portobello, handed to Mr. Howard a handsome dressing-case on behalf of his company, the Geisha Entertainers. Mr. Howard suitably returned thanks, and a very enjoyable night was spent.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

A dainty young lady in a dainty purple dress comes on the stage, and in a most charming manner revives the pantomime memories of last season. The lady is Miss Nancy St. John, and her mode of so pleasantly taking us back a few months is by a capital rendering of the song, "Put a little bit away for a rainy day." And before she passes from our sight she dances in most exquisite fashion to the accompaniment of the music of the song she had previously delivered. An interesting and attractive act is that of the Four Figaros, in their international songs and dances. They begin with what they call an "Echo of Switzerland," and after a change into the quaint Dutch costume—sabots, and silk hats—we are treated to a chorus better known in Holland than here. Then we are given a lively Spanish dance and song, the performers, of course, being attired in the many-coloured and bedecorated costumes which are associated with the land of bull-fights. In each of their characterisations the Figaros seem to catch the essential spirit of each country they represent. Miss Flo D'Orville appears in a rather pathetic character-study of a coster lass, who tells us that somehow she can't make up her mind when certain proposals come to her. Miss D'Orville certainly has command of the coster dialect, and her very sympathetic subject is treated with delicacy and feeling, her vocalisation being extremely good. She is a true artist, and that is saying a good deal. A musician who produces wonderful effects from novel silver bells and other instruments of a somewhat original character is Mr. Will Cornish. For instance, we have, among other things, a very delightful and tuneful instrumentation through the medium of hand-bells of "Sing me to sleep."

Mr. Alix Lukos offers an exceedingly refined turn. Imagine a fine drawing-room, old-fashioned in its appointments, and rendered cosy by a huge fire. By the side of the fire there sits a man reflectively looking into the flames. And what does he see? Pictures in the fire! They are interesting pictures round which to weave a soliloquy. The first face that comes to the dreamer by the fire is that of Lord Beaconsfield, and a famous speech is brought once more to our notice. "Peace with honour" is the burden of the address, and the dreamer, Mr. Lukos, delivers it with fine elocutionary effect. Tennyson's is the second face that is resurrected in the ashes, and a magnificent recital of "The Charge of the Light Brigade" renews one's recollections of the genius of the great Poet Laureate. And last, a celebrated singer, Signor Foley, is brought back to life just to sing "Beware" once more, and to warn us of the dangers of the deep. Mr. Lukos's "business" would tend to elevate the tone of any music hall. Miss Margaret Ashton endeavours to relieve us of our individual conceit by singing a song, the outstanding line of which runs, "You're not the only rose in the garden." The verses are most expressively and prettily rendered. The second portion of her turn consists of a new song-scena, "The Winter Girl." There is a picturesque background illustrative of snow-clad hills, icicles, &c., and in front of this Miss Ashton, appropriately dressed in white furs, which gives the aspect of Christmas-time, comes and tells us all about the class of girl—the winter one—she is supposed to represent. The scena receives much favour from the audience. Mr. Deane Tribune demonstrates considerable versatility in his "comedy concoction," Applicants. A gentleman advertises for a companion, and among the applicants are humorously-disposed persons, including an effeminate Johnny, a bellicose Scotsman, and a foreign quack-doctor, all of which characters are personated by Mr. Tribune, much to the hilarity of the spectators.

Miss Florrie Gallimore has quite hit the public fancy with her song, "If the postman doesn't rat-tat!" And the audience don't forget to join in with the rapping at the right moment, just to show their appreciation of the ditty, in which, by the way, Miss Gallimore furnishes, free of charge, some useful advice to young ladies in the gentle art of avoiding parental inquisitiveness. Her succeeding number, "I never likes to talk abart me neighbours," is a low-comedy portraiture, which affords evidence of Miss Gallimore's many-sidedness as a comedienne. She causes a good deal of merriment with her concluding item, for, in answer to several affectionate advances to the audience, a number of young men in the stalls cry out, in passionate tones, "Oh, give us a chance!" Miss Gallimore's present visit to the Stratford Empire has greatly enhanced her popularity with the patrons of this establishment. Clark and Hamilton, with all their eccentricities and whimsicalities, keep the house in convulsions. One could scarcely get tired of their quaint comedy, absurd sayings, and ridiculous antics. The conversation between the "tramp" and the lady is highly diverting, while the mannerisms of both are not less calculated to upset one's gravity. Indeed, it were a crime to keep a straight face while Clark and Hamilton stand before one's eyes. Pit and Cute submit some novel ideas in acrobatics, their different feats being smartly and neatly performed, and with remarkable precision. During the week and late in the evenings the management have considerately published the latest cricket results through the medium of the cinematograph. Mr. T. S. Mayne, the able acting-manager, looks after, in his usual courteous and tactful manner, the comfort and convenience of his patrons.

CHIRGWIN ENGAGED AT BILLIARDS AT HOME ON A FULL-SIZE BURROUGHES AND WATTS MATCH TABLE.

MR. C. DOUGLAS CARLILE, whose new sketch, Blue River Valley, is proving popular at the Foresters' this week, will produce a playlet, written by himself, and entitled Crime and the Criminal, on Monday at the Pavilion, Leicester. This will be his sixth sketch, and his versatility extends even beyond that, for on the 2nd of July he will bring out another, The Dandy Detective, at the Grand Theatre, Sheffield. In conjunction with Mr. Albert Rogers, he is now engaged upon a four-act American melodrama, Alaska, which will see its première at Stockton on August Bank Holiday.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

THE Indian cricketers and the Essex Eleven accepted the invitation of Mr. T. S. Mayne, the popular manager of the Stratford Empire, to witness the performance at this variety theatre on Friday, the 15th inst., and the presence of the teams being known to the large audience there was much enthusiasm aroused when the Bioscope displayed the closing scores of the match then in progress at the neighbouring Essex county ground.

THE first annual outing of the Executive staff of the Moss and Stoll Empires takes place on Sunday, July 8. The venue that will most probably be chosen will be Caterham Valley. The party will number fifty.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, MAY 15.—The Willoughby-Ward Comedy Company opened at the Criterion on the 12th in a farce-comedy, intituled The Man from Mexico. Miss Grace Palotta, who had an uproarious welcome from the crowded house, was vivacious and neat as Mrs. FitzHugh, and the popular Viennese was at her best all through the performance. Mr. Hugh J. Ward was full of fun as FitzHugh; and Mr. George Willoughby was the Majors' friend, whose anxiety to fix things up amounted to a mania. In this kind of mix-up part Mr. Willoughby is ever at home, and he was so on Saturday. Mr. Edward Bonfield is a valuable member of the company, and adds importance to every scene in which he is engaged. His Loveall was an enjoyable impersonation. Mr. Reginald Wykeham was the all-important Detective Cook, massive and forbidding; and the acting of Mr. J. W. Hartman as Von Bulow Bismarck Schmidt was excellent. Miss Olive Wilton used her deep chest tones with great effect as Sallie Grace; and Miss Lillian Scaife and Mr. Arthur Cornell made quite a hit in their proposal scene as Nettie Majors and Edward Farrar. Miss Edith Warren made a charming maid; and the architect's duties were undertaken by Mr. C. Warburton Gamble. Capitally staged and scrupulously well rehearsed, the new venture directed by Mr. Edwin Yeach promises to be a substantial success.

MR. BLAND HOLT keeps The Prodigal Son in his Icelandic aspect before his patrons at the Theatre Royal, and Hall Caine's fine play interests the folks so intensely that no necessity for its retirement will exist for some time to come.

MR. GEORGE STEPHENSON will close his two years' season of musical comedy to-night. Mr. Edward Lauri came out, bringing Miss May Garstang and Mr. Charles McNaughton, and engaging Miss May Beatty for a six months' season, but this has been quadrupled. Now, the four artists named return to England on the 26th, or, rather, Miss May Beatty goes there for the first time. On Saturday night The Dandy Doctor was produced, and the aglomeration of song, dance, burlesque, and uproarious fun, caught on wonderfully well. In addition to the artists already named, the Boris Brothers, Mr. Charles Albert, Miss Florence Dalley, Mr. Harold Reeve, and Miss Rosie White divided the parts amongst them with a most satisfactory result.

MR. HARRY RICKARDS has a very large company at the Tivoli just now. Baby Sutton, the Warner Sisters, Miss Nita Leete (in an illustrated march-song, "Australia"), Baby Cooper, the Carmos, Alice Raymond, Fred Bluett, Les Wharton, Slade Murray, Harry Sadler, Fanny Powers, Tambo and Tambo, Larola, Maggie Fraser, Rose Cabani, Olive Robinson, and the Mason-Keeler company. Next Saturday the duologue artists, Blake and Granby, will appear at the Tivoli.

MISS SARA HENDY has seceded from the Brescians, and the dainty singer left for London in the R.M.S. India on the 12th inst. Her place is filled by Miss Nellie Lamert, a fine singer and pianist.

MARTINI'S BUCK JUMPERS, after a twenty-seven weeks' succession of crowded houses, must close next Saturday, the 19th, because the Government requires the land for a street as an approach to the new Central Railway station.

MR. J. F. SHERIDAN is closing a record tour through New Zealand. He will arrive in Sydney about the 24th, and rest for a few weeks before going to Queensland.

THE Lyceum Hall, late theatre, has a series of cinematographic entertainments going on from week to week.

THE Brough-Flemming Comedy Company did fine business in Brisbane, Mrs. Robert Brough having a cordial reception on her first appearance since her talented husband's decease.

MESSRS. CLYDE MEYNELL AND JOHN GUNN'S Fatal Wedding season at the Criterion was a phenomenal one. On every night but one many people were turned away. The excellent acting of little Maisie Posner as the child Jessie, and the children's scene, were the chief attractions.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The students' orchestral concert was given on Wednesday evening in the large hall of the City of London School, a large audience being present. The concert began with Mozart's concerto for piano and orchestra, No. 20 in D minor. Miss Alice Neilsen, who was responsible for the solo instrument, played in a neat and finished manner, though at times slightly overpowered by the orchestra, which, however, showed greater restraint in Weber's fine concertstück, the pianoforte portion being admirably interpreted by Mr. Arthur L'Estrange; and still better work was done by the orchestra in Mendelssohn's overture "Meeresstille" (Calm sea and prosperous voyage), which was rendered in a really harmonious and able style. Miss Elizabeth Tarttelin gave evidence of good vocal training, though somewhat severely tried by the difficulties of the recit. and air "Open on to me the gates of righteousness" and "I will extol Thee, O Lord" from Costa's Eli. Handel's recitative and air "Armida! dispietata" and "Lascia ch'io pianga" were expressively sung by Miss Alice Stroud, who possesses a fine and most promising contralto voice. Both these vocal items were most carefully accompanied by the orchestra. Dr. Cummings conducted, and the concert, though brief, proved interesting in showing the great advance the orchestral students are making.

A vocal recital by the pupils of Mr. Walter Austin took place at the above institution on Thursday evening, June 14. The recital commenced with the duet "The Rose and the Nightingale" (Löhr), carefully sung by Miss Elmes and Miss Gladys French; Miss Freda Gratton also merited praise for her song "To the Night," by Bohm. Mr H. E. B. Sewell was not quite so successful as he would have been in a more attractive song than Whinfield's "To Althea." Mr. Robert Young and Miss Evelyn Bendy, both clever pupils of Mr. Austin, deserved commendation, the former in Verdi's Recit and Aria "O tu Palermo" and the latter in "Lovers in the Lane," by Liza Lehmann; but Miss Alice Dixon partly failed to get the true effect out of "A Southern Song," by Landon Ronald. A more ambitious example was afforded by Miss Elmes, who chose Gounod's Recit and Aria, "Since yesterday, I've sought in vain my master," but she needs greater experience before attempting music of this character. In Tosti's song, "Mattinata," Mr. Josef Kiesewetter marred the effect by faulty intonation. A long, but not particularly interesting duet, Kashmiri love story, "On Jhelum River," by Findon, was well sung by Miss Evelyn Bendy and Miss Alice Stroud; the latter young lady, one of Mr. Austin's most gifted pupils, being also heard in Gluck's "Che farò," which, however hackneyed an air among students, served to display Miss Stroud's fine contralto voice to great advantage. Miss Beatrice Ditton greatly pleased by her finished singing of Maude White's charming song "To Mary," and Miss Gladys French received a hearty recall after her rendering of "Tu fai la superbetta," Fesch's aria. More light and shade was required in Mr. Ernest Muriel's otherwise meritorious singing of "The Pipes of Pan" (Elgar). Other pupils that did credit to their professor were Mr. R. Young, Miss A. Dixon, Miss E. Tubb, and Mr. B. Wyatt. Mr. Walter Austin presided at the pianoforte.

THE annual cricket match between Huntsmen and Jockeys will take place on Monday at Kennington Oval. The teams are invited later to visit the Empire, boxes having been placed at their disposal by the directors.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

BIRMINGHAM FAIR, for the Whitsuntide holidays, was, as usual, under the excellent management of P. Collins, the principal novelties being provided by the well-known Walsall firm. Their exhibits were Mrs. Fanny Collins's celebrated theatre of varieties and up-to-date cinématograph films; Patrick Collins, jun.'s, Coliseum of Animated Photography—the No. 2 concern; ten of their high-class machines were on the ground. These included John Collins's switchback, ostriches, and steam yachts; Patrick Collins's gondolas, switch-back, gallopers, steam horses, ostriches, and steam yachts. The other machine sets were two by Russell, steam horses and gallopers; Chas. Farrell, with galloping horses; and Jervis, with steam swings.

SEDGWICK'S menagerie was a great attraction. John Hastings, two ground booths; Chas. Farrell, cinématograph; Wright's fine art exhibition. The athletes and boxers were the troupe under the direction of H. Cullis, Frank Gess, and Gal Hague. The shooting ranges and bottle batteries were those of Messrs. Dobson, Ford, Wyatt, Farrell, Wright, and Cartwright; Emma sheets, coker sheets, and varieties by Messrs. Cordwell, Deeks, Mercer, Humphries, Wharton, and Cooper. The other fair-ground novelties, pannum, and other stalls were provided by Messrs. Wright, Groom, Mercer, Cordwell and Son, Deek, Hastings, Russell, Humphries, Cooper, Dobson, Ford, Whyatt, Dillon, and others.

OUR correspondent on the Yorkshire round sends us word of Ossett Feast. Here, for the delight of the feasters, were Crighton's cinématograph and variety theatre; G. T. Tuby's coliseum; the freak exhibits of Sam Towers—the midget ponies, giant rodents, badgers, and canine marvels; Prof. Permane's performing bears and circus; and Mrs. Birch's swimming experts.

THE machine list included J. W. Waddington's motor-cars; T. Harnier's flying motors; Ted Morley's slipping the slope; Tuby's galloping horses; J. W. Waddington's ostriches; A. Morley's steam swings; Mrs. Thomas's miniature motor-cars and three sets of gem swings; T. Proctor, A. Morley, and Mrs. Riley, with high-fliers and park swings. The excellent fairing bazaars of Messrs. Gledstone, Alf Seed and Sons, and the pannum stalls—six in number—were by local caterers. The rifle ranges and bottle batteries were by Messrs. Holdsworth, Jameson, and Williams. There were also some forty or more throwing games, varieties, &c.

AT St. Ives, Hunts, the amusements were in the capable hands of the local showman Rich, who provided park swings and throwing games.

ROTHWELL FAIR, near Kettering, was maintained by Thurston's motors, horses, and ostriches, and midget switchback; Billing's galloping horses; Tiller's mechanical mannikins and bioscope; Thurston's grand Royal show; Hughes' assault-at-arms; and other attractions. The proclamation of the fair for five days was read by Mr. Willis, who has performed that ceremony for no less than forty years.

MR. A. TILLER'S mechanical mannikins and bioscope and variety exhibition are giving high-class performances at Corby.

AT the Royal Hotel Yard, Redditch, Mr. F. M. Barber, with his auction pavilion, is paying a return visit.

AT Jennings's Alexandra Theatre, Evesham, this week, the local play The Needle-Maker and Maria Martin; or, The Murder in the Red Barn, have been played.

FOSSETT'S London circus and hippodrome has paid a visit to Astwood Bank, and given an excellent programme, including Dick Turpin's Ride to York, the Lola troupe of acrobats, Lorenzo's trained dogs, Mr. R. Yelding (champion jockey), Thomas Fossett (boy jockey), Bros. La Perch (pole climbers), a cake walk by Miss Fossett and Red Hot, and Professor Morris with his bioscope.

AT Bidford were Clarke's racing motors, park swings, shooting saloons, bottle battery, and coker-nut sheets; Wilson's shooting saloons, Chipperfield's hall of laughter, Kemp's bazaars, and others.

THE fairs ahead for next week are Bridgwater, Bromsgrove, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Halifax, Pershore, Yeovil, Bolton-by-Bolland, Folkestone, Saltash, Andover, Bicester, Fareham, Reedham, Ashover, Barlboro', Belper, Brampton, Conisboro' Feast, Duckmanton, Earby Feast, Eckington, Edensor, Elmton, Northedge, Penistone, Stainsby, Tibshelf, and Winster. In Scotland, Fraserburgh, Renfrew, and Perth; and in Wales, Lydney and Ton-y-Pandy.

BRIDGWATER is a market town in Somerset. It is well served by the Great Western Railway, with branches in connection with the Midland and London and South-Western. The first charter was granted by King John, and much improved and enlarged by succeeding Monarchs. Bridgwater has a population of 15,000 inhabitants, and holds its markets on Wednesday and Saturday.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, a thriving town with a population of over 264,000, is situated on the North-Eastern Railway, and is well served by branch lines to all parts of England. William II. granted its first charter, but there were no less than thirty-four granted altogether. Newcastle is a town of many industries, principally coal, and contains one of the largest engine factories in Europe, and the shipping trade is extensive. General markets are held on Tuesday and Saturday.

HALIFAX, a large manufacturing town in the West Riding of Yorkshire, has an excellent service of trains, supplied by the Lancashire and Yorkshire and Great Northern Railways. It was not incorporated by charter till 1848. The population is nearly 105,000, and markets are held on Saturday.

YEOVIL, a market town in Somerset, is noted chiefly for its large glove manufacture, in which most of the inhabitants are engaged. It is a junction on the Great Western and South-Western Railways. Fairs are held twice annually, and general markets three times a week. Its population is about 10,000.

FOLKESTONE, a thriving seaport and market town of Kent, is one of the principal stations on the South-Eastern Railway, and to the energy and activity of this company owes much of its present prosperity, on account of its being the company's harbour of embarkation, and landing to and from the Continent. Folkestone has received many charters, the ruling one being granted by Edward II.; the market is held on Saturday, and the population is 39,000.

AT Melton Mowbray, for the recent fair, the exhibitions were Holland's cinematograph and the fine art galleries of Messrs. Simpson and Brown. Neal, the local caterer, had galloping horses, swings, rifle saloon, and throwing games on the ground. Armstrong had big boats and park swings. The other entertainers with shooting concerns, cokers, and throwing games were Messrs. Morgan, Holland, Rudal, Neals, and Bland.

SUBSCRIPTIONS to Guild funds:—Per Mr. Ashington. C. Johnson, 5s.; Wm. Blackburn, 5s.; S. Doubtfire, 5s.

ANDOVER, a market town of Hampshire, was incorporated by charter of Henry I., and confirmed by many succeeding Monarchs. The chief trade is in corn and malt, and it has a population of over 6000. It is a station on the South-Western Railway, and a junction of the Midland and South-Western Railways.

OUTWOOD, near Wakefield, keeps its feast the second week after Trinity. The principal exhibition was Harry Ashington's celebrated theatre of varieties and cinematograph, introducing the latest marvel in animated photography, "phantom photos," the throwing of pictures on the housetops, over the heads of people on the fair-ground, a wierd and astounding development of film work. Kil Johnson's flying motors, Doubtfire's hobby horses, Mrs. Thomas's gem motors, and Johnson and Thomas's sets of park swings were the machine novelties. The shooting range and the bottle batteries were provided by T. Goodall. The other amusement caterers were Messrs. Miller, Bassett, Vanner, Rhodes, Brogden, Towers, Doubtfire, Thomas, and Goodall.

THE LATE JOHN DEE HUMPHREYS.

The letter from Mr. Arthur Reeve, published in our columns recently draws attention to the necessity for helping Mrs. Humphreys and her family. We strongly commend this most deserving case to the generosity of the showman world.

The many friends of the deceased, who was one of the founders of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, will, we are confident, now that they know the urgent necessity of the case, respond with readiness to this appeal.

During the whole course of a laborious and honourable career John Dee Humphreys was ever ready to assist his brother showmen. His open-handed generosity and unfailing kindness endeared him to a wide circle of friends and comrades in the circus and show world.

The object of the fund is to enable the widow and family to maintain their home until such time as the children are able to earn an income sufficient for that purpose.

DEFENCE OF CORNISH FAIRS AND SHOWMEN.

In very marked and pleasing contrast to the state of public opinion with reference to fairs and showmen in Cornwall a dozen years ago is the better mind that exists to-day. The Showmen's Guild has not been able to do more than co-operate with, and, in some measure, strengthen the zeal and enterprise of a few independent workers in the showman world in the Duchy. Chief amongst these must be placed that noble-hearted champion of showmen, Mr. Geoffrey W. A. Norton, of Penzance, hon. member of the Guild, and correspondent of The Era Showman World for Cornwall and the West.

Mr. Norton wields an able pen, and often has he used it in the defence of the showman's home life and business. The following correspondence has appeared in the Truro papers. We think our Cornish showmen have reason to be thankful for the altered states of public opinion.

(TO THE EDITOR OF THE "WESTERN MORNING NEWS.")

TRURO FAIR.

SIR,—There are evils too local to call for protest from the highest religious authorities, which are yet grave enough to draw remonstrance from some one who ministers in sacred things.

Now, it cannot be denied that the annual fair which visits Truro is associated with a considerable amount of harm. In itself, of course, a fair may afford opportunities of amusement which are innocent. Nor can we wonder that the young people should look forward to the arrival of such with keen anticipation. While, further, there will be connected with it a proportion of people whose hearts are honest and good.

Nevertheless, what, as a matter of fact, do we see at fair-time? In our city, where, at other seasons, during four years I have only observed one drunken person in the street, you may see many who are the worse for drink; where, apart from it, I have never seen a drunken woman, you may note several who are in drink; where, at the different hours of the day, you will not have forced upon your attention forms of evil, worse than drunkenness, you cannot avoid the knowledge that, while the fair is in progress, the streets of the city are infested with it. If less serious than all this, it was distressing to witness in the early hours of a Sunday last year, how, notwithstanding the day and its claims, the roundabouts were still in full swing. As citizens we cannot disown a measure of responsibility for the consequences of what we allow. Certainly, we are in duty bound to pray that our people will be kept from what is bad and mischievous at this time. According to our opportunities we should do our best to protect the young. Parents who permit their children to remain late at the fair are guilty of something more serious than culpable negligence. Employers who take no pains to watch over young domestic servants must needs incur what they will have to answer for. Those who are conscious of a strong call to special work for others will seek ways by which they may lessen temptation for them, and help them avoid what will hurt more deeply than disappointment. At these places there are always wolves waiting to devour their prey. The servants of One who laid down His life to save His sheep and lambs from these and their like will admit the duty of coming to the rescue. The fair is again upon us, and I ask you, sir, of your kindness, to publish this letter concerning it.

GERALD V. SAMPSON.

Kenwyn, Truro, June 5.

SIR,—As an hon. member of the Showmen's Guild—a trades union protecting the interests of the 70,000 showpeople engaged in the fair business throughout the British Isles—I cannot allow Canon Sampson's letter, in your issue of yesterday, to pass unchallenged.

It is so grossly unfair to the travellers that I cannot avoid coming to the conclusion that the rev. gentleman, in his capacity of Canon Missioner, has not taken the trouble to visit the showpeople, and so learn what kind of people they are who yearly bring what he considers an infliction upon Truro.

From my own personal knowledge I can guarantee that he would find what would probably surprise him—a great respect for the truths of their religion and for the marriage tie, and a love and care for children that might well be emulated by some of the citizens of Truro.

If drunkenness and impurity exist when the fair comes to Truro, the fault does not lie at the showman's door, but rather at that of the Church, which has failed to inculcate the contrary virtues. No showman visiting the West of England would wantonly introduce what was "bad and mischievous." There is too much intolerance exhibited against a class of people so frequently and unjustly maligned and misunderstood. To me, knowing so well as I do the hardships and trials of the travellers' lives, it is something little short of marvellous that they are, for the most part, the men they are, and this, despite the Church which taboos the local feast and too often treats the showman, who, it must be remembered, brings a splash of colour into the countryman's otherwise humdrum life, as a social pariah. A little more charity, Canon Sampson, if you please.

GEOFFREY W. A. NORTON,

Beachfield Hotel, Penzance, June 7.

SIR,—The letter you publish to-day from the Canon Missioner on the above subject is, to say the least of it, unfortunate, and, I do not hesitate to add, sadly lacking in tact and Christian charity.

Two charges are made in his letter against us during this fair time, viz., those of drunkenness and immorality. It would have been wise of this missioner of "peace on earth and goodwill towards men" had carefully satisfied himself ere making his rash statements. Feeling that the fair name of my native city was attacked, I inquired this morning at the police-office, and was told that not one single case of drunkenness was reported during last year's pleasure fair. Is it not natural, I ask your readers, that feelings of indignation should arise at such a misleading statement appearing?

Concerning the second charge, of immorality, Truro will gladly face an investigation, and, even at this fair time, to mistake the innocent frivolity and ardour of youth for darker intentions is an error one would hardly anticipate from the servant of One who said: "Neither do I condemn thee."

When Canon Mason was missioner of the diocese and Canon C. Fox Harvey rector of Truro, these two gentlemen held services for the men and women associated with the fair, and those services were well attended. I would humbly suggest to the Canon Missioner that to follow such a course would become him better than his ill-judged efforts in the columns of the Press.

EDWARD FORBES WHITLEY.

Woodville, Truro, June 7.

SIR,—It would grieve me to hurt the feelings of Mr. Norton or Mr. Whitley or any other of my fellow-townsmen. Neither they nor others would, however, experience any wounded feeling if they recognised that I am not a critic speaking from outside, but one of themselves, sharing their responsibility, and working in and on behalf of the city for which we all care. If my letter seemed to show want of sympathy I am sorry. Mr. Geoffrey Norton misunderstands my meaning. I said no word against the fair in itself, except with regard to the use of the roundabouts very early on a Sunday morning; still less did I write against the showmen and salesmen of the fair. How good these can be I know. When living in London my wife and I received at our house a performer from a local fair, and in Gloucester the leading man of the fair was glad to be shown over the Cathedral and to arrange for an outdoor service on the Sunday. A thing may be an occasion of evil without being itself evil, and it was in the hope of doing something to prevent the fair from being even an occasion of evil that I wrote. Mr. Whitley evidently thinks that I was writing from hearsay. As a matter of fact, during fair-time last year I was engaged with other men and some ladies and workers in trying to prevent the drinking and immorality which are always commoner at these seasons than most everywhere. They and I had the evidence of our eyes and ears as to the prevalence of what I have said.

Mr. Whitley will also allow me to tell him that I invited to a small meeting last year some of our laymen best acquainted with Truro, and took counsel with them as to the possibility of holding religious services at the fair. I was instructed, however, that as the fair would be leaving on Sunday morning it would be useless to attempt these, and, I was told, might do more harm than good.

The tone of your correspondents' letters on the subject of the fair makes me fear that I must have expressed myself clumsily, as, alas! I have done before. But I hope they will believe me when I say that I wrote, much against the grain, from a strong sense of responsibility, and with the wish to remind myself, as well as others, of the importance of doing all we can for the good name and fame of our city.

GERALD V. SAMPSON.

Kenwyn, Truro, June 8.

SIR,—As another honorary member of the Showman's Guild, I am greatly interested in the correspondence in your columns concerning Truro Fair. The impression formed in my mind on reading the Canon's first letter was exactly that which Mr. Geof. Norton voiced so ably, but I am exceedingly glad that Canon Sampson has made the amende honourable. His manly letter of explanation and open acknowledgment of what I had ventured to hope had been but an unfortunate method of expression, clears the atmosphere considerably. The result of the correspondence is truly happy, inasmuch as showmen now may know they have another friend in the Church, where travellers' friends are all too scarce.

ALFRED LANGLEY.

Sea View Hotel, Downderry, St. Germans.
June 9.

CINDERFORD FAIR, in the Royal Forest of Dean, was held on Monday, in brilliant weather, on the new fair ground near the Railway Hotel. W. Symonds' four-abreast galloping horses, Sedgwick's No. 1 collection of wild beasts, Biddall's Royal bioscope and living pictures, Chipperfield's grand exhibition of living pictures, Sutton's overboats and swings, Powell and Sutton's shooters, Buckley's bottle smashers, cokernut sheet by Wright, and a host of small stalls did good business.

LORD JOHN SANGER AND SON'S Royal Circus is now touring the Far West of England, and this week paid a two days' visit to Penzance. The Great Western Railway made special arrangements to run late motors after the evening performances to the remote neighbourhoods of St. Just and Marazion. Other Cornish, Devon, and Dorset towns will be visited by the circus.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

THE Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra will give three concerts, under the conductorship of Herr Schalk, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings in Queen's Hall and on Saturday at the Albert Hall. The hour of the last concert has been changed to noon by command of the King, who has expressed his intention to be present. The orchestra is recognised as one of the finest on the Continent, and is the leading factor in Viennese musical life. It was conducted for many years by Dr. Richter, under whom it attained its greatest eminence. The expenses of the visit are being defrayed by Dr. Krupp, and the proceeds of the concerts are to be devoted to charity.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—PIER PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—One of the best variety entertainments ever produced here is being submitted this week, the programme meeting with a most spontaneous reception. The chief attraction undoubtedly is that of the Elliotts and Savonas, and in their marvellous musical act they hold the audience with rapt attention and fascination; their exceptionally well-rendered selections proving them to be musicians of considerable repute. They are equally successful in their great cycle-act, when they provide a skilful and really interesting entertainment. The reception given these talented artists is enthusiastic. Miss Florence in her celebrated illustrated songs is heard to advantage, and Professor Vincent as an illusionist, and in his card tricks proves interesting. The Urban Bioscope has a capital series of pictures, and the Red Band, under the bâton of the Acting-Manager, discourses excellent selections.

THE KURSAAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon.—The Variety Theatre produces an excellent programme this week, and meets with general approval. The Brothers Shine are good as eccentric comedians; Charles Grey is a descriptive vocalist; Susie Marney, character vocalist, gains rapturous applause; the comedy sketches given by Flo Penley and George English are well and humorously rendered; the Ottaways as musical cowboys win well-merited praise; the Weimars, speciality acrobatic artistes, are smart and clever; and Flo Penley entertains as comedienne; the Café Chantant entertainment is contributed by Mr. Harry Cardow, comedian; Mr. Ryder Davis, descriptive vocalist; Miss Eva Ward, burlesque artiste; Mr. George Barriscale, baritone vocalist; and Miss Gwennie Stevenson, who gives pianoforte selections; Professor Fluffem and his troupe of litle Arabs perform in the Hippodrome, and wrestling matches are also witnessed here; Galatea, the mystic marvel; Mons. Beaute, the Continental fasting champion; Chung Foo Soo, the Royal Chinese magician, and slipping the slip, are other attractions.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Owners, the Southend-on-Sea Empire Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power. — The engagament of Mr. Frank Bertram's company in the comedy, entitled The New Clown, is proving very popular this week, and the play is presented with success. Mr. Ernest Spalding, as Lord Cyril Garston, is good, whilst Mr. Cyril Vernon creditably enacts Captain Jack Trent; as Mr. Dixon, Mr. Alec Flood gives a pleasing exposition of the circus proprietor, and is ably assisted by Mr. A. M. Moore as Thomas Baker, his characterisation of the clown being both pleasing and humorous; Mr. Gerald Clarke causes amusement as Mr. Pennyquick, and Mr. Douglas Payne is decidedly good as Billy; Rosie Platt finds in Miss Celestine Bertram a clever exponent, who is successful in her endeavours.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Messrs. A. Northway and W. V. Garrod's company is here this week for the first time in the interesting drama The Prodigal Parson. Mr. Garrod sustains the title-rôle excellently; Jaggins has a competent exponent in Mr. Alfred Northway; Miss Bertha Kingston is well cast as Fern, the parson's wife; Miss Gladys Conover is good as the blind child Myrtle, and the remaining rôles are in safe hands.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs T. Barrasford, Will Sley, and F. Wilmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—The principal attraction here is Mr. Charles Majilton and company in the sketch The Plumber, which causes roars of laughter; Stylo performs some wonderful feats with hoops; the Ockeys secure much favour as banjoists; Miss Bella Seabourne is a popular comedienne; Akbar is an expert gymnast; Ward and Davis cause much hilarity in their scena The Typist, and the Bioscope with fresh pictures is well received.

STOCKPORT. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. William Revill. — The many exciting incidents in Her Lost Self have suited the popular taste here this week, Miss Frances Delaval's company giving excellent representations of the drama. Mr. Percy Carne Warum acts impressively as Wilford Daventry, and Mr. Alfred Brandon displays merit as Norman Esmond. As Victor Elsworth, Mr. Fred Lillywhite admirably presents the character, and Mr. L. W. Halfpenny impersonates the part of Abraham Cohen with ability; Mr. Horace Buckley as Tom Flyaway is very amusing, whilst Miss Nell Ingram is good in the character of Bridget Malone. In the chief part, that of Philipine Marcel, Miss Frances Delaval acts throughout with much power and effect.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black. —The chief attraction here this week is the Martelloni troupe of acrobats, whose marvellously clever feats have commanded enthusiastic applause. Among others engaged are Satsuma, an exceedingly smart conjuror; The Strads, entertaining musical sketch artistes; Silly Billy Elliott, in amusing patter and song; Doris Lillian, a pleasing comedienne and acrobatic dancer; Fred Mason, the whistling comedian; the Three McDonalds, who are successful in their novel musical act; J. G. Aitken, comedian; and Fred S. Peake and Co. in a dramatic sketch, The Hypocrite, admirably presented and favoured by marked appreciation.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. George and Robert A. Nicholson; Manager, Mr. Wm. Ainsworth.—Gustave Fasola, magician, tops the bill; the Lizette troupe of lady acrobats give a very entertaining show; the smartness of Selby and Myers earned merited applause, whilst McCann's dogs are well worth seeing; Rodin, trick cyclist, causes plenty of fun; Bert Byrne, comedian, scores; Vasey and Ramsey, eccentrics, Reilly and Taylor, Elsie Rubina, and Bertha Norwod complete a good programme.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—A sketch, entitled Three of a Kind, with Miss Ethel Arden as Mrs. Whimpers, tops the bill; H. O. Wills is a comedian with a style all his own; the Marlo and Dunham trio are exceptionally clever, whilst the smartness of Henry Bekker, conjurer, earns applause; Ford and Hanson, musicians; Hector and Paulas, comedy acrobats; Lily Currie, vocalist; and Barney Salmon, a local soldier vocalist, complete a good programme.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—Mlle. Von-Etta heads the bill this week in her interesting turn, her clever illusions and quick changes being much appreciated; the Grovini Family, in their acrobatic tumbling, &c., contribute a turn of excellence; Harry Hayton is a good comedian; the Davenports are magicians of ability; Kavados juggles and balances admirably; Mint and Mart, in a paper-tearing turn, are capital; Flo Melville is a smart comedienne; Johnny Chippendale is a clever comedian; and the pictures are excellent.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Mr. Manners has put on another strong variety entertainment here this week. The feature of a capital programme is undoubtedly the excellent performance given by The Ettenas, their work being novel, clever, and very amusing; while Cinizelli's acrobatic work is particularly smart; the appearance of the smart clog-dancer, Nat Randall, is greatly appreciated; a bright and pleasing turn is that of Miss Harriet Fawn, a talented artist, and Mr. Loveden Plass, who undertakes the duties of stage-manager, is also a fine baritone vocalist. Other turns that gained deserving applause are James, a wonderful bone soloist, Sisters Beatrice, Nat and Doris, Elsie Le Var, and the Empire Bioscope.

TORQUAY.—PRINCESS PIER CONCERT HALL.—Proprietors, the Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. A. T. Tremlett.—The Koncert Komedy Kompany, under the direction of Mr. Flockton-Foster, is here this week, and on Monday an enthusiastic audience was provided with a good evening's entertainment. Mr. Flockton-Foster does well in his humorous songs, and his monologues are rendered in an able manner. Miss Rita Vincent displays much talent, and is accorded well-merited applause; Mr. Arnold Richardson does not fail in his aim as a humourist; whilst Miss Eileen Hope and Miss Ethel Longdale are worthy of mention; Mr. Ernie Le Butt is an instrumentalist and comedian of ability, being seen to particular advantage in the song scena, The Registrar.

WAKEFIELD. — HIPPODROME. — Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—John Higgins, champion jumper, heads the bill this week, and contributes a clever turn; Hanvaar and Lee, as the golfer and the maid, prove popular; Will Rain and company are funny in a sketch entitled A Motor Maniac; the Brothers Onda are smart acrobats; Achilles, strong man; Wee Jessie, juvenile vocalist; and Gillin, ventriloquist, win favour.

WALSALL. — HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LTD. — General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Hermann Melot heads the bill here this week, and completely mystifies the audience with his conjuring; Dot Stevens, juvenile vocalist, is well received; Mary Merry is amusing; Monsieur Albany, ventriloquist, gives an enjoyable turn; Rita and Roma, duettists and dancers, are distinctly popular; Harwood's Juveniles give a pleasing entertainment, The Children's Christmas Tree; and the Bros. Damm go through a clever performance on the bar; the Royal Wedding of Queen Ena and King Alfonso, shown on the American Bioscope, proves a great attraction.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—The musical comedy, The Naval Detective, was played here on Monday, and two following evenings. Mr. F. J Kirke displays great ability in the title-rôle; Miss Violet English as Pearl and Miss Lillie English as Ruby (dancing girls) are capital. Other characters are well sustained. On Thursday and Friday the musical comedy drama, Our Sailor Lad, was presented.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Mr. John Cecil's company is paying a return visit here this week in the stirring drama How Money's Made. Mr. Cecil again makes Judge Franklyn a striking personality, and acts with dramatic force throughout. Mr. Frank Strickland is good as Eustace Dare; and Mr. Arthur Lowry well placed as Leonard Murray. Mr. Elton Morgan as Glory is a vivacious darkey; Miss Minnie Leslie is a charming Ruth.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot. —Les Rupertos score as equilibrists; Eileen and Mayne are refined musical mites; Frank Harvey is a capital entertainer and whistler; and the Idento Brothers expert jugglers. Francis Hasholl is good in an electric illusory novelty; and Edward Ido a smart comedian. Pete and Juno are well received; and the Royal Bioscope pictures are delightfully entertaining.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—Kennedy's Komiks have proved a decided success here this week. An excellent performance, called Versatility and Fun, is given by Mr. Eric Thorpe, and Mr. Vic Verney in his comic sketch keeps the house in roars of laughter; Miss Millie Howe in her vocal and dancing entertainment is a special favourite; the Vervains, coon vocalists and dancers, and Miss Queenie Vane, comedienne, are well received; and the animated pictures shown by the London Bioscope Co. are most interesting.

WEST HARTLEPOOL. — PALACE. — Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—Mr. Harry Roxbury and his company, in a musical mélange, The Prince of Monte Carlo, is proving a strong attraction here. The company is a strong one, and render some well-arranged music in capital style; while much merriment is evoked by the irresistible humour of Mr. Harry Roxbury as P.C. Longfellow. Carlton is more amusing than ever, and his card manipulations are very interesting; some pretty effects in electric lighting and carpet and bowl spinning are presented by the Spanish Goldins; novelty in the way of rope-swinging is introduced into "The Demon Grotto" by the Three Delaires; Barrington, a musical expert, is decidedly clever in all he undertakes; Ray Royal, chorus vocalist and Raymond's Bio-tableaux are also attractive turns.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—GRAND PIER PAVILION.—Mr. John Ridding's Opera Company is paying a return visit here this week, and on Monday delighted a large audience by staging Sir Julius Benedict's Lily of Killarney. The interpretation of Danny Mann by Mr. John Ridding was intensely dramatic, and his singing admirable; Mr. F. C. Mullings' exceptional voice was heard to great advantage as Miles; Mr. Fred Clendon gave a highly artistic impersonation of Corrigan; Mr. Charles Le Sueur is entitled to the highest commendation for his acting and singing as Hardress Cregan; as O'Moore Mr. Arthur Fisher did well. It would be impossible to praise too highly the Eily of Miss Kitty Brownless; Mrs. Cregan found a meritorious exponent in Miss Jessie Dennis; Miss Grace Parrish made a charming Ann Chute; and Miss Knightley was a praiseworthy Sheila. The week's programme also includes the following operas: Faust, Maritana, The Bohemian Girl, The Daughter of the Regiment, and Old Knockles.

KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. Alfred West grand animatograph entertainment has been well received nightly. The variety turns are loudly applauded.

WIGAN.—THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—The Court Theatre is being closed for the summer vacation. The stage of the Hippodrome has been occupied during the week by the play The Little Breadwinner. The part of Lord William Dorrington is ably impersonated by Mr. J. A. Campbell, and Richard Lawrence has an admirable representative in Mr. David Gordon. Mr. Scott Leighton is excellent as Joseph Prior, the villain of the piece. The humorous element is provided by Mr. Allan Charles, as Charles Prior. Miss Mary Fulton gives an emotional rendering of the part of Margaret Daventry; Miss Jennie Bostock enacts well the character of Bridget O'Flanaghan; Miss Maud Buchanan is responsible for the part of Kate Cherry; and the title-rôle has an excellent exponent in little Emmie Thomas, who sings and dances very charmingly.

YORK.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Experimentally during the hot weather the system of two houses nightly is being tried this week, with every prospect of success. In The Monkey's Paw and Humanity, the following artists acquit themselves with much skill: Lionel Ellis, Lily Herries, Richard Bosco, Frank Siddon, T. Maxwell, I. Montefiore, Leah Barnato, and Buena Bent. Both sketches have been well received. Miss Louie Belrose is an expert dancer; the eccentricities of Little Zola are vastly amusing; and the biograph displays some up-to-date pictures.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—Charlene and Charlene give an original drawing-room entertainment with much success, and the Three Laureis are speciality acrobats who never fail to please. Maxford and O'Neil have some amusing patter which is popular; and Jack Truman has a pleasing voice which he uses artistically. Miss Bessie Willow sings some clever songs; and Stidder and Dunbar, in their musical act are a success. Zetta Grey and Co. appear in a sketch; and the company also includes Harry Lee, comedian.

CRICKET.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows :—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

HOLIDAYS.

Code Word, "BRIDE."

A most delightful film, depicting the holiday adventures of three little children sent to the country by their father to a brother farmer. Beer taps are turned on, fowls, geese, &c., are set loose and chased, donkeys ridden, cows milked in the most mischievous way. In desperation the farmer writes to his brother to take the children home, which he does, much to the chagrin of the young imps.

The quality, as usual, is perfect. About 560ft. The Subject, £14.

EXTRAORDINARY DISLOCATION.

Code Word, "BRISQUE."

The very amusing antics of a clown are shown. His head flies off in a most natural way; he shrivels to a skeleton; drinks from a bottle in an extraordinary manner.

About 100ft. The Subject, £2 10s.

THE TROUBLESOME FLEA.

Code Word, "BROCATELLE."

At an evening reception one of the guests is attacked by this unpleasant little insect, and out of sheer annoyance removes his nether garments in an adjoining room. Unfortunately they fall out of the window. The other guests, bursting into the room, finding him in this dilemma, chase him into the street. He runs full tilt into a policeman, who likewise gives chase—into the country—up a tree—when the guest removes the policeman's trousers and tries to don them instead—finally coming a cropper in an outhouse.

Exceptionally clear, fine detail, and very amusing. About 328ft. The Subject, £8 4s.

MARRIAGE OF PRINCESS ENA AND THE KING OF SPAIN.

Code Word, "BRODERIE."

Unequalled for quality and steadiness. Comparison will prove our statement. Judge for yourselves.

About 540ft. The Subject, £13 10s.

THE ELECTIONS.

Code Word, "BRIBE."

The candidate at home to callers. Double bribery. An interrupted meeting. The rival bill-stickers. A small coin makes a big row. Nursing baby, and the consequences. A very fine pig and nice-tasting food he is fed on. A visit to a laundry. A quarrel ends in a ducking. Black-balled. Meetings.—Persons who greeted a prospective member enthusiastically now change sides, and the candidate has a very unpleasant time. Eventually he arrives home with a black eye and his clothes torn, and altogether in a very deplorable state.

About 540ft. The Subject, £13 10s. 0d.

THE RIDERLESS BICYCLE.

Code Word, "BRASSARD."

The circus. The ringmaster and his friend. Amusing antics. A bicycle is brought into the ring, and, urged by a whip, careers round and round, jumping over obstacles and through a hoop. A back-kicker. The bicycle will only own one master, and finally bows its adieus to the audience.

About 200ft. The Subject, £5.

THE RAJAH'S CASKET.

Code Word, "BREVETER."

The Rajah's Casket is very closely guarded, but a wizard manages to disappear with it. The Rajah summonses another wizard, who, after showing a vision of the casket being taken through the air on the back of a dragon, leads the Rajah through the country and over the mountains to a cave where it has been carried. The Rajah here witnesses a series of beautiful scenes, the stalactites being transformed into gorgeously-dressed women who dance before him, and while they are dancing many beautiful changes are made in the colours of their dresses. The Rajah is so pleased at the recovery of the casket that he presents each of the dancers with a string of pearls.

About 560ft. The Subject, £14. Colouring extra, net £5 10s.

A DETECTIVE'S TOUR ROUND THE WORLD.

A Detective's life is full of ups and downs, and many exciting incidents are faithfully portrayed in this excellent film, which shows a detective's pursuit round the world of a fraudulent bankrupt.

The flight in disguise. The detective just misses the train. At the Suez Canal. Scenes on the banks. A narrow escape. Bankrupt drugs the detective's drink. False arrest of the detective. A festival in Calcutta. Brilliant procession of elephants, &c. Bombay Pagoda. Close pursuit and another narrow escape on horseback. Chased on an elephant. In an opium-smoker's den. Visions of the bankrupt and his pursuer. In Yokohama. Missed by a hair's breadth. Flight to America. The detective is foiled again through getting mixed up with a procession of citizens advocating the election of President Roosevelt. The detective is captured by redskins, bound to a tree, and badly wounded. Rescue by the bankrupt. Pursuer and pursued are now close friends. The bankrupt saves the detective's life, and the latter tears up his warrant. Leaving New York. A friend in need. An unexpected partnership.

About 1,150ft. The Subject, £28 15s. Colouring extra, net, £3.

THE PIRATE SHIP.

This is a very realistic picture of an old time piratical venture, which so often occurred in the good old days of "wooden walls." At a very isolated but picturesque spot on the coast are three or four smugglers in deep conversation, the result of which is soon seen. A young and pretty maiden sitting in a very artistic room, at her spinning wheel, is rudely interrupted by the sudden entrance of a pirate, who commands her to go with him. As soon as he attempts to lay hands on her the plucky girl shows fight. The noise brings her father on the scene, and he closes with the enemy, who, however, soon overpowers and kills the old man. The girl in desperation snatches the pistol from the hands of the assailant and points it at his head, gradually backing towards the window. Her triumph is of short duration, as another desperado opening the lattice window seizes her hand and obtains possession of the weapon. The men now easily carry off their victim, and take her down to the coast, where a small boat has been left. They put her in, despite her struggles, and row out to sea. Upon coming to their ship they first of all get the prisoner aboard and then swarm up themselves.

The frantic maiden rushes about on deck seeking some loophole of safety, dodging all efforts of the crew to detain her. Brandishing an oar, she threatens any who endeavour to touch her, but the audience are simply amused by the vain and futile actions. The captain carries her off to his own cabin, having her put in irons, so that she is absolutely deprived of freedom. The poor fettered prisoner, worn out with her hard labours, abandons all hope, and gives way to despairing grief. The officer is interrupted by one of his crew, who apparently requires his services on deck. As soon as the captain is once again alone with the captive he forcibly lifts her face, kisses it passionately, and leaves her.

Excitement is very pronounced, as evidently a ship is sighted coming on with all speed. The pirates immediately get ready to resist attack, and a splendid fight is shown. Our tars, with their usual bold methods, send a boarding party, who in the face of powder and shot clamber over the rail and get on board, where a fearful struggle for possession takes place. The law-breakers are overcome, and finally give way when they perceive their chief killed by the naval commander. Down below in the cabin the chained captive is listening intently to the noise and bustle, and her beautiful face is wreathed in smiles as she sees her little brother rush in. With quick, sharp strokes from his sword the girl is soon freed, and, going on deck, embraces her deliverer rapturously.

THE GUINEA ENTERTAINER.

A lady is seen receiving her guests when Professor B. (the Guinea Entertainer) enters, bringing his Famous Performing Rats and Mice. During the exchange of courtesies some of the ladies desire a close inspection, accidentally allowing some of the valued performers to escape. A general rumpus ensues, the ladies seeking safety on the chairs and even the piano. In the meantime the Professor is endeavouring to recapture his treasures, one of them making a desperate dash for liberty up the chimney, closely followed by the owner, leaving only his trousers to the care of his frightened audience.

The little performer arrives at the chimney top still being pursued by its owner. Over housetop the chase continues; arriving at the window they enter the sleeping apartment in which a young lady has just retired. She is rudely awakened by the sudden entry of Professor B., who, after upsetting the bed and putting the frightened lady to flight, succeeds in recapturing his treasure, holding it up and caressing it kindly making an excellent finish.

WHEN THE CAT'S AWAY.

Fine comic, showing how the domestics conduct a quiet little party during their mistress's temporary absence. Solos, dances, etc., are freely indulged in to the accompaniment of a not-too-careful pianist. The arrival of the afternoon milkman is the signal for a fresh outburst. He is in the act of performing a cake-walk on the drawing-room table when the mistress returns, causing the sudden break-up of the party, she receiving the contents of the milk can down her neck.

A REAL GOOD COMIC.

Length, 110ft. Price, £2 15s. (Subject). Code Word, "PARTY."

AUTUMN TOURS.

WE ARE NOW VERY BUSY CLEANING DRESSES FOR AUTUMN TOURS,
but have plenty of room, and, like Oliver Twist WE ASK FOR MORE.

We are also very busy Cleaning and Renovating Tableaux Curtains and Draperies from London and Country Theatres and Music Halls.

We still hold the field as Cleaners and Dyers to the Theatrical and Music Hall Professions. This fact is clearly proved by the unsolicited testimonials we are continually receiving.

Professional work takes precedence over all other orders.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—Mr. Edmund Tearle and company are appearing this week in It's Never Too Late to Mend. Mr. Tearle plays powerfully as Tom Robinson, and he is admirably supported by the other members of the cast; Mr. Montagu Lane gives a spirited presentation of George Fielding; Mr. T. W. Benson is successful as Peter Crawley; Mr. Vernon O. Crabtree throws a good deal of life into the part of Meadows; and excellent work is also contributed by Mr. Bernhardt Turner as the Rev. Francis Eden; Mr. Ernest Lodge, as the Jew; Mr. W. R. Wilson, as Governor Hawes; and Mr. J. A. Keogh, as the Australian Aboriginal. Miss Esther Tearle acts with much ability and sympathy the part of Susan; and Miss Mary Campbell, as one of the victims of the prison system, puts a good deal of pathos into the character.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The principal turn is an admirably played sketch by C. Woodley Hulse and company, entitled The Fight in the Forge. All the parts are well acted, that of an aged rustic by Mr. Gerald Nolan being admirably done; Mr. Charles Matthews, who is assisted by Miss Doris Reece, puts in some remarkable jumping feats; and Stanley's Urchins, who are singularly expert dancers as well as capital part singers, are also enthusiastically received; the Balmoral Quartette of local dancers give an attractive and graceful performance; the Hare Trio appear in a daring high trapeze act; and among the other successful artists may be noted Miss Renee Walon, vocalist and dancer; Mlle. du Roche, a fine operatic soprano singer; and Messrs. Arthur Richards and J. C. Scatter, comedians. A fine show of pictures illustrative of the Spanish Royal Wedding is given by the Bioscope.

ACCRINGTON. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker.—Mr. Charles Majilton tops the bill here with a company of clever comedians in the absurdity, called The Plumber. Mr. "C.," song and patter artist, is smart; Edward Ind is excellent; Ward and Davis are well received; the Two Sparks are appreciated; Los Rupertos give a high-class equilibristic act, and the Hippodrome Pictures conclude an attractive bill.

ALDERSHOT.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Williams.—A Sister's Sin is being presented here by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company. Mr. H. Custins is an admirable Larry, and finds support in Misses Alice Granville and Edie Macklin, as the rival lovers. The rôle of Minnie is in the capable hands of Miss Violet Langley; and Mr. Vane is good as Harold. Mr. A. Money does well in the arduous rôle of George Oakley; and true nomadic instinct and fervour are cleverly shown by Miss Tullock; whilst Miss D. Vivian is smart as Jack.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross and a capital company are here for the current week with Wilson Barrett's dramatised version of Hall Caine's story, The Manxman. Mr. Cross presents a finished study of Pete; Miss Minnie Watersford, as Kate Cregeen, proves fully equal to the demands made upon her intelligence and skill; the Demster is finely acted by Mr. Sydney C. Kearns; Mr. David Phillips is good as Kate's father, the old Manx innkeeper, and minor male parts are in the efficient keeping of Messrs. G. Marriot, E. H. Day, E. Cartell, F. Binning, and Arthur J. Moss; Miss Nancy Mitchell is sufficiently pert and amusing as Nancy, and Miss Mona Spearing does good work in the small part of Miss Christian. The play is admirably mounted.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—At the Hippodrome this week comedy is well represented by Charles Jackson, and Dick Kendall, who concludes with a smart dance; and the Boston Twins, who sing, patter, box, and dance with pronounced success; Victoria Dagmar is a graceful horizontal-bar artiste, the clown acting as a humorous foil to her clever performance; Lady Zilla presents a good ventriloquial sketch; the Sisters Thurban give a musical performance, in which the trio display much ability; Sam Jesson's Merrymakers' sketch is a troupe of juvenile singers and dancers of varied and pleasing talents, the song "Two's Company," and a cake-walk were very successful; "The Demon Chief," Pickett and Lizette, is a wonderful conjuring act, and the Bioscope presents thrilling and pathetic pictures of the recent destruction of San Francisco.

ATTERCLIFFE.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne.—For the last week of the present season the management here are presenting an attractive bill, which finds much favour. The Grovini Family give a smart turn as acrobats, benders, and tumblers; Le Brun and Irene, equilibrist and lady juggler, are responsible for an interesting item; Mr. Johnny Chippendale, comedian, makes a welcome re-appearance; as usual, Mr. Clayton's "Attergraph" pictures are a leading feature; the Meymotts (Jack and Ada) are seen in a mirth-provoking sketch, entitled Semi-Detached; Mint and Mart produce artistic and beautiful designs simply by tearing newspapers; Mr. J. H. Wakefield, coon impersonator, gives some good songs and dances; and De Vere and Kenwick are highly entertaining in a series of burlesque pictures on popular songs.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stone.—A Royal Divorce is paying a return visit here. Mr. Frederick Moyes proves himself an excellent exponent of the great Emperor, and Miss Edith Cole as the Empress Josephine again gives an interesting and powerful delineation. The other parts are as ably filled as heretofore.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. J. W. Jury continues to draw good houses here with his life-motion photos, and is well supported by a strong variety company.

TIVOLI.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—Gallando, the lightning sculptor, is at the top of the bill here this week; Addie Dorina's impersonations of several different characters in a surprisingly short time are exceedingly clever; Tom Taylor, the singing collier, renders some good songs; Bert Byem is a capital mimic; Rex Fox is clever in a unique act on the slack wire; the Sisters Walmleys give a pleasing song and dance turn; and Miss Ethel Dove is a smart comedy artist.

BELFAST.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The chief feature in this week's bill is the marvellous mechanical talking head "Dronza." Miss Evelyn Taylor is a smart male impersonator, with good songs and style; and Mr. Michael Braham introduces his trained dog Mickey, whose feats are really remarkable. A fine exhibition of acrobatics is given by the Five Martellonis, lady acrobats; and others appearing are Miss Elsie Earle, Onda and Artell, and Tom Leo.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John S. Walter.—The Mackweys top the bill here, and have been successful with their capital comedy wire act; Miss Lily Langtry, a dashing comedienne, has captivated many admirers with her vivacious rendering of several songs; Mr. Harry Weldon, a quaint comedian, is well received; and Les Voces are heard to advantage in duets. Mr. Tom Woottwell creates much amusement with his character songs; and a capital exhibition of dancing is submitted by the Raies. Mr. Guy Ryder, a wonderful boy whistler; and Spry and Monte, comedy artists, complete the bill.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The drama A Man in a Thousand is the attraction here this week. Mr. Hilliard Vox is a manly Owen Penrose; and Miss Nina Blake-Adams, a capable emotional actress, is all that could be desired as Laura Gibson. The villainies of Gregor Gibson are realistically portrayed by Mr. Stephen E. Scanlon; Mr. Herbert Cecil furnishes a capital impersonation of Sir Curwen Glynn, adding to the laurels he has already gained during his stay here. Miss Evelyn Kington plays cleverly as Little Adam Penrose; and Miss Beryl Ravenswood must be commended for her acting in the rôle of Hester Penrose. The humour of the piece is in the safe hands of Miss Evelyn Marrable as Mrs. Barkis, Mr. Cecil Ravenswood as Waterloo, and Mr. Luke Forster as Darby Quick. Mr. Victor Gordon as Rev. A. Tredgood completes the cast. The staging of the piece (for which Mr. Herbert Cecil is responsible) is in every way excellent.

BILSTON.—AL FRESCO PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Battersby.—The entertainment here is given by the Imperial Pierrots, comprising Miss Minnie Newman, and Messrs. Tom Griffiths, Syd Bazley, and Alf Brookes; Carl Osmond, lightning cartoonist; Nellie Dunbar, coon singer and dancer; and Pulo, juggler. The musical director is Mr. J. Bertram Brennan.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—A visit from Miss Go-Won-Go Mohawk, with her American Indian drama Wep-ton-no-mah awakens pleasant reminiscences, and is proving attractive. Miss Mohawk repeats her picturesque rendering of the Indian mail-carrier, and Mr. C. W. Charles again gives an excellent rendering of Colonel Stockton; Mr. Edward Leroy, as Manuel Lopez, plays an unpopular rôle with much effect; Mr. Ike Shawcross makes the most of Captain Franklin, and Miss Minnie Goepel is a vivacious Nellie Stockton. The comedy element is admirably sustained by Mr. Guy D. Hackney, Mr. Dan Ryan, and Miss Dorothy Neville, and Mr. Theo Alker is a realistic Chief Ga No-Gua. The production is staged in a very complete manner.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—The popular and accomplished comedienne Miss Hetty King is a centre of attraction, and has made an undeniable hit; Miss Hulo Hodgson, Mr. Harry Lowther, and company in the well-sustained sketch Barmaids are a conspicuous success; and the New York Comedy Four in their amusing and clever act are a prominent feature. An excellent and varied programme is also supported by Miss Alice Digby, comedienne; the Twin Brothers Dean, expert step dancers; the Sisters Marion, promising juvenile duettists; Mr. Gus Le Clerq, comedian; and Miss Lottie Govell, serio; and there is in addition a capital Bioscope display. Mr. Ernest Denney is musical director.

BIRMINGHAM.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—East Lynne winds up the season here in a thoroughly popular fashion, being admirably played by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company. The version presented is Wilson Barrett's, containing the character of the comic policeman, Bullock, which, enacted by Mr. C. C. Gratton, proves a source of great strength to the play. The unhappy Lady Isabel is played with fine feeling and emotion by Miss Julie Kennard; Mr. Eric Mayne, for his highly-effective acting as Captain Levison receives as tributes the execrations of the "gods"; and Mr. Alfred Beaumont acts with well-assumed dignity as Carlyle. Mr. Paul Belmore as Justice Hare, Mr. Cyril Hayward as Dill, Miss Ethel Hardacre as Cornelia, Miss Violet Throrold as Barbara, and Mr. Campbell Goldsmid as Richard Hare, rank among other successful character-studies.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr Fred Bernardo. — The Blind Foundling worthily sustains the reputation of this popular theatre as the central house of melodrama in Birmingham. Mr. Chas. H. Phelps, the author of the play, submits a study of the artist, Gerald Dalton, which is replete with clever characterisation; and Mr. Harry Tilbury, who shares with Mr. Phelps the responsibility of management, does some smart work, variety and otherwise, as Dick Dobbins; Miss Mabel Hall invests the rôle of the foundling Fairy with much pathos; Miss Belle Tilbury acts with delightful sympathy and charm as Isabel; Mr. Frank Harvey plays the rôle of Parson Ray with much ability; Mr. Alfred Geo. Fry distinguishes himself in the rôle of the adventurer, Mark Redman; and Mr. Geo. Rufus displays acumen as Detective Downham. Mr. John Byron as Algy, Miss Amy Dalby as Viola, and Miss Millie Doris as Winnie, are also satisfactory.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Kennedy's Komics continue to supply the entertainment here at popular prices for the summer months. The programme of artists, which has already been fully described, is again headed by the Electric Animated Pictures.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles. — An Abandoned Woman is being presented at this successful suburban house by Mr. Harry Foxwell. Miss Georgette Thiery represents the adventuress, Ninon, in a bold and clever style; and her associate in villainy, Phillipe Malvoisin, excites due antipathy in the capable acting of Mr. Bernard Leill. Mr. Wolston Foster serves excellently well as the hero, Captain Seaton; Miss Kathleen Magee shows estimable qualities as the wife, Eleanor; Mr. J. Abbott is successful as Sir Marmaduke; Mr. George Gormley is noticeable for his acting as Saunders, the artist; and the efforts of Mr. Will Percy as Paddy Boyle bring in a rich harvest of fun. Mr. Darcey Kelway shines as Sammy Sharp; and Miss Lily Beverley supports the humour of the play as Sally Sloper.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Harry Lauder, the popular Scotch comedian, is entertaining crowded houses here; Terry and Lambert introduce a scena which is full of burlesque humour; the Holles and Goldman Trio have an amusing mélange, "Oh! Jemima," Georgina Leonard wins loud applause; the Canary company are amusing; Harold Thornley sings some excellent songs in good style; J. H. Cullen, Russell Wallett, and Conway and Leland provide many opportunities for laughter.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Mannon's Merry Maids in a Motor-'bus are an attractive item in the Gaiety bill; James Willard and company present their sketch, Did He Deserve It? and the acting all round is excellent; King's College Boys render their glees with effect; Georgina Leonard, from the Empire here, is deputising for another artist; the Andreassan Brothers are expert head and hand balancers; and the Avrignys are smart Japanese jugglers.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—George D'Albert is at the head of a long programme here; the Four Madcaps are responsible for some clever acrobatic dancing; Barton and Franklin submit a smart musical entertainment, which is far above the average; comedy turns are supplied by Arthur Reece, Fred Curran, Harris and Worth, and Barlee and Smith in a duologue entitled A Rehearsal. The Brooklands are attractive comediennes; an operatic turn of a high order is provided by W. H. Webb and Edna Branston; Mlle. Sylvesto, in a speciality act, Rebela, eccentric juggler, and the Australian Twin Andersons are excellent turns.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Marie Loftus is attracting crowded houses here, her principal item being Singers, Past and Present; the Delevines in their musical entertainment are also favourites; J. P. Ling is a clever mimic; the New Macs are smart knockabouts; Corrie and Dereve's company present the sketch Heart-Strings, in which Gladys Hooley is prominent; the Dorrells and the Lannens are applauded for their dances.

BLACKBURN.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—The well-known drama The Octoroon is the attraction here this week. The company presenting the play is Messrs. Granville and Thorne's, and is excellent in every respect, Mr. Hugh Montgomery as Salem Scudder and Mr. J. O. Stewart as Jacob McClosky being specially good in their respective parts.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—A capital all-round company here includes Rastus and Banks, coloured performers, in their vocal sketch The Major and the Maid; Kelly and Gillette, in their original acrobatic act; Carlotta Levey, with popular songs; Lily Sharplin, in impersonations of well-known music-hall artists; Roy Royal, chorus vocalist; Tennyson and Wallis, comedians; the Two Heures, jugglers; and the Paragon Trio of vocalists.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. Thomas McKenzie's company is playing Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace here this week. Mr. Yorke Stephens repeats his clever impersonation of Captain Mowbray, and Miss Marie Illington is seen to the best advantage in her original part of Mrs. Jardine; Miss Frances Vine does well as Mrs. Gorringe, and Miss Mary Webb's assumption of Isabel Kirke is also to be commended; Mr. Maitland Dicker as Colonel Jardine and Mr. W. Brisco Owen as David Cairn likewise deserve praise. Uncle Joseph is the title of an amusing curtain-raiser.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Miss Florence Baines and company are here again with Miss Lancashire, Limited. Miss Baines's lifelike portrayal of the Lancashire lass from Blackburn is intensely amusing. She is supported by a capable company including Messrs. David Donaldson, Robert Turley, Richard C. Hicks, Allan M. Servington, Payne Fletcher, and Misses Anena Walton and Pattie Grove.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Queenie Leighton tops the bill here this week. Other good turns are rendered by Gladys Archbutt, comedienne; May Mars, in a song scena; Walter Munroe, comedian; Norman French, dancer; Allis and Cassati; Lily Currie, vocalist; the Cotton Blossom Quartette of comedians, singers, and dancers; and Vernon and Voyce, comedians.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Whitehead and Ramsden; General-Manager, Mr. T. P. Duignan.—A well-varied programme is provided here this week by Woodhouse and Wells, story-tellers and dancers; Madge May, comedienne; Little Ganty, comedian; Ned Graydon, in a musical act; Will Dalton, comedian and patterer; Professor McCann, with his performing dogs; the Sisters Bartholomew, duettists and dancers; Cherry Lass, comedienne; and Effie White, in her original kaleidoscope dances.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Mr. Moody has provided a strong attraction here, Mr. Eade Montemore's company being in possession, with Dion Boucicault's drama, The Streets of London. Mr. William Rokeby as Badger plays with power, and wins the applause of a delighted audience. As Gideon Bloodgood Mr. Henry Moxon renders good service; Mr. Douglas Cottell scores as Mark Livingstone; and the Jonas Puffy of Mr. Clifford Bown is an amusing piece of comedy acting. After this week the theatre will be closed until Bank Holiday.

BOLTON. — GRAND THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—An excellent programme is supplied by the Three Laurels, who give an original and dashing acrobatic display on the ping-pong table; Maimie Iris, a capital comedienne and buck dancer; Tom Moy, an effective comedian; Bugler T. Carr, a clever equilibrist, &c.; Zaid, the Spanish Moor, in his novel speciality, assisted by Orienta; Wyndham and Waters, comedy vocalists, in The Professor and his Pupil; Hinton and Wooton, who play football on bicycles; Wee Jessie, in song and dance; H. R. Friscari, hat manipulator and juggler; Tom Moore, comedian; the Bouncing Dillons, in their gymnastic comedy act; and the Imperial Bioscope.

BOSTON.—PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. Saphrini.—Tom Poole's Pierrots continue to draw large audiences. On fine evenings they perform on "the Green." The Brothers Carr, who provide the speciality this week, are clever head-to-head balancers and musicians.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company, in Dare-Devil Dorothy, a musical comedy novelty, under the direction of Mr. J. W. Cordiner, opened here on Monday to an appreciative house. Mr. Edward Kipling bore off the honours of the evening with his impersonation of Silas Crump, and received capital support from Miss Dorothy Desmonde, who has a pleasing voice, and acted the heroine capitally; Miss Nellie Harcourt's lively style is well suited to the part of Judith. Other good performances came from Mr. Walter Ashley, Mr. Henry C. Ward, and Mr. Alfred Stretton. A variety scene, in which the Misses Lillie and Mabel Blake, Miss Nellie Harcourt, and Mr. Edward Kipling are conspicuously successful, takes place in the third act.

BRADFORD.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. Geo. Testo Sante's company opened here on Monday in The Life of a Showman. Mr. Sante appears as the hero Brien Leader, and in the circus scene his feats of strength as the showman are greeted with much applause. Mr. Chas. Osborne scores as Sir Noel Hartland, and subsequently the billposter Stickers; Mr. Edward Warden is good as the Rev. Cyril Arliss; Mr. J. G. Sante, who represents Laurie Grey, plays a selection on the violin with good effect; and Mr. Johnny Clegg is a comical Ben Tin Tac. Mr. Logan Darra as Hendrick Marais, Mr. Frank Sante as Tommy Allthere, and Mr. Fred Vaughan as Ned Chuckers all do good work. The Brothers Testo, with Clown Wimples, are conspicuous in the circus performance. Miss Amy McNeill plays with force and feeling the part of Hendrick's scheming confederate, Agatha; Miss Enid Trench is a charming Lena Hartland and Miss May Neilson a vivacious Angeline Mutton; Miss May Warden finds favour as Lynette Leader; and Master Harry Warden is capital as Dickie.

EMPIRE.—Chairman, Sir H. E. Moss; Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Nellie Wallace, who heads the bill has a flattering reception; so too has Alexandra Dagmar. The company also includes Mlle. Olive, lady juggler; Harding and Ah-Sin; Harold Finden and Mrs. Finden in sketch A Desperate Remedy; Nelson's Newsboys; the thought-reading dog "Pilu"; George Formby, comedian; Celest, wire performer; and Derenda and Green, comedy jugglers.

PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—The programme here includes the Eight Sunrays, dancers and vocalists, in "La Maxixe"; the Three Delaries in the sketch The Demon Grotto; Oakdene, the comedy ventriloquist; Percy Curry, a favourite pantomime artist; Blanche Marion, comedienne and dancer; Kisbey, in The Call Boy; Molly Doon; Baroni and Kemp, quick-change artists; Adey Spencer; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

ALFRESCO PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Popplewell, Bentley, and Kilduff.—The newcomer this week is Fentoni, a clever speciality artist; Rosa Leader, musical mimic, is re-engaged. A benefit performance last week for the lifeboat fund last week resulted in some £30 being handed over to the local fund.

BRIDLINGTON.—ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE. — Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—The promenade concerts given by Herr Sigmund Winternitz and his fine orchestra, continue to attract large audiences. Miss Emily Waddington, who is paying a return visit, has been nightly receiving an ovation for her finely-rendered songs; Mr. Tom J. Morton and his Concert company are this week introducing their entirely new entertainment, High Life Below Stairs, in which Miss Maggie Bowman, as Jane, shines in her humorous songs and amusing "business"; Mr. Arthur Chapman's fine baritone voice is heard to advantage in both songs and concerted numbers; Miss Empsie Bowman, as the lady's maid, renders some charming numbers, and Mr. T. J. Morton, as the Page, keeps the audience in good humour by his humorous impersonations and droll interpellations.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Henry Hague.—Herr Simon Wurm and his Imperial Viennese Band are making a great name by their fine performances at the Promenade concerts. Herr Morton's oboe solos especially stamping him as a great artiste on that instrument. The vocalists have been Miss Marie Stiven, a fine pure contralto, and Mr. Dan Billington, the Yorkshire baritone; Miss Lily Crawforth is the week-end vocalist.

THE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. A. Hubner.—The performances here are now given twice daily, the grounds surrounding the Palace being utilised in the fine weather for afternoon performances by the Palace Pierrots, followed by the show of animated pictures. At the evening show this week the chief attraction is the Manards, who accomplish some remarkable feats of precision in shooting with rifles, &c.; the Rushforths, in their illustrated songs, are well received; Leonard and Lari appear in amusing sketches, and Miss Mai Gilby is clever with her musical specialities.

SUMMER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs. Beanland, Bath, and Danton; Manager, Mr. C. Beanland.—Variety is the motto of the lessees of the Gardens, and this week they are giving popular programmes, including an old-fashioned Ethiopian night, when the members of the Waterloo Pierrots appear in Christy Minstrel garb, and give favourite negro songs and sketches.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—The Shaughraun occupies the boards here this week, and is admirably staged. Mr. George H. Asquin gives a very artistic impersonation of Conn, the Shaughraun; Miss Daisy Halling makes a highly effective Clare Ffolliott, and Miss Lucy Murray is delightfully natural and winsome as Moya Doolan; Mr. H. C. Lanceley submits a capital character-study as the parish priest, Father Doolan; Mr. Ronald Adair achieves much success as Captain Molineux; Mr. Paul Barry-Lewers as Corry Kinchela, and Mr. Sam T. Pearce as Harvey Duff are well placed; Mr. Marmaduke Wetherell acquits himself admirably as Robert Ffolliott; and satisfactory support is given by Miss Lydia Mannington as Arte O'Neale; and Miss Kate Walford as Mrs. O'Kelly.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—There is an excellent company here this week. The Australian Musical Comedians, Leslie Brothers, make a big hit in their original act, Music Mad; Arthur Lennard, comedian, is enthusiastically received; the Three Cape Girls are very smart dancers in long boots; Florrie Robins wins hearty applause for her topical song; Lizzie Fletcher is a smart and entertaining comedienne; Alberto, a conversational deceptionist and eccentric magician, submits an excellent turn; Dale and O'Malley are clever comedians; Jenevera Tree is a charming and accomplished vocalist; Letine gives a good turn; and the Alhambrascope Pictures are, as usual, very interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A very attractive programme is sustained here this week. The renowned wrestler, George Hackenschmidt, is a host in himself; on Monday evening he defeated Mr. Charles Herman in 2min. 24secs., and Gunner Moore in 5min. 14sec.; George Gilbey, a capital comedian, is warmly received; Max Waldon appears with success in an original transformation act; Jack and Evelyn, the popular comedy duo, are very entertaining; Bob Baxter, the genial comedian, maintains his reputation; Grace Langley, comedienne and dancer, wins great favour; the Sisters Poole (Ada and Letta) are accomplished society entertainers; Pictor Roxborough and Fanny Wright contribute a very amusing duologue; Fyne and Hurley afford much fun in The Coster and the Dude, and the Barrascope Pictures are interesting.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—The Scarlet Mr. E's versatile and refined masked entertainers, are here this week. Their sentimental and humorous songs, and pianoforte and violin solos are admirably rendered and warmly appreciated; and the whole entertainment, written and produced by "The Jester." Mr. Walter Dowling, is a distinct success; in addition, Mr. Vivian Vivian, the well-known character-actor, submits some excellent character sketches from the works of Charles Dickens, and Banning, "the human mystery," is well received in his female impersonation.

NEW PALACE PIER THEATRE.—A new four-act comedy of modern life, entitled Peggy, was produced here on Monday evening, and is fully noticed in another column.

AQUARIUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. J. Sallmayer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry de Groot.—The musical-comedy burlesque, Cinderella, the Little Slavey, is repeated here this week by Mr. B. A. Rutley's repertoire company; Mr. Frank Major's party of refined entertainers, and Miss Minnie Letta's Sporting Girls are still here; and Miss Vera Ray, a charming vocalist, adds materially to the attractiveness of the various entertainments.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—There was a large audience here on Saturday evening, which was the closing night of the season, and the annual benefit of the popular proprietor and manager, Mr. Chute. In the interval between the acts of San Toy, Mr. Chute appeared upon the stage to make his customary speech. After the demonstrative welcome of the audience had somewhat subsided, Mr. Chute said:—"Ladies and gentlemen,—It is a great satisfaction to me to have been able to place before you for the concluding week of the season so popular a play as San Toy. The selection of this popular musical-comedy for the final performance has, I venture to believe, met with your approval, if I can rightly judge from the splendid gathering before me. I beg you to accept my very hearty thanks, not only for your presence in such large numbers this evening, but also for the generous patronage bestowed throughout the entire season. In reviewing the past six months it is pleasant to dwell on two memorable events; namely, a pantomime which your appreciative support rendered a record, and the Shakesperian revival of Romeo and Juliet. The first I will endeavour to eclipse when Humpty Dumpty makes his bow next Christmas, and the second received so much encouragement at your hands that the experiment of another production will certainly be attempted on some future occasion. On July 19th, a matinée and evening performance will be organised to clear off the debt on the St. Augustine's Parish Schools. An attractive programme is in course of preparation, which I am sure will commend itself to your hearty and liberal support." Mr. Chute then mentioned various bookings which he had already made for the autumn season, and the various announcements were warmly applauded. The benefit performance was under the distinguished patronage of the High Sheriff of Bristol, Sir George and Lady White, His Honour Judge Austin, the Master of the Merchant Venturers, the President of the Bristol Chamber of Commerce, and various other notable citizens. The theatre will reopen on August Bank Holiday.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—The comedy-drama, The Plucky Nipper, is the attraction here, and it is very well played by Miss Bonwin Carlton's company. Miss Bonwin Carlton acts cleverly, and in vivacious style, the part of Polly Hithard, a domestic servant, who afterwards masquerades as a boy, and is spoken of as the "Plucky Nipper." Miss Evelyn Derwent plays in a sympathetic manner as Ina Fenwick; Miss Kitty Maynard is interesting as the blind girl, Daisy Paget; Mr. Fred Rivers is good in the heavy part of Richard Vanburgh, obtaining excellent support from Mr. Edward Surrey, as Bill Burgess; and other important parts are carefully played by Mr. Pringle Roberts, Mr. Claud Kingston, Mr. Edward Stream, and Mr. Douglas Campbell. The play is nicely staged.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Foreman and Fannan, patter comedians, head the programme, and obtain much appreciation; the Three Pirmans have an excellent comedy pantomime-act, Dans le Jardin, introducing triple-bar and contortionist business; Slippere, blind pianist and vocalist, obtains much applause; Tony Iveson is amusing in a scena at the piano; Hans and Lux do well as eccentric comedians; Lidden and Hayward amuse with their speciality, "The Midnight Express"; Marie Wilton displays ability as a comedienne; the Sisters Ford are pleasing comedy duettists; and the performance concludes with some good pictures of the destruction of San Francisco, projected by Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

EMPIRE. — Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macair. — Harry Cadle's company is here with the amusing pantomime, Casey's Court, in which there are lots of variety song and dance. The Four Charles present a well-staged and clever acrobatic turn; Bessie Butt is charmingly attractive as a soubrette and expert dancer, her "Scarecrow" song and dance obtaining well-deserved applause; Goodfellow and Gregson have an amusing and smart speciality of song, dance, and patter, "The Maid and the Schoolboy"; Gladys Whitton, juvenile vocalist, sings pleasingly, and has a good contralto voice; and both Walter Wallis, comedian, and Arthur Goodman, juggler and patterer, obtain applause. The performance concludes with interesting animated pictures of the Royal Wedding at Madrid.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD. — Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. Frank Lindo is this week affording evidence of his ability as Shylock, with Miss Marion Wakeford as Portia, the clever acting of both being much appreciated by large houses. The production is well staged, and the support given is of excellent quality. The other characters in The Merchant of Venice are: Bassanio, by Mr. John F. Traynor; Gratiano, by Mr. Cyril Grier; Antonio, by Mr. J. W. Henson; Prince of Morocco, by Mr. Ulick Burke; Duke of Venice, by Captain Gerald Gambier; Lorenzo, Mr. F. Miles Hodgson; Gobbo, Mr. D. Laurence Doyle; Launcelot, Mr. Geo. Overs; Nerissa, Miss Mary Denver; and Jessica, Miss Muriel Clay, who were each seen to advantage.

BURNLEY.—EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A varied and entertaining programme is given here this the last week of the season, and is much appreciated by large audiences. The Uessems, two young equilibrists, are applauded to the echo for their clever performance; Mozzetto is a most dextrous manipulator of coins, and Kessanly's troupe of fox-terriers perform a smart series of cake walks, somersaults, and other feats; Bert Woodward, the "cycling coon," is a clever cyclist; Henry Maynard is a very good vocalist; Henri Bekker gives a clever conjuring display; the Schafers show their mastery of musical instruments in a comedy turn, and Hoppitt Toney and Tiny, in the Coster Circus, are highly amusing.

BURY (LANCS.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—A good programme here includes Lockhart's elephants, introduced by Marbelle, a lady trainer; Little Tony, Miss Nora Layton, Tom Taylor, and Johnny Wilkinson in their humorous sketch, The Strange Little Stranger; Mick and Mack, acrobats; Jack Rae, eccentric juggler; Conan and Doyle, comedians; Maud Clyton, comedienne; and Tom Williams, vocalist; are all good. Turpin's ride to York and a Carnival at Nice are depicted on the Ottograph.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; General-Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—The bill is headed by Dr. Carl Herman, hypnotist, electrician, &c. Other items include Mlle. Anna Nanoni, vocalist; Horton and Linden, gymnasts; Ford and Hanson, musicians; Leopold and Lorna, comedy artists; Leon Lorette, vocalist; the Three Bostonians, singers and dancers; and the usual pictures.

CARDIFF.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Mr. Beresford Whitcomb's company is here, in the drama It's Never Too Late to Mend. Mr. Beresford Whitcomb appears in the character of Tom Robinson, and submits a capable rendering; Mr. Edward Jephson as George Fielding displays rare histrionic powers; Miss Mabel Lowe's impersonation of Susan Merton quite captivates her audience; and Mr. Tom Seymour as the Australian black deserves special notice.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—With Eugene Stratton heading the bill, the Empire has done capital business, the coon singer being a great favourite here. The clever dancers Sandford and Lyons prove particularly smart with their patter; the Remingtons are expert acrobats; the Clarkes are skilful banjoists; Flo Esdale, a charming artist, gains much applause by her sweet vocalism; and Jack Lane, the Yorkshire rustic, has jumped into popularity with his clever imitations. Irene Rose, comedienne and dancer; Will Musgrave, a smart comedian; Alfred Hurley, a capital singer; and the Bioscope, complete an excellent programme.

CARLISLE. — THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—The Deer Family, who head the bill this week, give a vivid and interesting representation of a settler's life on the Indian frontier. The act is remarkably well staged, and the whole business most realistic and dramatic. Queenie May is a clever little vocalist, who meets with considerable favour; Mr. George Adams is the happy possessor of a fine baritone voice, which he uses with skill in two excellent descriptive songs; James de Voye's wonderful educated horse "Billy" is now quite an old favourite here; Edney and Wade, vocalists and dancers, contribute a smart turn; Reilly and Taylor are capital laughter-makers; and the Swift Trio combine comedy with clever trick cycling. Vernon's Bioscope, with new pictures, is as attractive as ever.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley. —The Prodigal Parson, a three-act melodrama, is here with Miss Bertha Kingston as Fern Godley and Mr. W. V. Garrod in the title-rôle. As an extra attraction the interval between the first two acts is occupied by Lacey's Erascope.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—The chief attraction here is Casey's Court, by the Midget Mimes. Another comedy sketch scoring strongly is The Substitute, produced by Sid Cotterell and company. Lacey's Erascope still pleases; while among the variety turns we have Minnie Wren, comedienne; Dick Graham, vocalist; the Sisters St. Julian, prime favourites; Jane Temple, comedienne; and Marie Blythe, serio.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor Capt. H. E. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Donne.—Marie Santoi tops the bill here with her merry little Japs in the musical scena, entitled The Japanese Tea-Garden by Night, in which Miss Santoi appears as the Princess Yo San, and is heartily applauded. Raie Walters has an attractive style; the Five Whiteleys give great satisfaction, the tight-wire performance of one of the troupe being particularly smart; the Brothers Zampah are a pair of nimble and daring one-legged artists; also in the programme are Miss Lillie Coleman, soprano vocalist; Chas. Grantley, entertainer; George Maher, with an amusing medley; and the Edisonograph.

COLCHESTER.—HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Alen.—Peggy Pryde heads the bill this week, and is received with every manifestation of delight by large audiences nightly. The Three Rubies give an exhibition of trapeze and acrobatic business which is loudly applauded. Prince Kuroki is an entertaining Japanese magician, with a very engaging personality; Percival and Morley present a smartly-written duologue entitled Turtledoves; Harry Desmond is a popular character comedian; and the Sisters Charnley excel as dancers. The Bioscope this week shows the O'Brien-Fitzsimmons glove contest, and elephant studies.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Honour Thy Father is being presented by Mr. T. Morton Powell's company, and on Monday night was accorded a hearty welcome by a well-filled house. Mr. Walter M. Cameron acquits himself creditably as the hero, Gabriel Garth; Miss Mabel Coleman gives a pleasing rendering of Lilian Garth; Mr. Clavering Craig is seen to advantage as the unscrupulous villain Duncan Bly. Other characters well represented are Jack Halgard, Mr. Douglas B. Watson; Ned, Mr. W. H. Melrose; Mike Copplestone, Mr. Sinclair Holden; Gertrude Garth, Mrs. Clavering Craig; Poppy, Miss Lizzie Morley; Mercy Merry, Miss Winnie Donovan; and Dr. Sleak, Mr. Frank Eden.

THE HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—A very old Coventry favourite, Tom Costello, is here this week, and on Monday night was enthusiastically received. Another turn well liked is that of Charles Mildare and Edna Werne, the former giving a marvellous imitation of various birds. Miss Rose Revell scores as a comedienne; the Les Sprays are clever Continental dancers; Charles Stevens, character vocalist; Will McIvor, a capital vocalist; and the Three Panamas, in an acrobatic and comedy act; and the usual animated pictures are also in the bill.

CROYDON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr Charles Herrick.—Miss Ida Millais' company is here with No Man's Land. Miss Florence Lovell is good as Mrs. Poodle; Miss Marie Kildare is capital as Bessie Poodle; and Miss Ida Millais is satisfactory in the rôle of Mary Bathurst. Mr. H. H. Barrington is well to the fore with a conscientious rendering of Mat Marsden; Mr. Henry Herne is at his best as Harry Oaklands; Mr. Fred Morgan acts with strength as Silas Moor; Mr. W. H. Monti's Dr. Buxton is a finished performance; Mr. Fred Waller is great in the dual rôles of Gilbert Bathurst and Captain Norman Bathurst; Mr. G. K. Ashton distinguishes himself as Solomon Jacobs; Mr. Johnnie Leoni makes Thompson Poodle a droll personage; Mr. Vaughan Howe makes the most of Captain Spencer; and Mr. George North deserves a word of praise as Owen Rushton. The drama is creditably staged.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace H. Jay.—The bill of fare here is giving general satisfaction. Phil Ray, comedian, receives quite an ovation; Primaveel, juggler, is remarkably smart; the Ferraris bring down the house with their dancing; Tom Stuart, character actor and mimic, is applauded; Amy Clevere is an artistic comedienne and dancer; Gertrude Glenn's company, and the inimitable Passmore Brothers, keep the house agog with merriment in sketch, Larks in the Park; much laughter is caused by Wal Pink's workmen, in knockabout sketch, Repairs; and interesting turns are given by Lux's trained dogs; Maggie Kimmer, serio and dancer; and Charles Craston, comedian.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Another good variety company is here this week. The Three Renards give a capital gymnastic ariel show; Fred Keeton, comedian, is successful; the Breton troupe score in their pantomimic absurdity, A Tramp's Picnic; Molly Wolstenhulme is a charming operatic vocalist; the Harwood's Juvenalles in their novelty sketch A Children's Christmas Eve, introduce taking songs and neat dancing; the Three Sisters Geronde, refined vocalists and dancers, and the Kellograph conclude a capital bill.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Mr. Dickie Clare's company is appearing here in the new musical farcical absurdity, entitled Lucky 'Liza; Miss Madge Brownie, in the title-rôle, is irrestistible, and Miss Madge Locke makes a first-rate Vrginia Blatherwick; Mr. Willie Reid, as William Biffins, is in every way successful; the laughable parts of Peter Petticoe and Barnaby Blatherwick are well played by Mr. James Chippendale and Mr. A. W. Thompson; Mr. Dickie Clare, as Silas Slim, is capital, and Mr. Leonard Markland, as Paul Pettitoe, is most entertaining; the Astor Trio of lady vocalists and acrobatic dancers, give a couple of performances, and well merit the applause with which they are greeted. In the final act Helene and Emilon, Continental novelty gymnasts and equilibrists, provide a smart turn.

PALACE.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant Manager, Mr. H. Taylor.—George French, "the amiable idiot," heads the bill here this week; the Regal Operatic Quartette, in delightful selections from Maritana, also provide a powerful attraction; their singing and acting being worthy of the highest commendation; Cyril Carl, a clever actor-vocalist, is very successful; May Fallowfield is a charming comedienne; Brothers Zano are clever performers on the triple-bars; the Bonanzas are responsible for a good acrobatic display; and the Sisters Hypatia are pleasing duettists and dancers. The Palace Bioscope submits several amusing films.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co. Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—All the essentials of humour, pathos, dramatic interest, and tender sentiment are found admirably commingled in Fritz: Our German Cousin, presented here this week by Mr. Phil Herman's company. The brunt of the comic business is borne by Mr. Phil Herman, whose portrayal of Fritz was prominent in its naturalness and maturity. Mr. Herman sings and dances with much spirit, and his success is instantaneous; Miss Susie Beavan, who possesses ability and a fine physique, makes a comely Katrina, and is also an agreeable singer; Lena, the sister of Fritz, is impersonated by Miss Rubie Maude with pleasing sympathy and studious care; Little Doris Middleton is good as Little Schneider, and her mimicry has much merit; Mr. Stanley Carlton is polished, suave, and incisive in his portrayal of the villainous Colonel Crafton; the good-natured sentimentalist, Augustus, has an able exponent in Mr. Harry T. Butler and Messrs. Henry Lloyd and Fred C. Imbert, in their respective rôles of Bowery Bill and Sambo Squash, lend efficient aid.

DOUGLAS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Business-Manager, Mr. George Gray.—Mr. Herbert Ralland and his clever company are this week appearing in Haddon Chambers's society melodrama, Captain Swift. Miss Minnie Walsh, a charming actress, plays Lady Staunton, and is vivacious and fascinating; Mrs. Seabrook is sincerely interpreted by Miss Nina Zambray; the Mabel Seabrook of Miss Chrissie Ralland has the charm of youth; Miss Kitty Cavendish plays with finish as Stella Darbyshire; the Mr. Wilding of Mr. J. Herbert Beaumont is excellent; Mr. Arthur Dennis is able to get much capital out of the part of Mr. Seabrook; Mr. Richard Walsh does well as Harry Seabrook; the Gardiner of Mr. William Griffin helps the performance, and Mr. James Geldred's Marshall is a study. The scenery and appointments reflect credit on the management. The piece of the evening is preceded by S. Theyer Smith's curtain-raiser, The Happy Pair, admirably played by Miss Chrissie Ralland and Mr. James Geldred.

DERBY CASTLE.—Derby Castle was well filled on Monday night with a crowd of holiday-makers. The bright music, the varied-coloured dresses, the picture hats, the decorations of the ball-room, and the rows of Chinese lamps, by which the building is lighted, all combined to make a picture of life and animation not easily forgotten. The floor is in the very best condition, and the music provided by Mr. Harry Woods' orchestra cannot be improved on for dancing. The variety programme is a good one, including My Fancy.

Mr. Frederick Buxton's Pierrots and Sea Village always attract visitors, and his new pavilion will, if the weather does not prove propitious, afford seating accommodation for as many pleasure-seekers as the Manx steamers can bring to our shores, and that is a large order.

DOVER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter.—This week the boards are occupied by Messrs. F. C. Dew and Frederick Ross's company in John Drayton, Millionaire, a notice of which appears in another column.

THE PAVILION, PROMENADE PIER.—Proprietors, The Dover Thatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter.—The Rawson Family are making their first appearance in this town, and are attracting good houses nightly. Madame S. Rawson is an expert pianiste; Mr. Sidney Rawson is successful as a humourist and reciter; Miss Lelia with violin solos and contralto songs, and Miss Maggie with banjo songs and musical monologues give a charming turn; Master Jack is well received, and Mr. Owen Clark caused wonder by his cleverly manipulated illusions, and wins applause with his conjuring and hand shadows.

THE EMPIRE.—A capital bill is presented here this week. The Sprees give their delightful scena, Twickenham Ferry. Florrie Farren sings and dances in a spirited manner; Miss Emily Blanche, the Dutch girl, is well received, and some interesting pictures are shown by the Photo-Bioscope. An amusing turn is contributed by Tom Dunmore, comedian; Dorothy Bell is a great success, and Verender, the man of many instruments, receives much applause.

DUBLIN. — GAIETY THEATRE. — Sole Representative and Patentee, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager, Mr. Charles Hyland.—The attraction here this week is Miss Alice Chapin's Triple Bill Company. On Monday night the performance commenced with the farcical comedy Faithful James, in which Mr. Frederick Parks provides abundant excuses for hearty mirth as the waiter James; while Miss Winsome Etherington acquits herself admirably as Mrs. Melville; the part of Admiral Vincent has a good representative in Mr. J. Butler, and Miss Paula Fernau is excellent as Mrs. Duncan; Mr. Harold Chapin is exceedingly good as Harry Duncan, and the rôle of Phillip Melville is well played by Mr. H. A. Welchman. A one-act drama, entitled Shame, follows, in which Mr. H. A. Welchman as Dr. Hewett, Miss Alice Chapin as Annie, and Mr. J. Butler as Dr. Conway are all commendable in their respective parts. The concluding piece, the musical comedy A Pantomime Rehearsal, was well received. Mr. Frederick Park causes much amusement in the part of Lord Arthur Pomeroy, and Miss Alice Chapin faithfully portrays the rôle of Lady Muriel Beauclerc; Mr. H. A. Welchman is well suited as Jack Deedes, and the rôles of the Hon. Lily Eaton-Belgrave, the Hon. Violet Eaton-Belgrave, the Hon. May Russell-Portman, and the Hon. Rose Russell-Portman could hardly be better played than they are by the Misses Winsome Etherington, Dorothy Firmin, Paula Fernau, and Elsie Chapin respectively.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Moullot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The third week of the Hippodrome season commenced here on Monday night. The Kellinos Family, Risley performers in a speciality act, A Fête in Venice, are deservedly applauded, and Mr. Alfred Lester, assisted by Miss Hilda Scarisbrick, appear in an amusing skit, entitled The Scene Shifter's Lament; the Sisters Llewellyn, operatic duettists, gain a cordial reception, and Colby and Way are nightly recalled for their smart ventriloquial entertainment; Yags and Mary Trio submit a sensational and daring cycle act, and Germaine, "the Wizard," does some remarkably clever tricks; as vocalists and dancers Les Belles Americaines excel; and Charles Ulrick, barrel king; Maud Prenton, refined comedienne, and the Royal pictures add their share to the general enjoyment.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager Mr. J. W. Whitbread; Acting-Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson.—The Trinity College Amateur and Dramatic Club are fulfilling a week's engagement here, and are producing Sheridan's comedy, The Rivals, and His Excellency the Governor.

PAVILION, KINGSTOWN.—Manager, Mr. C Irvine Dawson.—Mr. Sydney James's Strolling Players company is here this week with a good variety programme. The artists engaged include Miss Madeline Rossiter, Miss Clarice May, Mr. G. W. Desmond, Mr. Alfred Wooton, and Mr. Sydney James in several contributions, which are highly appreciated by large audiences.

EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—Mike S. Whallen, the well-known comedian, is paying a return visit here this week, and repeats his former success. J. Alexander and company's sketch, The Troubles of a Tourist, causes roars of laughter, and Andy Fagan is a comedian of more than ordinary merit; the Sutcliffe Family, Scottish pipers and acrobats, receive due recognition, and Madge Osmund is a clever male impersonator; Howard and Collinson's sketch, The Porter and the Parcel, scores successfully, as does also the Northern Troupe of International Dancers; Gus Garrick's "Tit-Bits" merit applause, and the Empire pictures are up-to-date.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—George Ripon, vocal comedian, is having a very successful time here, and the efforts of the Three McDonalds, musical entertainers, receive due appreciation; the McNulty Sisters, in Southern pastimes, elicit loud applause, and Hess and Lisbon are seen to advantage in an amusing skating act; Ernest Rees is a comedian with a novel style, and Dolly Harmer, comedienne, has many admirers; the Betsons, eccentrics, are a lively pair; and Jack Martin is a capital comedian; Roose, contortionist, makes a decided hit, and the Bioscope is projecting some new films.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The company appearing here includes Syd Mountford, conjurer and performing dog; Lizzie Hayden, descriptive vocalist; Tony Merritt, actor-vocalist, and Cliff Dover, comedian and dancer.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Kennedy's Komiks still hold the boards here. Madame Constance Bellamy takes premier honours this week as a ballad and operatic vocalist. Other good turns are supplied by J. F. Ellis, comedian; Miss Mollie Revell, a "bass-contralto" marvel; Miss Lilian Drake, and several other artists who appeared last week.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson.—A good programme is headed by Abex, the miniature Hercules; the Sisters Gresham are refined duettists and dancers; Dale and D'Argan are exceedingly clever acrobatic conjurers; the Bendons in "That's How They Say Good-night" secured hearty applause; and Mdlle. Florence, globe walker, is highly appreciated.

DUNDEE.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—A special feature on Monday evening was the beginning of a wrestling match, in which John Fowler, the 9st. champion of Dundee, challenges a number of wrestlers for a massive silver cup; Winnie Scott, a charming coon singer and dancer, gave a most enjoyable turn; and Spencer and Marks scored in an amusing sketch, The Stage-Struck Waifs, in which one of their number gave a fine exhibition of step-dancing; Maxford and O'Neill purveyed some capital fooling in their clever turn, which was much applauded; G. W. Walker, the favourite baritone, sang with much effect, and joined Mrs. Williams, the wife of the popular lessee, in a sympathetic rendering of a familiar duet. The Gaiety Bioscope is always a welcome item here, and some capital pictures are shown this week, the effect of which is much enhanced by the delightful accompaniments of Mr. Hartley's orchestra.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—This popular house has been completely repainted and re-upholstered, and is now looking very spick and span. The Kingston Dramatic Company again occupies the boards, and on Monday presented an Irish play, Rollicking Barney. Mr. James Somerville scored as a young unfortunate Irish farmer; no less successful was Mr. A. W. B. Kingston as Barney Mulrooney; Mr. Harry Egan was quaintly funny as Billy Bragg; whilst Miss Dora Hamilton as Moreen had many admirers.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—An exceptionally powerful company is appearing here during the first half of the week in His Excellency the Governor. Mr. Loring Fernie, clear and intense, is a most effective Sir Montague; Mr. Lennox Pawle is a delightful and humorously dignified Sir Henry Carlton; Mr. H. Marsh Allen is an easy, attractive and buoyant Captain Carew, and Mr. Lionel Mackinder is quite a triumph as Baverstock; Mr. Littledale Power and Mr. Arthur Willoughby are capital as Captain Rivers and Major Kildare; Mr. James Blakeley in a part of some limitations is an amusing sentry, and Mr. R. H. Sherard gives good help as the Butler. Miss Ethel Matthews, bright, fascinating and charming, is a very able Stella de Gex; Miss Janet Alexander is a girlish and dainty Ethel Carlton, and Miss Dolly Jones is successful as Mrs. Wentworth-Bolingbroke. Under the title of A Waste of Time, a clever and interesting entertainment is given as a curtain-raiser. Mr. Mackinder dances lightly and gracefully; Mr. James Blakeley sings in his best comic style; Mr. Marsh Allen delights the audience as a reciter; Mr. Loring Fernie declaims in his "heaviest" manner; Mr. Littledale Power supplies the instrumental music at the piano, and Mr. Lennox Pawle is an informal interlocutor.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Harold Payne and his company are appearing here in Petronella. Mr. Harold Payne looks and sings well as Captain Phillipe; Mr. Arthur Lenville causes many laughs as Sergeant Bodega; Mr. Harry A. Gribben is a marked success, and contributes a clever performance as Governor Salutia; Mr. Alfred H. Majilton is a judiciously reserved and impressive Marquis Circumvita, and Mr. Fred Hill as Duc de Ceacida and Mr. Ivor Harvey as Posada give excellent help. Miss Zoe Gilfillan is a very pleasing and natural Petronella, and uses a fine voice well; Miss Alice Rene is a commanding and dignified Queen Cassilda; Miss Marie Ault is a most amusing Step-Annie, and her clever comedy work is one of the bright successes of the evening. The Four Arosas are a troupe of very good Spanish dancers. The scenery and dresses are worthy of particular mention.

THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—The Karno troupe of comedians are provoking roars of laughter by the funny and clever business introduced into the two sketches, Mumming Birds and Jail Birds. Terry and Bentley have a cleverly varied and very popular duologue which goes well; Cline and Clark are admirable dancers; Mr. Harry Coates scores as the singing navvy; Miss Florrie St. Roy is a pleasing comedienne; Miss Amy Elcock is a success as a singer and dancer, and the pictures complete the bill.

ECCLES.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Wardie and Potasch; Manager, Mr. P. Potasch.—The Colley-Dryden Combination is appearing twice nightly; Walter Whiteley, comedian, meets with approval; Will Percival gives a creditable exhibition of clog dancing; the Arizona Troupe of jugglers, acrobats, and contortionists are clever; and Mike Johnson proves very amusing. Mme. Ada Colley is in splendid voice, and her efforts are deservedly rewarded by loud applause; the "Comical Cleaners" prove a really laughable, and, at the same time, clever turn; Madge Mayfield, the premier exponent of dancing, is afforded a pleasing reception; Mr. Leo Dryden renders "Bachelor's Boys, Farewell," &c., in masterly style; and the programme concludes with animated pictures.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—In the course of their tour the members of the Irish National Theatre Company have visited Edinburgh this week, and have presented the following plays from their répertoire—A Pot of Broth, Riders to the Sea, The Building Fund, Spreading the News, In the Shadow of the Glen; Hyacinth Halvay, and Kathleen ni Houlihan. The characters in these little pieces are quite recognisable types of the peasantry of the West of Ireland, and the plays have been agreeably performed by the company. The acting, if somewhat lacking in finish, is always interesting, and the brogue is spoken with irreproachable correctness. Miss Sara Allgood stands out prominently from her confrères by the range of her powers. In the gloomy, yet impressive piece, Riders to the Sea, her impersonation of a sorrow-stricken old woman is vivid and touching, while her acting of the miserly Mrs. Grogan in The Building Fund is equally artistic. Mr. W. G. Fay, the stage manager of the company, shows considerable ability as a comedian; and Miss Marie O'Neill and Miss Brigit O'Dempsey are both promising actresses. A feature of the performance is the admirable rendering of old Irish airs on the violin by Mr. Arthur Darley. Mr. Darley plays with fine feeling and sympathetic instinct, and his efforts meet with the warm approval of the audience.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting - Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton.—The programme here this week includes several very entertaining turns. Mr. Ernest Shand, with his crisp, clever style, is highly amusing alike in patter and song, and receives the honour of a double recall; Martin Adeson and company make the most of rather scanty material in a farce, entitled The Masked Lady, in which Mr. Adeson gives proof of his ability in impersonation; The Automatus are funny in their sketch, and the Althoffs give amusement and pleasure to the audience by their musical turn; Mr. Will Mitcham plays skilfully upon flageolet and saxophone; Miss Maud Ross delights with her neat dancing, and Miss Claire Beasy shows what patient training can do with that unmanageable animal the cat. Miss Frances Letty, an American singer of coon songs, goes through her turn with praiseworthy vigour, and a charming child singer is heard in the person of pretty Miss Kathleen Cogan; Jean Privet's famous Rocking Girls introduce boot dances and a novelty in the form of a rocking chair dance; Mr. Ernest Tilbury, a capital singer, is applauded for his rendering of illustrated songs, and the Bioscope completes an excellent bill of fare.

FARNWORTH.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—Miss Edith Isabelle's company in The Girl From the Halls is paying a visit here this week. Mr. Chas. Ross gives a capital performance as the Rev. Twinkle; Mr. G. Fisher as the Hon. Richard Graham is responsible for a clever character study; and Jack Weston has a capable exponent in Mr. G. Elsworth. Miss Edith Isabelle as Janie keeps the house in continual laughter throughout the performance, and is to be complimented on her lively assumption of the part. She is well assisted by Miss Connie Laurie as the Hon. Frederick Humphum. Miss Frances Allen as Minnie Weston sings very nicely; and Miss Helen Douglas ably fills the part of Mrs. Twinkle. The Mascotte trio of dancers also appear with success.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Fred Winn's company in the farcical comedy, Niobe, is here this week. Mr. Harry Paulton is irresistible as Peter Amos Dunn, a part with which his name has been so long associated; Mr. J. Edward Pearce does extremely well as Corny Griffen; Mr. Harry Paulton, jun. makes a hit as Philip Innings; Mr. H. Asheton Tonge renders valuable assistance as Hamilton Tomkins; and Mr. George Farrow as Parker Sillocks is also well placed. Miss Lucie Verrier gives a charming performance as Beatrice Sillocks; Miss Lillian Brennard makes the most of her opportunities as Madeline Mifton; the Hattie Griffen of Miss Violet Hollom creates a lot of amusement; Miss Kate Turner makes an excellent Caroline Dunn; Miss Mary Kilpack evokes roars of laughter by her impersonation of Helen Griffen; and Miss Annie Esmond deserves high praise for her rendering of Niobe.

VICTORIA PIER.—Lessees, Messrs. Keith Prowse and Co., Ltd.; Local Manager, Mr. J. Fenton Walsh.—A good programme is presented here this week. Miss Alice Braunstein delights her audience with her pleasing contributions; Miss Ida Freeman is a charming comedienne, and is much applauded for her dancing; and the Imperial Austrian Band, under the direction of Her Franz Mersel, is a strong attraction.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. A. Sitter.—Miss Florence Venning, contralto, is paying a return visit here this week, and is as popular as ever; Mr. Sydney Locklynne, mimic and raconteur, scores a success; and the Ladies' Blue Salon Band and the Animated Pictures are much appreciated.

GATESHEAD.— METROPOLE THEATRE.— Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Miss Marie Menzies and company are appearing here in the drama, A Rogue's Daughter. Mr. Frank V. Fenn makes a capital hero, and Mr. Roy Gordon's portrayal of Sir George Mynard is well done. Mr. Richard Ferris depicts the villainous Colonel Forster with good effect; and to Mr. A. Hall-Menzies much praise is due for his humorous portrayal of 'Ercules. Miss Marie Menzies achieves a triumph in the dual rôles of Lady Mynard and Mrs. Jenkins. Miss M. E. Robertson scores in the part of Priscilla Jenkins; Misses Millie Gordon and Madge Devereux are successful in their respective characters.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. M. S. Hammond; General-Manager, Mr. Joe May.—The programme submitted here is of a first-class order. First and foremost come the Harmony Four, who are awarded the highest praise for their vocal and musical contributions; the Waldrons are a very amusing pair; the lady of the twain being also a smart dancer; Herbert La Martine is an eccentric dancer and bâton manipulator of the first class; Hector and Paulus are smart acrobats; Mark Leslie, a coon impersonator, makes a hit; and Miss Flo Deighton, a double-voiced vocalist, does likewise. Jack Crawley, mimic and raconteur; Wilson Roberts, actor-vocalist; and the pictures by the King's bioscope complete the bill.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Occupying the leading line here is Harry Brown, an excellent coloured comedian; Stanley and Vandyke contribute an extremely funny sketch, entitled A Broken Promise; Annie Cohen sings two songs excellently; and Sibb and Sibb are responsible for a clever acrobatic act. The Calcotts submit a dancing and musical act which is well received; and the bill is completed by Billy Young, a local newsboy mimic; Miniature Marie, vocalist; and the Coolvilles, comediennes.

GLASGOW.—KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager pro tem., Mr. Percy Humphrys.—This week an interesting triple bill, embracing drama, farcical comedy, and grand opera, is being submitted by Mr. Andrew Moir's company. The first piece on the programme is Andrew Paterson, a dramatic episode in one act, in which Mr. Percy Marshall plays the title-part with fine effect; the other two characters, Dick Poole and Rosie, having handsome representatives in Mr. Charles Hanbury and Miss Lilian Hallowes. The Major's Double, a brisk and amusing comedy, supplies the farcical element. The parts of the irascible Major Prendergast and his counterpart John Cockie are capitally filled by Mr. J. B. Gordon and Mr. Percy Marshall respectively; Mr. Charles Hanbury is well suited as Jack Jannaway; Mr. James Danvers makes the most of his opportunities as Tim Blake, while a highly eccentric page boy is supplied by Mr. W. B. Frecar; Miss Lilian Hallowes and Miss Dorrie Roberts are charming as the young wives Madge and Daisy; and Miss Eilly Helene gives sufficient character to the part of Norah Sullivan. The third item is the new miniature opera The Gamester, which is personally conducted by the composer, Ainlf Hjorvard. In the tenor part Mr. Andrew Roy sings with great brilliance and power; the rôle of Marjorie is allotted to Miss Dorothy Southgate, who possesses a voice of great purity and sweetness; while the remaining character, Raphael, is represented in good style by Mr. Charles Cautley.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Mr. J. W. Whitbread's company is presenting Sarsfield here this week with admirable results. The part of Sarsfield is cleverly embodied by Mr. Robert Faulkner; Miss Cecilia Dare submits an artistic rendering of Lady Honor de Burgh; Mr. Dane Clarke is excellent in the rôle of General de Genkle; Mr. Henry Forrest proves very effective as the Duke of Wurtemburg; as Terry Hogan Mr. James O'Brien is very amusing; Miss Monica Kelly is good as Eilly Blake; and Miss Madeline Hurst plays Lady Rose with admirable effect. Mr. Harry Richardson is equal to the demands made upon him as Hans Oosterdam, and Miss E. F. Brady does well as Molly. On Friday the drama Willy Reilly was the attraction.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Limited; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—A good all-round company is billed here this week. Bransby Williams, in selections from his répertoire, is installed first favourite, his impersonation of the showman of bygone days being exceptionally clever; while his reading, entitled The Student causes much merriment; Mendel, the blind pianist, meets with a flattering reception. Owing to the unfortunate accident to Miss Dot Stephens (who nearly lost her life on the railway), the management secured the services of Miss Myra Stanfield, comedienne, to fill her place, which she did with much acceptance. A well-played sketch, entitled The Freak's Revenge, is presented by Fred Conquest and company; and the singing and dancing of Nellie Martell are much enjoyed. The other members of the company include Ergotti and King Luis, risleyists; Walter Curtis, comedian; Jagos, duettists and dancers; Francis and Melli, in a novel eccentric act; and the American Bioscope.

ZOO HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—John Tiller's company in Doon the Water is fulfilling a second week's engagement, and delighting large houses with this popular and breezy spectacle. Myra Stanfield, comedienne, is quite sprightly in a dainty song, and the charming musical act by the Jackson Family is deservedly applauded. The novel athletic performance of the Klos Sisters is marked by grace of movement and strength of muscles; Lady Julia is undoubtedly a phenomenon, well described as "the ape with the human brains"; a clever musical comedy turn is given by Ross and Grayson. The Bioscope concludes a programme most suitable to the season.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—The star turn here is Herbert Lloyd, whose quaint eccentricities keep the audience in roars of laughter all the time he is on. Donaldson Bros. and Ardel give their clever zoological sketch, which proves as popular and as enjoyable as ever; Louie Collier, assisted by Fred. Hudson, contributes the vocal success of the evening in a scena introducing several popular songs and duets; Mlle. Zelda plays a selection of popular airs on various novel instruments, and is well received. That dainty little comedienne, Nora Emerald, delights the audience with her clever songs and taking style; the Carlyles give a display of acrobatic dancing; Will Souls does well with his laughing song; L. B. Athol gives a dramatic song in praise of his briar pipe; and Allan and Hart are well received in their song and dance turn.

PALACE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Fred Cary, comedian, tops the bill here, and justifies that position; another interesting and amusing turn is that of Harry Radford and Mlle. Valentine, jugglers and jesters. Other notable names include B. R. Day, champion runner, with exhibitions on a special track; Lily Lena, comedienne; Will Driscoll, comedian and dancer; the Holloways, expert wire-walkers; Lillian, lady cyclist; the Sisters Redfern, a smart pair of vocalists and dancers; and the Bioscope with a novel series of pictures.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan.—Captain Bevan's Gordon Highlanders go through many intricate evolutions in neat style, and their wall-climbing display is wonderfully good; Macdonald's Melody Makers contribute a novel musical turn, which is well received; the McConnell Family have always been big favourites in Glasgow, and their welcome is again hearty; Griff comes with his new scena, representing himself at home rehearsing, and gets laughs in his own easy style; the New York Nippers are smart dancers and sweet singers, and their little comedian is a clever youngster; Eily Adair sings and dances neatly; the Warsaw Bros. with their musical turn are in their second week; Clown Barker and Miss Rozsika shows some cleverly trained dogs, ponies, &c.; Hector Adair, Scotch comedian, and the Bioscope complete a first-rate programme.

GRAVESEND.

HANLEY.—GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Biphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—Another excellent programme is submitted this week. Miss Lil Hawthorne is at the head with clever vocal contributions; G. H. Elliott, "chocolate coloured coon," scores a distinct success; Frank Cass sings admirably; Athas and Collins are capital humorists; Marie Reeve is a comedienne and dancer of ability; Baroux and Bion, in their funny acrobatic business, are much appreciated; Bessie Benson is a capable dancer, and Urbanora shows amongst other pictures Spearmint's victory in the Grand Prix.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager; Mr. C. Fielding Smith.—This week the attraction at this popular theatre is Messrs. Frazer-Brunner and Gilbert Heron's company in the Superior Miss Pellender. Miss Jessie Danvers is an excellent Mrs. Pellender, and Miss Alice Belmore, as Miss Pellender, does good work, and is greatly appreciated; a very clever performance is given by Mr. George Belmore as the boy Noel; the Misses Ramsey and Bowes are responsible for the parts of Edith and Nancy, both well played; Mr. Gilbert Heron is good as the nervous Mr. Tister. The Superior Miss Pellender is preceded by Kit's Atonement. Mr. Douglas Wentworth's company in The Bauble Shop is billed for the last three nights of the week.

HARTLEPOOL. — EMPRESS. — Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—The sporting fraternity are being well catered for this week, the programme consisting of a cinematograph exhibition of the Brett-Nelson fight for the championship of the world, which is clearly shown on a film between 5000 and 6000 feet long; Kid Gwyn, America's ball-puncher, gives a smart exhibition of his skill, and the old favourite, Frank Coyer, is here again.

THE EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager; Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week Yorick and Yorick, unique acrobatic comedians, give a clever show; while Capita, an up-to-date living marionette; Mr. Alex. Fox, a smart ventriloquist; Miss Katie More, comedienne, and Lake and Logan, in their original absurdity, The Gunner's Lunch, assist in a capital programme.

HASTINGS. — HIPPODROME. — Resident and General-Manager, Mr. Albert Mathams. — Miss Daisy Clements, a pleasing vocalist, takes the place of honour on the programme this week. An interesting sketch is introduced by Frank Elliston and company, entitled Aunt Matilda; the bioscope films are a source of great amusement; Stevens and Rennior delight the audience with their patter and dancing; a clever turn is given by Captain J. A. Davies and his black and white Zouaves in an exhibition of lightning drill and wall-scaling; Miss Nellie Chandos, comedienne and dancer, has many admirers; some very superior acting is shown in a romantic episode of 1770, a sketch which is much appreciated; Harry Champion, with well-sung songs, finishes a good entertainment.

PIER PAVILION. — Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr. J. D. Turner.—Mr. A. B. Tapping and a first-class company are appearing in Mr. H. A. Jones's interesting play, entitled The Dancing Girl. Mr. Tapping is an excellent representative of Reginald Slingsby; Mr. Frederick Sargent gives a finished piece of work in the part of the Duke of Guisebury; as John Christison, Mr. George Mudie, jun., submits a fine example of dignity and subdued force; David Ives is well played by Mr. Harry Collier; a good impersonation of Mr. Crake is given by Mr. Cecil Murray; Miss Eva Bayley is satisfactory in both her dual characters, but excels as the old lady, Mrs. Christison; a charming rendering of Sybil Crake is given by Miss Clarissa Selwynne; Miss Cherry Sargent submits an effective interpretation of Faith Ives; Drusilla Ives is well represented by Miss Alice Farleigh, her sympathetic embodiment of the part deserving the highest praise.

ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master and Entertainment Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—The comedy, entitled My Artful Valet, occupied the boards here the early part of the week, followed later on by The Scarlet Clue. In the first piece, Miss Grace Warner, an actress of considerable dramatic ability, plays the principal part in the character of Mrs. Lovering, a young widow; the lady is capitally seconded by the smart acting of Mr. George Gordon, who represents Mr. Leopold FitzJocelyn; Mr. John Tomlinson as the retired tanner is an excellent character sketch; and Jessie is successfully depicted by Miss Lizzie Palmer. Mr. Leighton Leigh gives an intelligent performance of Count Evitoff; the two Generals of the Russian Army are well sustained by Mr Andre and Mr. J. H. Grayson; an adequate interpretation of FitzJocelyn's valet, Spinks, is submitted by Mr. Reginald Brown; the parlour-maid, Parker, and Mrs. Lovering's maid, Kitty, are well portrayed by Miss Amy Lyle and Miss Kathleen Cranston.

HUDDERSFIELD. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The great attraction here this week is Chung Ling Soo, whose conjuring tricks make him a great favourite. The Three Schaffers execute a number of clever and difficult gymnastic feats; a large amount of amusement is derived from Frank Keegan and company in their bicycle absurdity, the riders showing great ability; the Five Zerebinis provide a very able musical turn, and are loudly applauded; the vocal portion of the programme is made up by Messrs. Bob Hamilton, Starr and Jerome, Cissie Curlette, Austin and Cowan, Ida Ross, and G. W. Foster.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—After a lapse of years Sydney Grundy's powerful play, A Bunch of Violets, again holds the boards at this house. The rôle of Sir Phillip Marchant is admirably depicted by Mr. Norman Partriege, an actor of much merit; while the character of Harker furnishes Mr. Leon Aynscliffe ample opportunity to prove his worth. Mrs. Murgatroyd has in Mrs. T. Greenwood -Croft an excellent representative; whilst the Violet of Miss Tessa Myers has many fine touches; Miss Florence Russell-Spiers is admirable as Lady Marchant. A Bunch of Violets has for a curtain-raiser a pretty little play, Nan.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The Arnold Bell company is paying an early return visit, and includes in its répertoire Ben-My-Chree, Called Back, and the Shaughraun. A notice of their work appeared so recently that it is only necessary to add that Mr. Bell's Dan Mylrea delighted the audience on Monday evening; whilst the Mona of Miss Lilian Earle was a distinguished representation.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—A play new to Hull is A Noble Brother, a drama which has acquired fame on two continents. In it Mr. Chas. Carte, an actor of sterling worth, shines conspicuously as Jerry, the tramp. Ably assisting Mr. Carte is Miss Doris Brooke as Nana Leigh. The scenery is worthy of the play.

THE PALACE. — Resident - Manager, Mr. John Barnett. — Mr. George Gray and company are presenting the excellent sketch, The Road to Ruin, which holds the audience spellbound. J. A. Wilson is an old favourite here; Vernando, a new ventriloquist, is very smart; Harry Freeman's rollicking songs meet with approbation. Other good turns include William Lee and Helen Bentley, Conn and Conrad, Starr and Leslie, and Walton and Lester.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Mr. Alfred Graham.—Iona, the enchanted statue, is the top turn, and is presented by two ladies and two gentlemen with good results; the Three Sisters Silcott are vocalists and dancers of much ability; Luigi Salvino is a clever boy musician; Shirley and Ransome present a character-song in which much dramatic feeling is displayed. Other turns include the Fimans, Lilian Elfreda (a good mimic), Auto and Mobil, and Milner Verren.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—A capital selection of pictures are being presented here this week.

ILKESTON. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Mr. Louis Cohn's stock company is appearing here this week in Shadows of a Great City and other pieces. Mr. George Steel is seen as Tom Cooper, a part which he takes with undoubted ability, and Miss E. Turner-Elliott's acting as Annie and Nellie Standish leaves nothing to be desired; the rôle of Mr. Arkwright is capably filled by Mr. Clement Wakefield; Miss Gwendoline Thorpe makes a suitable Biddy Roonan; Mr. E. Bulwer-Pitt is quite at home as Jim Farren; Mr. Charles D. Pitt successfully represents the unpleasant George Benson, and Mr. Cohn himself gives able assistance as Abe Nathan.

IPSWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. G. Boatock. — The week's programme is headed with a very attractive performance by Eight Lancashire Lads, singers and dancers of marked ability; Espinsos and Neilson give a clever display of French, Russian, and coon dances, and the Athlones accomplish some smart displays of muscular feats on the rings. Other turns include Ian Colquhoun, a robust baritone vocalist; Walter Ray, another singer of versatile selections; Elton and Elma, knockabout artists; the Cleveland burlesque company gives a medley of dancing, tumbling, and juggling, and a sketch, entitled £1000 for a Baby, by Charles A. East and company.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jerold E. Reed.—Messrs. Garside and Knowles' company is here with the powerful drama, entitled The London Fireman, and Mr. E. L. Garside does full justice to the rôle of Hal Curtis, sen.; Miss Florence M. Daly makes the most of the part of Grace Curtis; Mr. Frank Hertie is well placed as Doctor Gerrard; Miss Nellie Shirley scores as Ida Curtis; Mr. J. Forbes-Knowles is an ideal Hal Curtis, the young fireman, and also appears with success as Colonel Fleming; Mr. Oliver Birrell does well as Viscount Fleming; Miss Nellie Garside is quite at home in the part of Polly Bramble, and Mr. Charles A. Preece is very droll as Nixey Stinger.

LEEDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston. — A sensational melodrama, The Price of Pleasure, is being played at the Royal this week by Miss Emily Huby's company. Mr. Howell Webb is responsible for a forceful and convincing presentment of the central figure of the piece, Sir James Featherstone; whilst the leading feminine part of Alice Rivers is an excellent personation by Miss M. Collins; Mr. H. B. Ross portrays with quiet power the important rôle of Gilbert Thompson; the work of Mr. Charles E. Howell as Charles Mordaunt leaves nothing to be desired; Mr. Richard Harris acquits himself with distinction in the comedy part of Sidney Roberts; and Mr. Edwin Ramsdale and Miss Lily Clark are also seen to advantage in leading characters.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—An interesting domestic drama, A Mother's Love, is the attraction at this popular theatre, and a good company, organised by one of the authors, Mr. Fred L. Connynghame, includes that gentleman in his original and vastly amusing presentation of the comedy part, Mat Ruddock. Mr. Arthur Rose does good work as the Rev. Paul Wingate; Mr. George Child is strong and effective as the evil-doer, Geoffrey Mannering; a sympathetic portrayal of the vicar's wife, Winnie, is to be credited to Miss Violet Macaree; the child, Marjorie, is cleverly embodied by Miss Bertha Christobel; and other parts are capably handled by Mr. Robert W. Lynne, Mr. S. Clifton, Miss Marjory Murray, and Miss Dorothy Monkhouse.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—The incomparable Cinquevalli is once again in evidence here, and his wonderful feats of jugglery, served up with a most enjoyable leaven of humour, arouse the liveliest interest and enthusiasm. George Brooks has on this visit enhanced a big local reputation as a clever comedian; a popular vocalist, Lilian Lea, is charming in the vocal scena, "My Borneo Bungalow"; Brett and Orford are successful with comedy and vocal titbits; entertaining comedy and smart dancing are also the specialities of Roberts, Hayes, and Roberts, an accomplished trio; and the Bastiens prove to be remarkably expert acrobats; the Lunelle Sisters do well in song and dance; Ike Scott and Son find favour with their well-known comedy specialities; and Lizzie Daniels, comedienne, contributes her quota to the bill.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—The clever Scotch comedian Jack Lorimer is a strong line in the week's bill; Fanny and Harry Dent are big favourites in their comedy speciality; and the Ringling Trio are also smart in comedy contributions; the Six Lancashire Lasses win general applause with taking song and dance; Billy Hobbs, coon specialist, is good; there are mystifying feats by Penstone, illusionist; Joe Conway figures as a juvenile comedian; and Dora Lyric, comedienne, also contributes acceptable items.

LEICESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The boards are held here this week by Messrs E. A'Dell and Fred Chabot's company in the interesting drama, The Romany's Revenge. A clever young actress, Miss Ethel Ashleigh, plays well as Zamlet; Miss Eva Elws gives a good account of the dual rôles of Lillian Hope and Elspie; Miss Fannie Wallace is a vivacious Dolly Pluck and dances smartly; Miss Lil Francis is capital as Archie; Mr. Charles Gallier makes an excellent impression as the hero, John Hope; and Mr. Harry C. Robinson, as the evil genius, David Renard, is well placed; Mr. David Hamilton, as Bobbie Bloom, is most amusing, and is popular with his songs.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Andrews. — The place of honour amongst a list of clever artists is held by Little Tich. His turn is as bright and enjoyable as ever, and he keeps the audience in the merriest of moods. At the other end are the famous Craggs, who are presenting, for the first time here, their elaborate sketch, Billy, an extremely mirth-provoking entertainment, which also allows for a full display of their remarkable powers as acrobats. Marie Kendall, as usual, is heartily greeted, and her songs are rendered in her usual vivacious manner; Stave, the musical Kaffir, gives a clever turn, his patter, playing on various instruments, and big-boot dancing being well received; Steve McCarthy is encored for his exhibition of smart dancing; Ella Retford is an excellent comedienne and dancer; Leah Arden is an attractive vocalist; the American Bioscope is depicting the Royal Bull-Fight in Madrid, and the race for the Grand Prix of Paris. We regret that owing to illness, Mr. Hull (of Fielding and Hull) is unable to appear, but Miss Fielding, the lady partner, does a single turn, and is most successful.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—The principal attraction here this week is Carlotta De Yonson and her excellent company, who are presenting the dramatic sketch, Crime and the Criminal, and the comedy sketch, Apartments to Let, the parts played by Carlotta De Yonson, Mr. Chas. A. Carlile, Mr. C. Douglas Carlile, and Lee Gilbert being well sustained. The variety portion of the programme is contributed to by Louie Hurman, burlesque actress, who is scoring her usual big success here; Helm and Cozens, who prove amusing in their comedy trifle, The Doctor and the Patient; Maudie Vera, a vivacious and popular young comedienne; Walter H. Pallister's American Bioscope, with interesting pictures; and Jack Foley, comedian.

PIERROT PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Abell, Johnson, and Unsworth. — This week the programme here is contributed to by the following artists, whose efforts are heartily appreciated:—Miss Ruth Nesbit and Mr. Stanley Johnson, in scenes from Shakespeare and old English comedy; Fred Erick, comedian; Dan Lyndon, comedian; Ernest Hildred, baritone vocalist; Edith May, soubrette; and Jeff Lytton, pianist and musical director.

LIVERPOOL. — ROTUNDA THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.—Defending His Honour, from the able pen of Mr. Lingford Carson, is here this week, with Mr. Fred Granville's principal company. The absorbing story told in the plot has been followed with keen interest, while the dressing of the drama left nothing to be desired. Mr. Fred W. Goddard was in the chief rôle of Douglas Bryce, which he undertook with marked ability; Miss Chrissie Dunbar played most effectively as Ethel, the distressed wife; the unscrupulous scoundrel Stephen Graid found in Mr. Carthage Caldcleugh a worthy exponent; the child part, Jack Bryce, was satisfactorily held by Miss Dorothy Vaughan; Mr. Walter Manfree was good as David Pellar; the George Duncan of Mr. A. Balfour Mackay proved acceptable; and other well handled parts were those of Jack Damish (Mr. Evan Roland), Dick Verison (Mr. Haughton Macaulay), and Trixie Lucien (Miss Ida Mackay).

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—The varied programme presented here this week includes the Empire Comedy Four, well trained and artistic songsters; Charles Serra is loudly applauded for his daring equilibristic act; a good turn is that of Illumino Statuo, which is decidedly novel and artistic; Arthur Croxon is an amusing mimic; Dan Thomas is very comical; Billy Burns, the Pit Boy, has a good reception; Sidney Dolf is decidedly clever with his juggling and singing; Violet Ashcroft is also good as a comedienne.

STAR THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The sensational 10.30 Down Express has occupied the boards here throughout the week, Mr. Horace Stanley and company paying a welcome return visit. As the manly Jack O'Malley Mr. Charles Burdon played with strong dramatic effect, and proved very popular; Miss Elsie Capell acted with discretion as Bessie Leigh; a capital villain, James Inderwick, came from Mr. George Arthur; Mr. Francis Serle filled the character of the detective, Huntley Mason, with the utmost satisfaction; Miss Evelyn M. Walton proved highly humorous as Letitia Leigh, the "new woman"; and strong support came from Mr. Horace Stanley (Sam Wagstaffe), Miss Clara Santley (Olive Coombes), and Miss Kate Kilpack (Peggy Potts). The immense engine was a particularly striking introduction.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—All the old Irish dramas never fail to prove attractive to Liverpool audiences, and this week The Shaughraun has, considering the warmness of the weather, been exceedingly well patronised here. The play was admirably mounted and dressed, while Mr. Carson's No. 1 company, which presented it, included some first-class artists. The Conn of Mr. Arthur Byron was full of life and gaiety; a finer Harvey Duff than that offered by Mr. Charles Draycott could hardly be desired; Miss Hettie Senior submitted a Claire Ffolliot which was remarkable for its polish and finish; Miss Daisy Norman did every credit to her work as Moya; Mr. J. Dobson Clyde was a manly Ffolliot; as Father Doolan Mr. M. Morley Carrol acted with discretion and reserve; thanks are due to Mr. Sydney C. Cranston for his Captain Molineux, also to Mr. Ernest J. Fare for his Kinchela; while Miss Louise A. Pardy was a sweet Arte O'Neale, and Miss Louise Millward is to be complimented on her Mrs. O'Kelly.

THE EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Neil Kenyon is the big attraction here this week; Horace Wheatley comes with some new things; Auguste Van Biene, with the playlet The Master Musician, has a cordial reception; a smart illusion *The Shrine of Ista*r, is introduced by Mr. Fred Carlton; and others in the list are Duncan's Scotch Collies; the Four Olympians; the Seddons; Maud Mortimer; Mariano Sisters; the Jack Theo Trio; and the Larakans.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—Heading a capital bill this week are Wilber Hill and Willette Whitaker, who present a unique entertainment of music and song, for which they are accorded hearty applause; the remarkable exhibition of mental telegraphy so skilfully given by the Violas creates much astonishment; Edwin Boyde remains another six nights to put everybody in a good humour; F. De Marcé, with his dogs, ponies, and monkeys, affords a most interesting turn; Stewart and Morgan have a popular speciality, Leaving Ireland, into which some well-known Irish melodies are introduced; Billy Williams is an excellent comedian, with taking songs; Frances Haskoll, with illustrated numbers, including "The Boys of the Old Brigade," has had a gratifying reception; Arthur Elvey, with his latest, "The Up-to-date Tipster," proves most acceptable; and among others who appeared are Maidie Scott, comedienne; Recco, with a funny acrobatic act; and Robert Ganthony, entertainer.

NEW PARTHENON. — Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—A new set of very fine motion pictures are being shown here during the week, a number of variety artists giving turns at different periods of the evening. The Tuesday matinées are proving exceedingly popular.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. — A Woman's Honour, by W. H. Dearlove, has been the dramatic sketch produced here this week by the "Royal" stock company. Mr. Percy Boucher created great fun with his Peter Puffkins, Miss Ida Salmon affording him much assistance as Sally Perks; Mr. Robert Wilton held the part of Dr. Ross Cowling with every satisfaction; the Ruel Faut of Mr. Harry Tresham was a well-drawn character; Mr. Sydney Grant played with his accustomed ability as Guy Thiel; Mr. John Burton gave an effective rendering of Sir Rowland Rawson; the Edmund Fitz-Pease of Mr. E. D. Allen proved eminently pleasing; Miss Lina Nazeby made an excellent Mona; and Miss Florence Palmer, a favourite here, very tenderly portrayed Fay.

PADDINGTON PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—A welcome return visit of Mr. J. Wright Aitken and company, including Miss Una Wright, has been paid here this week with the sketch The Streets of London. In the work, which has proved acceptable, Mr. Aitken gives a capital character sketch as Badger. The rest of the programme is occupied by Charles Coll, who, as a comedian, renders several taking songs, and Violet Mack, a smart serio. The Bioscope pictures, including "The Devil's Wooing," are pretty as well as startling.

PARK PALACE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Here this week Will Vay's Juveniles are producing a neat comedy scena entitled Life in the Slums, which has proved popular; some attractive character songs are rendered by Violet Beatrice; Wat Tyler has a pleasing scena, The Deserted Home; Rita Bell, the Girl from Holland, sings with taste; some clever comedy juggling comes from H. O. Borie; the operatic selections by the Royal Temple Trio, including Mme. Louie Gilbert, are received with every pleasure; and Matt Wilkinson's sketch company evokes continuous laughter with The Registry Office.

HAYMARKET.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—A particularly good line here this week is Florence Yaymen, whose coon burlesque items have been hugely enjoyed; Lillie Le Breton is a dainty gymnast, her novelty trapeze act being warmly applauded; the Liverpool favourite T. W. Barrett, has a number of new songs and comedy titbits; uproarious laughter follows the comic character skating of the Miltons; the Sisters Bronson are sweet singers and dancers; some humorous songs and patter come from the quaint and agile Clem Lisbon; and Harry Cayman, a versatile artist, has a smart sketch, with special scenery, entitled Le Café Chantant.

WESTMINSTER. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—Bennett and Martell, known as "the lunatics," top the bill here this week, and arouse irresistible laughter with their sketch The Shipwrecks; Elsie Belton is a chic comedienne and dancer; the juggling of Monty is both clever and humorous; Edna Cragge renders some excellent songs in good style; Lillian Victoria, the Eton Boy, is above the average as a male impersonator; John Power shows himself to be an accomplished coster character artist; and the Brothers Lillian, backed by a capital fit-up and electrical effects, give a remarkable performance on the silver chains.

OLYMPIA, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—The excellence of the programmes submitted here is maintained. This week the Boisset Troupe in The Bricklayers cause screams of laughter; De Dio, with a charming spectacular dance, is a much-admired turn; the remarkable whistling powers of Shawlene are listened to with much attention; the head and hand balancing of the Broe Attab is cordially appreciated; the Dumond Minstrels have made a hit with their clever vocal and instrumental show; some mystifying feats of conjuring are provided by Hermann Melot; the electric cane dancing of Frank Cumminger is greatly admired; the quaint antics of the Brothers Harrison cause many a smile; and Frank Dunlop is a comedian of merit.

TOM CAMPBELL'S VAUDEVILLE ENTERTAINMENTS.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Tom Campbell.—Harry Fay keeps the audience in excellent humour with his songs; Tom Smith is a clever comedian; Little Marie Dane is a favourite here; Roger Dun is a talented descriptive vocalist; and A. J. Frame is answerable for a deal of laughter.

LONG EATON.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Meakin.—An arrangement has been made for a term with Messrs. Frederick Lloyd and E. St. Clair Forbes, and following the Sorrows of Satan has been introduced The Octoroon. The singing and dancing of Miss Daisy Stone and Mr. Edwin Ramsdale are greatly enjoyed; Miss Florence Creagh is a capable Zoe; Mr. Forbes, the faithful Wah-No-Tee, and Mr. Hugh Brady, the brutal slave-owner. The knife-fight is a feature of the closing scene.

MAIDENHEAD.—PAVILION PLEASURE GARDENS — Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gude.—The popular al fresco entertainments here continue to attract large audiences. Mr. Dan Dawlish and Mr. Chris Baker delight with humorous songs; Mr. Gus Daniels excels in character impersonations; Miss Gertie Lovedale is a smart and energetic comedienne; Miss Adelaide Twort is equally good in songs new and old; and Mr. Alec Tyson proves himself thoroughly efficient both as soloist and accompanist.

MAIDSTONE. — HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr. G. H. Watson.—Victor Travers makes a hit as an eccentric comedian; the Smythsons appear with laughable effect in Our Suite; Culpitt displays great ability as a conjurer; and the Gartell Trio, instrumentalists; and Fox and Melville, song illustrators, are also worthy of special mention. This is the last week of the present season.

MANCHESTER.—ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager. Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The popular drama, The Master Criminal, is presented here this week by a company headed by Mr. Henry L. Osmond, who gives a powerful rendering of the title-rôle, and Miss Winifred Chalmers, who is exceptionally good as Cecile. Mr. Elmore Frith as Ben Beaudy of Scotland-yard contributes also a fine performance, and some good comedy is submitted by Mr. Harry Cooke as Tommy Dale, and Mr. J. W. Gallagher, who figures as Gentleman Jim. Among others, Little Ellen Gillette distinguishes herself by some excellent singing.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Last week's attraction at the King's, Longsight, A Soldier's Revenge, is presented here this week by Messrs. Beaudyn, Livesey, and Hardy's company.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—Mr. F. H. Neville's company are giving here this week a capital performance of The Silent Witness. Mr. F. H. Neville makes the most of his rôle of Jan Vedder, and his efforts are well supported by Miss Glory Clarence, who gives a strong rendering of her part of Estelle Meredith. Mr. Bradford Crosby fills the heroic rôle of Philip Meredith with credit; Mr. R. W. Bedford is successful as Joe Jorum; Miss Mildred Monteith is distinctly good as Anita; Mr. T. Byron is a lively Dandy Dick; and Miss E. Lewis is satisfactory as Polly Lockwood. Quite a notable addition to the strength of the cast is Miss M. Clarke who gives a wonderful exhibition in dancing and legmania, and is a decided acquisition to the company.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—This week we have here Mr. Frank Bateman's company in No Wedding Bells for Her, which was played to good houses at the Royal Osborne Theatre last week.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Berry.—Mr. Sydney Spenser's company give an admirable performance of The Hero of the Flag here this week. The story is of naval interest, and is exceptionally well staged. Mr. Sydney Spenser gives a good depiction of the unprincipled Paul Mansfield; a pleasing delineation of Mabel Forester is given by Miss Lizzie Hall; Mr. William Heilbronn is active and manly as Jack Lawrence; Miss Roma Tremayne acts with care and sympathy as Ruth Clifford; Captain Hilliard is presented in clever and dignified style by Mr. Alfred Goddard; and considerable amusement is caused in comic part by Mr. Johnny McElroy and Miss Amy Maitland.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Satan is a thrilling sketch presented here this week in fine style by Edward Sillward and a first-rate company. Mr. Sillward in the title-rôle is seen to great advantage, and the sketch is much above the average; the Manhattan Comedy Four are excellent humorous comedians and make a big hit; and the wonderful acrobatic and tumbling feats of the Achmid Ibrahim troupe of Bedouin Arabs are received with loud acclamation. Rose and Calvert are good in a burlesque on Captain Kettle; Venie Clements is a versatile comedian and a neat dancer; Alice May is very smart in a protean sketch; George Collins, comedian, is decidedly funy; and Mlle. Frederica introduces some cleverly trained terriers and a cake-walking pony. A series of capital animated pictures complete. On the occasion of our visit Charles Norton, mimic, did not appear. The fifteenth anniversary is announced for Friday next, June 29, when a big programme will be gone through.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—An extremely good programme here this week is headed by Mark Sheridan, who in his usual quaint style keeps the audience highly amused while he is on the stage. Another prominent item is Home from the Honeymoon, an interesting and laughable sketch by Arthur Jefferson. A very pleasing turn is that of the Gems, a combination of five accomplished vocalists, who treat the audience to a very clever and refined entertainment; Odeyne Spark, comedian, contributes some excellent dancing; and a good show is given by Francis, the cannon-ball king, who is humorously assisted by Alfred, a very smart juggling comedian; Belloni's cockatoos are a marvellous example of bird training; the Bros. Damm are accomplished athletes; Frank and Free are loudly aplauded for a very clever matrimonial comedy act; and Rex King, the one-man programme, presents a series of character parts with wonderful rapidity and skill. The pictures in the Bioscope are also interesting.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—Fred Ginnett and company are the chief attraction here this week in an improved edition of Dick Turpin's Ride to York, in which a wonderfully intelligent mare is introduced as Black Bess; W. F. Frame, the Scotch comedian, sings several songs and is well received; Binns and Binns are particularly good in an eccentric musical item; Paul Conchas, who has a very funny assistant, does some sensational feats with cannon balls; and Alcide Capitaine is a pleasing and clever gymnast. Daisy Dormer is a delightful coon singer and dancer; the Three Chester Sisters are capital dancers; and the Monte Myro troupe are eccentric pantomimists who cause no end of fun. Two enjoyable vocal items are contributed by the choir; and the Bioscope shows H.M.S. "Montagu" on the rocks at Lundy Island.

TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—George Mozart is to the front here this week and is particularly well received, all his business being first class. The Matramos (Tom and Marie), as usual, are good in their musical comedy act Do You Reverse? and make a big hit; Ethel Negretti, burlesque artist, sings well; F. V. St. Clair, the well-known topical vocalist, is extremely popular and up to date; the Davenports are smart magicians and illusionists; and Cissy Paris, vocalist, is greatly appreciated. Other good turns are Marie Beresford, musical comedy artist; Ern Weslyn, vocal comedian; Beatty and Blanch, duettists and dancers; and Raymond's Vivagraph.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Six Brothers Luck in their highly amusing sketch, The Demon of the Cellar, head the bill here this week, and create considerable laughter. Gustave Fasola presents a series of mystifying allusions which fairly bewilder the audience; Moon and Morris are good comedians and exceptionally clever double dancers; and Whimsical Walker, assisted by Frances Maddock, a clever child actress, presents a delightful sketch entitled Captain Hamilton, V.C. Cullen and Jordison, the smart juveniles, dance and sing well; and other enjoyable items are contributed by Phedona in a pleasing musical act; Olga Fane, vocalist, and Stephen Blythe, vocalist. The Bioscope pictures are good.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Eight Sarnthalers head the bill here this week, and contribute some wonderful dances in national costume, and also some splendid singing. Fuller, Graham, and company are good in a musical song-scena entitled The Shoeblack's Dream; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud sing sweetly; and Little Dot Moss, a local favourite, sings and dances daintily; C. H. Charlton, society conjuror, does some smart tricks; the Sisters Belmont are pleasing dancers; and enjoyable items are also contributed by Howard and Townsend, duettists, and Charles Rowan, comedian. The Bioscope pictures are funny.

HIPPODROME, HULME. — Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—After a successful week at the Queen's Park Hippodrome Theo. Bouwmeester, the famous Dutch protean actor, is here and repeats his wonderful performance in Who Is Guilty? Dezmonti and Mora go through a sensational triple-bar act, and gain much applause; Tennis and Laune are capital duettists, and are well received; the Four Albertos are neat head and hand balancers; and Burns and Bentley are comedy purveyors and sand dancers of merit; good turns are provided also by Hector and Sultan, acrobatic comedy grotesques; Cavalli, a clever ventriloquist; J. Hughes, the Lancashire baritone; and Cosgrove and Burns, Scottish American comedy duo. Foiled, an exciting episode, is depicted on the Bioscope.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin Leigh.—Messrs. E. H. Knight and Geo. Denham's company has been here this week with the drama The Boom of Big Ben. Mr. Fred Powell plays well as Captain Joe Galloway, whilst the rôle of Gilbert Galloway has been ably sustained by Mr. Harry Scott. Mr. G. Denham has been good as Tom Battleby; Miss Hilda Bayton has successfully played Marjorie Galloway; and the other members of the company doing good work in their respective parts include Misses Nellie Fletcher, Mildred Cottell, Alice Francis, Mabel Liston, Cissy Hayes, Gwynne Spencer, Dorothy Denn, and the Messrs. Stanley Bedwell, Harry Agar Lyons, Leonard Howe, George Child, and Henry Villiers.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. F. Moulliot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—The programme here this week is contributed to by the following, who have all been well received: Fred Horsfall, comedian and mimic; the San Remo Girls, clever vocalists and dancers; Ryder Slone, character comedian; Coram, ventriloquist; Abel and Welsh, grotesque comedians; James Fawn, comedian; the Strolling Players; and the Hippodrome pictures.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson.—Mr. F. S. Gilbert's Opera company is appearing here with success. The opera chosen for the opening performance was Faust, of which a highly satisfactory representation was submitted. Mr. F. S. Gilbert gave an excellent reading of the title-rôle, his acting and singing winning for him genuine applause, and Mephistopheles was ably undertaken by Mr. H. Brindle, and Mr. J. Kneale Campbell was good as Valentine. Miss Faith Laborde created a favourable impression as Marguerite, her vocalisation being greatly admired and loudly applauded; Miss Vera Vizard excellently interpreted Siebel; and Martha had a creditable representative in Miss Doris Gilbert. The week's programme includes Il Trovatore, The Bohemian Girl, Maritana, and The Daughter of the Regiment.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Here this week are the Coopers, in a comedy musical sketch, Stelfane, lady magician, Marian Blake, vocalist, Mi

MIDDLESBROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is here this week in the play entitled Darkness. Mr. John Davidson in the character of the Rev. Basile Cortre and Mr. Henry Heller as the Vicar of Walkton are a decided success. Mr. Louis Lingard is excellent in his part and Mrs. Morton Powell does well as Helena Byars, the Vicar's daughter. Mr. Frank Etheridge as Nunc Wallace and Miss V. St. Lawrence as Gertrude Hunt cause much amusement. Mr. Edward Valentine gives a fine impersonation of Sir Robert, and Miss Nellie Freeland leaves nothing to be desired as Gracie.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—The Ticket-of-Leave Man is being presented here this week. Mr. Godfrey Tearle in the character of Robert Brierly is excellent, and Mr. Edward Sorley handles the part of James Dalton in a masterly fashion. Miss Rosamund Mayne Young exhibits tenderness and discretion as May Edwards, and Mr. George Autley is excellent as Melter Moss. Mr. Bryce Methven is natural as the broker, and Mr. Frederick Freeman does well as the detective. Miss Marion Holmes gives a touch of distinction to her impersonation of Mrs. Willoughby and Miss M. Malone acts admirably as Emily Evremond.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembyes.—An interesting programme is presented here this week. The Poluski Brothers, this week's star turn, are a mirth-provoking pair of artists, and their patter and songs delight the audience; Clive Watts provides an excellent singing and dancing turn; and Sam Redfern causes much amusement with his songs and sayings. George Newburn proves a popular mimic, and Massona gives a clever juggling entertainment. Other turns are provided by Read and Wright, comedy duettists, Rezene and Robini, and Mlle. Sylva's vocal tableaux.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alf. Graham.—Cullen and Cartly, together with Little Cluley, who is styled the smallest comedian on the stage, are the principal turn here this week, and are accorded a warm reception; Henry Carlton, comedian, in his latest success, The Window Cleaner, causes much amusement, and A Bo Kou is an excellent juggler. Other turns are provided by Fred Hallam, Lily Lonsdale, Ernie Myers, Harry Catton and Mlle. Kloet in her Continental speciality act.

MORECAMBE.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General Manager, Mr. Charles M. Julian.—Mr. Jerrard Grant Allen's company has been successfully appearing in the The New Boy. Mr. Leon M. Lion as the diminutive City man, Archibald Rennick, plays cleverly, and Miss Maud Magrath is a charming Nancy. Other parts are sustained by Messrs. A. Corney Grain, Talbot Homewood, Harold Weston, Stanley Logan, Miss Catherine Herrington, and Miss Margaret Fareleigh. The piece has been preceded by an original sentimental comedy, The Borrowed Uncle, by Tom Gallon and Leon M. Lion.

WINTER GARDENS.—General Manager, Mr. Tom Atkinson.—Berg's Vaudeville Company has provided the fare here during the week, and the Arthur Saxon Trio of athletes have proved a popular turn. Berghas wrestled all comers in the Græco-Roman style. A capital sketch, entitled Found Faithful, has been presented by W. T. Burgess and Co. Other items have been provided by Alec Alexander, actor-vocalist; Jesse Ricardo, conjuror in novel business; Parlos Bros. in an amusing act; Mlle. Ena and Miss Clara Unwin, songstresses.

ALHAMBRA PALACE.—General-Manager, Alderman John Gardner.—The bill at this pretty house has this week included Miss Belle Leabourne, comedienne; Sam Shipley, a quaint comedian with catchy songs; Miss Koma, ballad vocalist; Craig, Rose, and Craig in a smart acrobatic act; Miss Beatrice Worth, burlesque actress; Violet Morgan, a smart impersonator of music-hall stars; and an animated panorama of a trip round the world nicely described by Miss Edna Reeve.

NEW BRIGHTON.—GRAND TOWER THEATRE.—The theatre is now in full swing, the entertainment being contributed to by the following artistes:—Queenie West, vocal comedienne, who renders some excellent items; the Royal Welsh Meister Singers, with a capital selection of nautical songs, duets, and choruses; Miss Belle Leaburn, descriptive vocalist; Mr. Will Daniels, the modern comedian; Miss Bessie Hardman, soprano vocalist, and Akbar, expert performer on the silver rings, introducing marvellous dislocations. The intervals are enlivened by the Towerscope, which shows some good films.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Mr. Edward Marris's company in the musical comedy, The Dandy Doctor, is again at the Tyne, and is proving capital entertainment for the local race holidays. Mr. Marris as the millionaire once more treats us to a richly humorous performance. He receives excellent support from Miss Florence Smithers, whose Jane is just about as clever a piece of low comedy acting as one can find. Mr. Leslie Martin impersonates the dude with much humour, and Mr. E. H. Bertram as Arthur Vandyke sings and acts admirably. Mr. James Danvers—so long connected with the part of the Colonel—is now an absentee, but his place is creditably filled by Mr. Herbert Pearce. Miss Elfie Vincent now plays the rôle of the Colonel's daughter, and her acting and singing are characterised by much charm. The specialities introduced are up to the usual standard, and include the Dandy Belles, the Dutch Girls, and a new feature, the Yeoman Male Voice Quartette.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clark.—The Woman Who Gambles is the title of a sensational drama, Mr. Morton Powell's company is playing here this week. Miss Gertrude Hunt handles the somewhat trying part of Countess Steinbach with exemplary skill; Mr. Edward E. Ashby sustains the rôle of her husband in clever style; Mr. Horatio Sinclair gives an effective rendering of Baron Cratylaw; and Mr. Reginald Fox as a Lieutenant is distinctly good. Miss Violet Sims as Cora Gouldhart gives an intelligent interpretation to the part; and Miss Florrie Hall as a Medical Student deserves every praise. Also worthy of commendation are Mr. Ernest H. Clarke, Mr. Frank Howard, Mr. Fred Prior, and Miss Marie Ramuz.

GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company is appearing here this week in the drama, entitled In Holy (!) Russia. An excellent all-round company is responsible for the production, which abounds with exciting incidents.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Leslie Conroy.—An enjoyable holiday programme is being submitted here this week, the principal attraction being John Lawson and company in the well-known playlet, Humanity. The Monkey's Paw was also presented during the latter part of the week. The patter and business of the McNaughtons are always of the refreshing kind; a musical act by the Borellis is distinctly clever; and Alice Lloyd, dainty as ever, scores in a couple of songs. A hearty reception is accorded Ernie Mayne, who is decidedly funny with a "Wooden Hut" parody; J. W. Rickaby still relies on his soldier song to "get there"; the Caselli Sisters are dainty duettists and dancers; Maude Courtney's pleasing voice is heard to advantage in a pretty song called "Mary"; Howard and St. Clair appear in a ludicrous trifle; and the Bioscope shows a picture of the Royal Bull Fight at Madrid.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H Boardman.—Harry Roxbury and Co. are again back at the "Pav." with the clever show, The Prince of Monte Carlo, and score their customary success. Those huge pantomime favourites, Heeley and Meeley, are here in an entirely new act, and give further proof of their excellence as comedy acrobats; the Two Eltons disport themselves with much hilarity on the horizontal bars; two funny comedians, Tom Lloyd and Tod Lowen, have many admirers; as a character impersonator, V. L. Granville is deserving of praise; Edie Grey and White Coons in a vocal act; the Great Vincent in an acrobatic table act; Miss Vashti Wynne and company in a dramatic sketch; the Haydees and the Barrascope are also included in a good all-round bill.

NEWPORT.—EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Mr. R. A. Roberts, the famous protean artist, occupies first place in the bill here. The Cole de Losse Duo give a clever performance on the slack wire; Josh Dixon dances cleverly and sings a couple of good songs; and Miss Nellie Young executes a pretty dance. Chas. Austin, comedian, justifies his title to the term eccentric; the Stella Troupe of vocalists and dancers provide a taking turn; and Flem and Brok, aerial pugilists, are exceedingly amusing. Barney Vox, Irish ventriloquist, is entertaining, his patter being smart, and Baker and Balfe give a clever musical turn on the xylophone.

NORTHWICH.—PIERROT PAVILION.—Proprietors, The Royal Pierrots Co.—The attendance at these concerts is still good. Miss Madge Allan's winsome presence and charming singing have made her a great favourite; the Cains, clever mandoline players and skilled dancers, provide an excellent turn; Mr. Bert Danson is a quaint comedian; Mr. Lindon Wyatt does well; Mr. G. W. Nicholson's humorous songs delight the audience, and Mr. Glanmore Jones sings as sweetly as ever.

NORWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs E H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—The following artists contribute to an excellent programme: The Clement Trio, daring trapezists; Graham, the human marionette; Ida Kathrena in the Carnival of Toys; Satsuma, the Japanese magician; the Arthur Lloyd Trio in their sketch, Little Charlie; or the Twin Sisters; J B. Preston, Scottish comedian; and Mollie Seymour, coedienne and violin artist; O'Malley and Brown eccentric comedians, and the Hippodroe Biograph, with excellent scenes, complete an enjoyable entertainent.

NOTTINGHAM.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—The Curate, played by Miss Hettie Jeffries' company, had a good reception here on Monday. Mr. Arthur Mervyn gives a natural portraiture of the manly, warm-hearted curate, acting with commendable earnestness and taste; Mr. Whitmore Ledger effectively enacted the callous and rescally spy, Gilbert Westwood; and a spirited impersonation of the adventuress, Kibinka Vodsky, is supplied by Miss Winifred Stuart. Miss Hettie Jeffries gives a charming embodiment of Dick, a fearless and devoted little trumpeter; and Miss Rosa Mervyn makes a winsome Mabel Verner. There is an abundance of comedy capitally supplied by Miss Agnes D'Aragon, and Messrs. Frank Stuart, Sydney Claydon, Alfred Horton, and Harry Irvine.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edgar O. Waller.—The Royal Animated Picture Company remain here this week with a fresh lot of films, and Mr. Wensley Russell gives much pleasure by his illustrated songs.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—The uproarious laughter which accompanied Mr. Herbert Darnley's comical skit, Moving In, on Monday last, was ample proof of its popularity, and hearty applause greeted the company throughout. The graceful and clever trick riding by the Kaufmann Troupe of lady cyclists elicited unbounded enthusiasm, which was fully deserved; an interesting and expert exhibition on the trapeze was given by the Sisters Urma; and the Sisters Terry executed a smart dance. The clever and comical feats of Cooke and Miss Rothert produced several merry moments, and the quaint musical "turn" of the Phydoras caused plenty of laughter. George Ridgwell's powerful and cultured baritone voice was heard in several songs, and the vocalism of the Three Hayden Sisters proved enjoyable. Ben Albert contributed a humorous item, and the American Bioscope showed some excellent films.

OLDHAM.—COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Mr. Charles March is here with a capital company in The Gamester of Metz. Mr. C. March gives a powerful rendering of Paul Baldot, his quick changes being smartly done; Mr. John B. Murray is excellent in the rôle of Captain Badaire; and Mr. Fred Aldworth is good as General Monparasse. As Countess Baldot, Miss Eva Lyndhurst does well, and Miss Una Lane acts the rôle of Lucie in an able manner. Miss Cissy Haighton is capital as Gwendolin Pearson, as is Miss B. Sims as Babette. Mr. G. Paget scores as Lieut. Herve, as does Mr. W. G. Dudeney as Louis Badaire. Mr. P. Wentworth appears as the Cure d'Artris, and Mr. W. G. Protheroe as Ferdinand, the remaining characters being played by Messrs. Corri, Brayne, Henson, and Brinklow.

ROYAL THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Jake Friedman is the principal turn this week, and he gives an excellent entertainment; Peggie Lennie and Walter Hast present another capital show in a poetic phantasy, The Sea Nymph; Yorkshire Tom is a clever animal mimic; H. O. Wills, comedian, keeps the audience in roars of laughter; and Freres Rigoletto, in their speciality act, are well received; the Sisters Wingrove are smart duettists and dancers; and the Three Henriques are funny acrobatic comedians. Violet Stockelle, comedienne, and Elsie Claire, soprano vocalist, also appear.

OXFORD.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. G. P. Wells.—Mr. Edward Neville is continuing his stock season here, and is this week playing The Anarchist Terror and Nana. In the former piece Mr. Edward Neville plays his original part of Mickey Dooland in his own amusing manner, and is accorded a hearty reception; Mr. W. H. Wilson successfully negotiates the difficult and trying part of the "Terror"; and Mr. Rowland Hope works well as Lieut. Armstrong. Mr. Gus Bowerman gives a powerful rendering of Ishmael. Miss Flora Leslie is seen to advantage as Marita, and Miss Evie Conway is good as Zara. Miss Rosie Neville makes an effective and attractive Columbia Goldstraw, and Miss Loie Esmond is a winsome and amusing Kitty Malone, her dances with Mickey Doolan being very effective PLYMOUTH.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Langdon Lee.—The well-balanced stock company gives an interesting rendering of Charles Reade's play, It's Never Too Late to Mend. Mr. Edward Lloyd, as Tom Robinson, submits a forceful yet restrained version of the part; Mr. Frank Harrison, as the prison chaplain, the Rev. Francis Eden, quickly appeals to the house, and Mr. S. T. Ewart, as George Fielding, deserves particular mention; Miss Beatrice Whitney does not overdo the part of Josephs, as is often the case; and Mr. Greene Taylor, as the Australian Aborigine, Jackie, is exceedingly funny.

DEVONPORT METROPOLE THEATRE.—Owners, Carltons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Mitchell.—Called Back was presented on Monday by the stock company. Mr. Douglas Phelps obtained hearty applause for his rendering of the rôle of Gilbert Vaughan, while Mr. Leonard Aardale was no less successful as the villain, Paolo Macari; others contributing no small share to the success of the performance were Mr. Geo. King (Dr. Ceneri), Miss Beatrice Vane (Priscilla), and Miss Pattie Hastings (Pauline March).

PROMENADE PIER AND PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. J. Higson.—Mr. Walter George's Smart Set Singers are paying a return visit, and furnish a great attraction for the Regatta Week. The company includes Messrs. Walter George, Arthur Court, and Charles Howard, and the Misses Georgie Martin, Lena Hutchings, Ethel Wilford, and Hilda Light. An experiment by the management of submitting a concerted musical play in place of isolated numbers bids fair to become a great success.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, County Theatres and Hotels, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Jack Field; Treasurer, Mr. N. Carlton.—Dinah Morris's comedy party furnish the leading item, entitled The Lost Coon, and introduce some clever dancing, singing, and incidental business; Sydney Bacon's company in The Maniac, including Mr. Melville Bickford, earns hearty applause for a highly exciting turn; Keen and Waller, American gymnasts, are finished exponents of their particular art; Amandus submits interesting facial contortions; and J. Hyder and Chas. Ashdowne have some very good humorous business; and Vernon's Pictures furnish an exceptionally clear film of the 'Frisco disaster. Others contributing are the Musical Rosina and Jeannette Latour (soprano vocalist).

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J.W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. Lawrence Brough and company are here this week, playing that diverting comedy The Lady of Ostend. Mr. Brough personates the Baron de Longueville cleverly and with distinction. Miss Kate Milford is successful in her delination of Dorothy Whortles; Miss Eleanor Gilbart, as Matilda Carbury, makes a typical mother-in-law; the Dick Whortles of Mr. Henry Hampson is a meritorious performance; Joseph Carbury is ably played by Mr. Charles Groves, jun.; Toby Krockitt is amusingly portrayed by Mr. H. Gomer May. The nautical farcical comedy The Cruise of the Saucy Sally was presented on Thursday and Friday. The comedies are preceded each evening by the one-act comedietta Margaret's Stratagem.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—This week, for the first time in Portsmouth, has been presented here, by Messrs. Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls' company, the thrilling comedy-drama The Grip of the Law. Mr. Edward Maydew powerfully sustains the part of the much-tried Dave Arkwright; Mr. William Matthews is a capable villain in the character of Sergt. Frank Paul; the exacting part of Zeph Sorrell, a stuttering detective, is cleverly depicted by Mr. E. D. Nicholls; Noel of the Night, an outcast, is admirably played by Mr. Charles Kean; Miss Dora Hammersley is a charming heroine, Rose Hockaday.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Heading the bill here are the Pichel troupe of Italian acrobats; they go through their business with a smartness and crispness that gains them unstinted applause. D. W. Watson is a cornet soloist of no mean order; Regan and Ryan are a clever pair of patterers; Patty Yole is a most engaging comedienne and danseuse; Maxwell and Frances, in their flirtation vaudeville act, score well; Jack Pleasants, versatile comedian, is exceedingly droll, and nas made a decided hit; Carden and Zeach, Australian society entertainers, receive a very favourable verdict; the Mayvilles, with their Lilliputian act, cause much amusement; the Bros. Ashley and company, with the comedy boxing sketch Next, Please, work hard and greatly please. Other turns much liked are Lil O'Gorman, soubrette; and Payne's Pictures.

PRESTON.—PRINCES THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Frank Ayrton and company are here this week with the powerful drama entitled The Power of Gold. Miss Lilla Wilde gives a powerful rendering of Lady Brandon; the difficult part of Hadgi Zambra is ably taken by Mr. C. Whitlock; Miss Georgina V. France wins the entire sympathy of the house in the pathetic rôle of Meg Judson; Mr. Richard Oliver, as Paul Judson, comes in for much well merited applause; Mr. F. Ayrton as Sammy Smudge and Madge Seymour as Nora Donnelley keep the house convulsed with laughter; Mr. Albert Sefton shows great dramatic ability as Mark Harler. Much praise is also due to Mr. W. O'Connor, as Joe Skilletts. Others who ably sustain their respective parts are Mr. Frank Holyoake, as Dr. Stephen Saunders; Mr. Wilson Wyte, as Marc Antony; and Mr. W. Victor as Peter Maguire.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—Don Ban, the talking head, is arousing great curiosity here this week; the Three Royal Raynors provide a smart acrobatic act; Adams and Rouse, comedian and comedienne, create much amusement; the Westwoods perform some brilliant cycling feats; a diverting and skilful turn is that of the Bonnettis; Theodore Jones and Co., in the song scena "Jack Shepnard," are well received; Carson Hicks is a popular vocalist and dancer; the Wedburns with their music and patter evoke hearty laughter and applause. Bioscope pictures complete a good programme.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE AND PAVILION.—At this house the boards during the past week have been occupied by Mr. Guy de Domballe's company in The Eiderdown Quilt. In the rôle of Patricia Miss Molly Carton has charmed her audience; Miss Victoria Addison is quite successful as Lucy Pemberton; as is also Miss Ella Dixon in the character of Sybil. As Sir John de Candebac, Mr. Willox Cadogan gives a capital performance; Mr. E. F. Meads is good as Dick, Sir John's son; Mr. A. W. Tyner ably sustains the part of Captain Archibald Bernard, and Mr. Cyril Baleine makes a hit as Alberto du Bologna. Others contributing fine work are Mr. George Percy, Miss Bertha Frances, and Miss Jane Bunny. The play has been capitally put on in all respects under the direction of Mr. E. F. Meads.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Ellis Miller.—Mr. Millar Anderson's répertoire company opened here on Monday with Camille, which thoroughly delighted the audience. Miss Mabel Mannering as Camille gave a charming and powerful portrayal; Mr. Jerrold Heather as Armand Duval was also to be commended for a clever rendering of this character; as Count de Vaville Mr. J. G. Maine was admirable; and Mr. Charles Herbert as M. Duval was excellent as the pleading father. Mr. Claude Aymond made an exceptionally good Gaston; and Mr. Walter Long an equally acceptable Gustave. Miss Bessie Frank gave a piquant impersonation as Nichette; and Miss Gladys Lloyd was a typical Nanie; and Miss Eva James as Olimpe and Miss Maude Townsend as Madame Prudence were each thoroughly acceptable. The play was preceded by The Other Charlie. For Tuesday and Thursday The Spider's Web is billed, and on Wednesday Bachelor of Arts will be presented, concluding each evening with Good For Nothing.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr. Reginald Taylor.—The theatre season has been extended for a week for the production of the evergreen East Lynne, which is being played by a capable company under the able direction of Mr. Henry Dundas, who takes the part of Archibald Carlisle in excellent style. Mr Dundas was for several years lessee of the Reading Theatre, and is receiving a very enthusiastic welcome from his old patrons. Miss Lilian Dundas gives a sympathetic impersonation of the part of Lady Isabel; Mr. Percy Rhodes plays the villainous Captain Levison characteristically; Mr. Trueman Towers as Justice Hare, and Mr. James Jarrett as Richard Hare, act well; Miss Leslie Dane is a graceful Barbara Hare; Miss Esther Carthew is highly amusing as Cordelia Carlisle; and Little Mabel May acts cleverly as Willie Carlisle.

ROCHDALE.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Cullin; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—The highly-sensational play Under the Czar winds up the season here. Mr. Jack Fortiscue acts with distinction as Nicholas Yeroslaff; Mr. W. H. Riley skilfully impersonates the tyrannical Major Kovesky; Mr. Lawrence Brien submits a clever portrayal of Alexis Petroff, and Mr. Louis Weston creates amusement as Paul Ignat; Miss P. Carewe makes the most of Zara Bhura; Miss Linda Riley is heard to advantage as the garrulous Siomoka, and Miss May Forsdice enlists sympathy in portraying the trials and troubles of Sonia Gregorovitch

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Drew Mackintosh.—Kennedy's Komiks are this week giving a good variety entertainment, which is much appreciated. The Cedrics in their comedy and equilibristic act are clever, and Mons. Vela in his exhibition of wire-walking is a great success; Mr. Natt Abbatt, musical clown, displays great ability, and Mr. Harry Monkhouse is very funny; Miss Ella Dare, soubrette, is charming and vivacious, and Miss Sara Yost, lady baritone, has a voice of excellent quality and compass; Miss Ethel Dunville, male impersonator, is good, and Miss Lalla Vincent sings several songs with taste and ability.

RUNCORN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. H. W. Caddick.—Mr. E. Oswald Brook's company is here again with The Trail of the Serpent. Mr. A Campbell-Kelly is excellent as the hero, Gerald Kingston; Mr. Wilford Cheetham scores in the part of Ralph Hammond; Mr. Henry F. Kenn shines as Sir Gerald Kingston; Mr. Booth Conway is strong in every way as Gipsy Jake; William Higgins is well played by Mr. Vincent Kelway; and Miss Gladys Newcombe is good as Rose Wilson. Miss Marjorie May does good work as the persecuted heroine, Ethel Maynard; and Miss Nana Cameron gives a powerful portrayal of the gipsy, Rachel.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—A Wrecker of Men, a melodrama, by Charles Watson Mill, is meeting with a good reception. Miss Amy Ellam is an excellent Risca Mallinson; Jim Murley is well played by Mr. Eric Campbell; Mr. M. Noble does a lot of work as Pharosophus; Miss K. Melville is funny as Vavasole Sloppér; Eric Melville is in the hands of Mr. T. Carruthers; Miss Cissie Podmore is a charming Doris Melville; Mr. Alfred Maurice, as Railton; Mr. M. Boulton, as Guise Strange; Mr. Lancelot Usher, as Hon. Reggie Vernicourt; Mr. H. P. Kennedy, in the dual rôle of Ezekial Isaacs and Karnaphus; and Miss Beatrice Reynolds give good support.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Daisy de Roy is much applauded for her songs; Percy Maye gives his exceedingly successful female impersonations; The Comic Scope, by Robert Beevers, causes much laughter; Ada Twibell, burlesque artist; Leslie H. Murray, magician; Elsie May, juvenile vocalist; Marlo, clever juggler; Johnny Johnson, musical dandy; W. H. Downes, coloured Australian vocalist; and the Maros, comedy bar athletes, also contribute clever turns.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—An excellent programme is this week provided by the Mohamed Ben Mohamed Troupe of Soussa Arabs; the Sisters Valli, very good top-boot dancers; the Silvester Sansome Trio, in their funny sketch, The Tutor and the Maid; Claude Feldman's beau ideal troupe of clever juveniles; Charles Hulbert, ventriloquist; Lon Langley chic comedienne; Carney Bros., comedy duettists and character vocalists; Henderson, blind cocertinist; and Paul de Lil, a clever sleight-of-hand illusionist.

SCARBOROUGH.—PEOPLE'S PALACE AND AQUARIUM.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—Mlle. Marie Levante's orchestra of ladies render capital programmes daily. The vocalist this week is Miss Beatrice Willan, whose fine contralto voice is heard to advantage. In the variety theatre the Gilbert Bros. contribute a fascinating turn on the tight-rope; Miss Lily Pender gives impersonations in artistic fashion; Tiny Arnold, midget artist, gives an exceedingly refined turn; Alf. Bishop is an amusing comedian; as a human band, Tom Brantford is responsible for much hilarity; Angeline, the dancing juggler speedily becomes a favourite; Max Merlin, contortionist, is well received; Learto, with the assistance of his dog, contributes an acceptable item; Curtis Leo is installed in the Old Ball Room, where he gives his juggling exhibition at various times during the day. Vernon's Bioscope still retains its popularity in a twelve-hours' programme.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Zalva.—An admirably arranged series of living pictures with a flavour of variety is submitted here this week. Casselli and James give a pleasing exhibition of banjo playing; with a good stock of patter, Harry Wright, comedian, soon gets on the right side of the audience; Nellie Gannon is admirably equipped with a selection of descriptive songs; Will Goodwin, in his scena She's not my wife, is a popular turn.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs. Henry Mayhew; Manager, Mr. F. P. Morgan.—Man's Enemy is the attraction here this week, and Mr. John Power's company is having an enthusiastic reception. As Tom Drake Mr. Jno. Power gives an excellent delineation; Mr. Harry Stanton as Norman Overton is highly impressive; Miss Clara Reed as Polly would be hard to improve upon; a Scarborough man, Mr. Newton Cowling, plays well the part of Ikey Barnett; Miss M. Macauley gives a fine impersonation of Sarah Drake; and as Grace Lisle Miss Lynn Darlington displays force and sings well.

SOUTH FORESHORE.—Mr. Will Catlin's troupe of pierrots are attracting large audiences daily, with an up-to-date programme.

GRAND HOTEL, SKATING RINK.—Mr. Tom Carrick has taken his stand here for the season, and, with a troupe of capable artists, is doing remarkably well.

SHEERNESS.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. P. Reymond.—Topping the bill for this week are the Sisters Almar, duettists and dancers, who provide an interesting turn in The Lady and the Flower Girl; Mr. Dan Conway, eccentric comedian and dancer, in new songs is deservedly applauded; Miss Marie Florence, comedienne, contributes enjoyable songs and dances, and gains loud applause; and hearty commendation is also won by Miss Alice Dora in descriptive songs and dancing; and the Rosslyns in their comedy act, Arguments, are popular. The Palace closes to-night for a few weeks for alterations and redecorations.

BAND PAVILION.—The open-air concerts by the Georgian Quartette are still attracting large and appreciative audiences both afternoon and evening, and their efforts have been highly successful. The Walthamstow Silver Band have also contributed a series of excellent band performances, which have met with popular approval.

SHEFFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr. Wybert Clive's well-known drama, The Conscript, is being played this week, under the direction of the author. That old dramatic favourite, Mr. Harry Cullinford, acts in his usual forcible manner; and other parts are cleverly represented by Miss Violet Carlyle, Miss Connie Meadows, Mr. Walter Steele, and Mr. Charles Hudson. The drama is effectively staged.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The Luck of Life, performed in a convincing manner by Mr. Reginald Adair's special company, was received with cordial applause on Monday by a good audience. Mr. Fred Danvers, who made a great success here in Sinbad, caused hearty laughter by his quaint acting in a low-comedy rôle—Simon Stanley; the character of Michael Basilovitch, as represented by Mr. Ronald Yorke, was an original and interesting creation; Mr. Albert Cuthbertson acted in a convincing manner as Ivan; Mr. Joseph Millaine's George Stanhope was a consistent character-sketch; and Mr. Leonard Thackeray's Count Petroff stood out boldly from the canvas. The Rene of Miss Mary Dawson was a careful and artistic impersonation; Miss Dora Huggett was a vivacious Laura; and good work was done by Mr. Polson Turner as the Hindoo, and Miss K. Perowne as Mrs. Beaudyn. The play was staged in a realistic manner. After an interval of twenty years, the Alexandra has reverted to its old custom, and those who care may now indulge in the fragrant weed during the performance.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—A generous and well-served-up programme delighted crowded houses on Monday. That screamingly funny absurdity, The Casey Circuit, kept the audience in roars of laughter; the Imperial Russian Troupe of vocalists were enthusiastically applauded; the "old firm," the famous Albert and Edmunds Troupe, were very successful in a comic sketch; two old favourites, Palles and Cussick, proved as droll as ever; and others who successfully appeared were the Norman Leonard Trio, Bernar's Fantoches, Miss Gladys Mavius, Brown and Robinson, and the great Hadji Abdullah Troupe of tumblers.

GRAND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. G. H. Beagle.—The company this week includes Leo Lester, with his diverting canine novelty sketch; Mr. Jack Heath, comedian; Pallister's popular bioscope; Mr. Brownson's company, in two thrilling dramatic sketches; and the Curran Trio, in a very smart boxing act.

SMETHWICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—The Drama of Life, presented by Mr. Lingford Carson's company, forms the attraction here. Mr. G. M. Newall, with his strong and popular exposition of the leading rôle of Harry Beech, is a powerful factor in the success achieved; Mr. E. M. Hamilton is to be credited with a convincing interpretation of Walter Beech; Miss Kate Hallam as Sylvia Beech is generally admired for her graceful acting; Mr. Ed. Van Biene presents the Count De Foi in clever style, and is also responsible for the general-management. The comedy of Mr. Fred Luard as Sir Dobson Wilde is highly amusing; and Miss Florence French distinguishes herself as Lady Jane Wilde. Miss N. Birch-enough makes a good study of Betty Black; Master Robert Beech has a clever representative in little Miss Elsie May; Mr. H. M. Payne as Jack Lawton and Mr. S. Fiennes as Dave Crane present the villainy of the piece realistically; Detective Brenton is in the capable hands of Mr. Horace Booth; and Mr. L. Murray is very droll as John Walsh, a railway porter. The elaborate scenery calls for special comment.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—PIER PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—Owing to the enormous success of the Elliotts and Savonas, the popular lessee has retained their services for this week, and they continue to fascinate most appreciative audiences. Their marvellous musical act from the first is rendered with emphatic success, and the illuminations are a feature. The Elliotts, too, give their cycle act in an exceedingly clever manner, gaining well-earned appreciation. Professor Vincent and Miss Florence have been retained, and as an illusionist and vocalist respectively, are well received. Senorita Elolna causes wonderment as a trapeze artist; an interesting series of new pictures are displayed by the Urban Bioscope; whilst the celebrated Red Band add greatly to a capital programme.

THE KURSAAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon.—A good programme is submitted here this week, including Chas. Denton and Ted Cowan, comedians; Maude Esmond, descriptive vocalist; Phinas and Aida, smart gymnasts; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. English, sketch artists; and Sardou, a clever illusionist. The pictures shown on the bioscope are a feature. The Café Chantant and the Hippodrome are both providing attractive fare. Last night Ally Sloper's visit caused considerable interest, and to-day the famous Besses o' th' Barn Band are giving two performances.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Mr. Leigh Lovel and Miss Octavia Kenmore, supported by a capable company, are here in Sowing the Wind. Mr. Brabazon is creditably represented by Mr. Lovel; and Mr. Arthur Chesney is well suited as Mr. Watkin. Ned Annesley is well played by Mr. Hylton Allen; and Mr. Percy H. Vernon gives prominence to the rôle of Lord Petworth. Mr. Allan Pollock ably sustains the part of Sir Richard Cursitor; Miss Celia Gordon as Mrs. Fretwell is decidedly good; and Maud is carefully portrayed by Miss Ada D. Hatchwell. Miss Mary Maine is responsible for the part of Bridget; whilst Miss Octavia Kenmore gives a pleasing and delightful impersonation of Rosamond. The other members of the cast are Messrs. Aubrey Mather, Clement Talbot, and Alfred Allen, all of whom do creditable work in their respective characters.

SOUTHPORT.—ALBERT HALL, WINTER GARDENS.—General-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hemming.—An excellent combination of variety artists forms the attraction here this week. The Stavordale Quintette, musical speciality artists, submit a unique and clever performance, which is warmly applauded; Miss M. Ruby and Mr. E. Laws, in their quick-change musical comedy sketch, Cora's Visitors, contribute a highly diverting turn; Mr. R. Dunning gives a smart ventriloquial sketch, with novel figures; and the programme also includes Tom Haigh and Millie Novel, refined comedy act; Miss Kate Butler, character comedienne; the Fitzroys (Fred and Lilian), society gymnasts, trapeze, and rope specialists; Miss May Marton, comedienne; Kahn and Kahn, magical legerdemain act; and S dancers, are cordially greeted; the Leaderites are marvellous ladder performers; Selby and Myers are capable comedians and dancers; and the Revell Troupe prove very successful in their sketch, Mischief.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. George and Robert A. Nicholson; Manager, Mr. Wm. Ainsworth.—George Leyton, in his success, "Nelson's Name," tops the bill, and is well received; Ruby Dahl, with her mannikins, makes a hit; Les Bollingers, who form pictures with rugs, are very clever; Bishop and Vale, comedians and dancers, are a capital turn; the Five M.P.'s, musicians, are appreciated; Arthur Gill has soon established himself a favourite; the Brothers Newport, gymnasts, and Adele Lincoln, comedienne, complete a good programme.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Haley's Juveniles are at the top of the bill here; Mr. J. Churchill has had a most cordial reception; David Poole, ventriloquist, gives a good entertainment; the Three Coopers are a pleasing turn; Pervos, facial mimic, is particularly smart; G. H. Penn, musician; Bessie Friedman, ballad vocalist; along with the Bioscope, complete an excellent bill of fare.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—The Emilions head the bill this week in a clever acrobatic and hand-balancing display; Nash and Noel are smart patterers, and their dancing is above the average; Walter Stanley is successful in his songs; Vera Mayne is successful; Deveraux's dogs always provide an interesting turn; The Elgars sing nicely, and meet with success; Toney is a smart whistler, and Sergeant Munford on the slack wire accomplishes some clever feats.

SUNDERLAND.—AVENUE THEATRE. — Director and Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—The summer stock season of Mr. Machin's capable company is proving highly successful. This week Robertson's famous comedy, Cast, is being performed, Mr. Chas. M. Daly assumes the part of Eccles in a praiseworthy manner; and Miss Maud L. Cudd is seen to considerable advantage as Polly Eccles. A new sketch, entitled, The Gorilla's Revenge, a full account of which appears in another column, serves as a curtain raiser.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hemingway.—An excellent house assembled to witness Mr. C. Watson Mills's company in that romantic drama, A Warning to Women. Miss Rosalin Tate proves fully equal to the arduous rôle of Moira Kennion; and Mr. C. Watson Mill plays with distinction and incisiveness; the difficult part of Dr. Marcus Dread; Mr. Henry Lonsdale is commendable as Shaun, a wandering minstrel; Mr. Wingald Lawrence is successful as Fergus McNaughton; and Mr. U. Carter Slaughter good as Lord Eversleigh; Squire Kennion is safe in the hands of Mr. Henry Rutland; and Mr. Geo. Scully ably portrays the rôle of the Irishman, Mike McQuade; Miss Ida Fane creditably enacts the part of Hildred; and Miss Emmie Barton is equally good as Sheila Kennion.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Alfred Browne and Syd B. Stringer.—An extra strong programme is this week headed by Wizard and Irene Stone, who give a sensational and daring cycling act within a large metal globe, in which a motor cycle and a bicycle career round at express speed; Belrose and De Velin, a couple of clever vocalists who were exceedingly popular in the last panto. here, well sustain their reputation; Clemart is a versatile ventriloquist; Herbert Clifton is a clever mimic; the Five Astleys are entertaining as "The American Musical Farmers; Ethel Yooke, comedienne, contributes some taking numbers; the Briano's acrobatic display; George Antill; and the Bioscope pictures completes the bill.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners; Musical-Director, Mr. Fred Lucas.—A good season concludes at this theatre this week with another visit of that popular America drama, The Still Alarm, capitally staged and played by Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's company. Mr. Mathew H. Glenville must be complimented on his fine performance as Jack Manley, all the strong points being cleverly accentuated. He was well supported by Mr. Cecil Du Gue, who was seen to advantage as Jack Bird; by Mr. Fred Osmond, who undertook the part of Doc Wilber with commendable judgment, and by Mr. Tom Beasley, who did well as Willie Manley, and ably undertook the duties of stage-manager. A feature of the piece was Miss Hettie Zillwood's telling and effective portrayal of the part of Carrie Wilber, her rendering of an occasional song being very pleasing; Miss Maud Warburton as Elinor gained the sympathy of the large audience; and Miss Mabel Veriton deserves special mention for her good work as Jack's mother. The Fire Station scene, introducing the well-trained horses and glees by the Lyric Comedy Four, was particularly interesting.

TORQUAY.—PRINCESS PIER CONCERT HALL.—Proprietors, the Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. A. T. Tremlett.—The John Ridding Opera Company are paying a welcome visit here this week, and on Monday evening Maritana was presented, with Miss Kitty Brownless, who sang splendidly in the name part, and was repeatedly applauded, as was also Mr. Chas. Le Seuer, whose Don Cæsar was full of vigour and expression; Mr. Fred Clendon was a kingly Charles II., and Mr. John Ridding acted with Machiavelian malignity as Don Jose. Miss Jessie Dennis made an acceptable Lazarillo, and Mr. Arthur Fisher was well placed as Captain of the Guard. In spite of the absence of orchestra, chorus, and scenery, the representation was well received by the patrons of the usual concert course, who were pleased by the change from the ordinary programme. The company are also producing this week Faust, Old Knuckles, The Waterman, and The Bohemian Girl.

TYNEMOUTH.—PALACE-BY-THE-SEA AND WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietor, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.—Chanti, a clever quick-change artist, heads the bill here; John Warren, conjurer and ventriloquist, provides an excellent turn; Dora Barrington, a popular favourite here, proves herself to be a sweet and cultured soprano; the Solari Duo score in their musical mélange; the Ellimans, in their musical entertainment, provide some interesting items; and the Casino Orchestra remain under engagement. The entertainment winds up with an admirable show of animated pictures.

WAKEFIELD. — HIPPODROME. — Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—Messrs. O'Connor and Brady's Combination is here this week. Miss Gertie Gitana, coon vocalist, delights with her singing and dancing; Huline and Le May are smart musical clowns; Mr. F. C. Fields and Miss F. Lewis are an amusing comedy-couple, and Miss Bessie Travis contributes an excellent ventriloquial turn; the Two Dunlops appear in a cycling act; Lilian Hivado is a pleasing gymnast, and O'Connor and Brady, comedians, prove very popular.

WALSALL. — HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LTD. — General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Undoubtedly the star turn here is Annie Abbott, known as "The Little Georgia Magnet," who proves a great attraction; the Two Madges, duettists and dancers; Johnson and Bert, Austin Rudd, comedian; the Cambrian Trio, excellent vocalists and dancers; the Strads, in their clever musical act, are all well received. Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery present their new sketch, Would-be Actors, meeting with considerable success, and the American Bioscope completes the programme.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. Carr Loates' company is presenting this week the musical comedy-drama, At the World's Mercy. Mr. W. G. Irving makes a capital Captain Frank Manley; able support is forthcoming from Mr. Carr Loates, who portrays the rôle of Morris Goldstein; Mr. H. Evan Gibbon does well as Charlie Smart; Miss Isabel Singleton makes a charming Alice Lloyd; Miss Jennie Clare is well placed as Kitty Knott; Rosie is ably depicted by Miss A. Hunter; Dot is well played by Little Daisy; and Miss Jennie Gilmour is good as Mrs. Monke.

WALTHAMSTOW.—PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr. Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—There is no lack of amusement in Mr. Barclay's programme for the week. The solid "joint" of the menu takes the form of the well-known dramatic sketch, Our Curate, in which Mr. Fred Eustace and company appear with success. The clerical hero is well supported, Mr. Ferris Gordon as the malevolent Robert Lawson, and Mr. Edwin Bennett as Mark Rollaston being exceptionally good among the gentlemen. Miss Mary Eustace acts with much emotional power as the cruelly treated Mary Neville; and Miss Madge Lindsey gives due point to the acidulated utterances of Lady Hastings. The sketch is most elaborately staged. Another play in little that is received with delight is The Lady in Red, performed by Mr. Tom Craven and company. The merry piece is very smartly written, and it is acted in exactly the right spirit by the two ladies and the two gentlemen engaged. Mr. Stev. Addison brings to bear on the part of the peccant husband an amount of light comedy acting that would carry through a much more ambitious work. Mr. Tom Craven gives a capital picture of the bewildered manservant. The two ladies look charming, and act well. Among the varieties, Miss Maree Kean is a young comedienne who makes a fairly good impression; Mr. Harry Lawson's dry humour and voluble utterances are highly appreciated in his two songs, "On Me!" being received with a roar; an original touch is introduced by Mr. Tom Craven, who, admirably made-up and costumed in Welsh garb, impersonates Dame Wales, an elderly lady from the principality, who has come to look for her husband in London—the "turn" is very favourably received; Mr. Gilbert Girard gives his astonishing imitations, first of the Jew's harp, and afterwards of about half the animals that came out of the Ark, with a railway train thrown in; Sammy's Birthday, a musical interlude, raises a hearty laugh now and then; and the programme concludes with some pretty pictures shown by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope.

WARRINGTON. — ROYAL COURT. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Mrs. Walter Bentley's company is here again this week in the romantic play A Queen's Vengeance. As Queen Eleanor Mrs. Walter Bentley displays histrionic ability of a high order; Miss Adela Harvey acts faithfully as Janet Jessop, and sings several ballads in pleasing fashion; Miss Lilian Deane is good as Mistress Clifford; Mr. A. Bertram Croucher scores as Henry II.; and in the heavy rôle of Sir Rupert Warrener Mr. Charles H. Lester acts with dramatic force throughout. Mr. Arthur Ellis is a manly Gilbert Ormonde. Other characters are ably sustained by Messrs. Arthur Bell, R. E. Trieve, G. Mepstead, F. Moore, and S. Roberts.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Wilhurt.—Park's Eton Boys are delighting all here this week with their vocalisation; and Harrigan and Holt are causing convulsive laughter with their patter and up-to-date business. W. B. Raby is a quaint comedian; the Victorian Bros., expert dancers; Joe Hennessey, clever club-swinger; Vardon, a smart ventriloquist; and the Royal bioscope pictures are also in the bill.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—The Moore-Kennedy Combination Variety company is attracting good houses this week. Mr. Harrison Bewicke and Messrs. Dunn and Lenden, in their new military scenario and living statuary, give a clever performance; Mr. Chas. Levey, comedian, evokes loud applause; the quaint comedians and dancers, Messrs. Lander and Lovett, keep the house in continuous laughter; Miss Mollie Howe, soubrette, is an expert artist; Mr. Ronald Bayne and Miss Evelyn Hope, in the historic episode, Napoleon's Divorce, prove a great success. The animated pictures are a big attraction.

WEST HARTLEPOOL. PALACE. — Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—The Dayton Family of pedestal Risley acrobats are the principal attraction, the feats performed by them are executed with astonishing dexterity and precision; Marion Scott, a dainty comedienne, sings in an engaging style; Les Lauriens give a classical statuary act that is well appreciated; the Bros. Redmond, acrobatic comedians; George Bendon, the White Coon; and Emma Don and company are favourites in this district, and have a pleasing reception; a capital number is contributed by Theresa and May, and some exciting pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—GRAND PIER PAVILION.—The Gaieties are proving a great attraction here this week, an excellent programme being contributed to by Miss Rose Dallow, Miss Ruby Wilson, Mr. Wilson James, a quaint comedian, and Mr. Charles Conyers in his sketch, An Afternoon at Home. Interesting pictures are shown on the Bioscope by Mr. Frank Lens, and Herr Julian Kändt's Austrian Blue Band is more popular than ever.

KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—The Elster-Grime Opera Company is paying a return visit here. On Monday Il Trovatore was staged. Miss Elster appeared to advantage as Leonora; Miss Madge Guillam was a praiseworthy Azucena; Miss Elsie Lynham was an acceptable Inez; Mr. F. Hargrave was in excellent voice, and sang with artistic effect as Manrico; Mr. Gilbert King as Fernando deserves unstinted praise; Count di Luna found an able exponent in Mr. Frank Land, and Mr. Albert Kewley did good work as Ruiz.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—The attraction this week is a strong variety company, comprising John Higgins, champion jumper of the world, who gives a fine performance. The Sisters Volbecque, comedy duettists, are exceedingly good; a novel turn is supplied by Will Rain and company, in The Motor Maniac; the Bros. Onda are smart and clever acrobatic comedians; some smart juggling is submitted by Hanvarr and Lee in The Golfer and the Maid, a turn which was loudly applauded; a clever patter and boxing exhibition is given by Pearce and Wari; Fred Tenby acquits himself creditably as a comedian; and Gillin is a clever ventriloquial humourist. The programme terminates with the latest pictures on the Edison bioscope.

WIGAN.—THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—Mr. T. Arthur Jones' No. 1 company, including Miss Marie Daventry, presents the sensational drama Life's Sweetest Sins. Mr. T. Arthur Jones plays very naturally the part of Capt. Harold Marston, the hero; and Mr. Oswald Douglas forcibly represents the character of the villain of the piece, Dr. Colbrooke. Mr. Edgar Morgan is a very mirth-provoking Bob Tanner; Fay Colbrooke is capably impersonated by Miss Mary Ainslie; Bess Grayson is well played by Miss Elsie Walton; and Miss Marie Daventry is very successful as Doreen, the orphan heiress.

WORTHING. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold. — Mr. F. H. Maltby's company in The Youngest of Three is paying a welcome return visit this week, and excellent houses testify that the Worthing public have not forgotten this admirable play. The tour started at this theatre, and by a happy coincidence the hundredth performance was registered here on Monday last. The company is the identical one which visited the town last March, and the lavish staging is greatly to be admired. Mr. H. F. Maltby again gives us his finished performance of George Wendover, and the other members of the cast are all deserving of the highest praise. During the last three nights of the week the same company present Mr. Wyn Weaver's drama, In Holy Orders, which was produced with success last week at Dover.

YORK.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—The New Empire Theatrescope is the principal attraction this week, the pictures presented being of the highest form of excellence. Hurman, juggler and hoop manipulator, is well received; Alice Lorette's posing is very effective; Boden and Bell are smart juveniles, whose dancing is a praiseworthy feature; and T. C. Jacques sings some excellent songs in first rate style.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—The Riogoku Japanese Troupe are here this week, and their reception has been most cordial; Ruth Lytton sings a couple of songs cleverly; John Ross is a capable vocalist; and Wallace Whitney is applauded. The dancing of Cliff and Kean is a special feature, and Kelly and Ashby are well received. Praise is also due to Beattie Foster and the Lovelaces.

SOUVENIRS of Meyerbeer have recently been presented to the Museum of the Grand Opera, Paris, by a lady who received them, either from the composer himself, or from members of his family. Among them are a small bronze bust by Dantan, a medallion by Zieger, and a small pitchpipe which Meyerbeer used to carry in his waistcoat pocket.

THE BUTLEIGH REVEL.

Glorious sunshine favoured the ancient revels which took place on the 19th inst., in the presence of nearly two thousand spectators, at Butleigh Court, Glastonbury, which, by the way, is only two or three miles from Keinton Mandeville, the late Sir Henry Irving's birthplace. The proceedings commenced with a prologue, followed by a tableau of the Phœnician traders after the late Lord Leighton's painting in the Royal Exchange.

Act 1 very appropriately showed the coming of St. Joseph of Arimathea and the planting of the staff, A.D. 63, which furnished a very impressive scene. The second division of the act was the entry of King Aviragus, with his six chieftains, and the granting of the land at Ynyswytryn (the Glassy Isle), upon which was built the first church in Britain. Act 2 dealt with the burial of King Arthur in the Abbey of Glaston, A.D. 542, the solemnity of the scene being varied in Act 3 by the bringing of Alfred the Great to the hut of Denulf, about the year 878. The pageant would not be complete without the incident of the burning of the cakes and the belabouring of the King's shoulders by Gundred, the swincherd's wife, and this proved to be one of the most successful portions of the entertainment. The second scene of the act was an effective representation of the Signing of the Peace of Wedmore, A.D. 878.

Act 4 depicted St. Dunstan's visit to King Edmund, A.D. 940, concluding with a tableau, "The Tribute of Wolves' Skins at Edgarley." In Act 5 King Henry I. grants a charter at Glastonbury, and this scene ended with a capital representation of Tor Fair in the olden times.

A sad event in the history of Glastonbury, namely, the dissolution of the great Abbey, was the subject of the next act, and here was shown the arrest of Abbot Whyting at Sharpham Park, on Sept. 19, 1539, and his trial at the Bishop's Palace, Wells, in November of the same year. The final scene portrayed the mournful procession to Tor Hill, in which the Lord Abbot, Prior, and Sub-Prior are drawn on hurdles to their execution.

Act 7 showed the brief career of "King Monmouth," the first scene being devoted to the arrival of the seven men of Butleigh at the Taunton market-place, and the second to the presentation of a Bible and a banner by the "Fair Maids of Taunton," on the steps of the Market Cross.

The concluding act showed a change in style—Christmas Eve, 1752—the dialogue of which was given in the Somerset dialect, and greatly appreciated by the visitors. The pageant concluded with a grand procession of all who had taken part in the various scenes, the costumes, which were historically correct, looking very beautiful in their setting of natural woodland scenery.

The revel was repeated on the following day, and so successful has it proved that it is likely to become an annual affair.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.

A special dramatic performance in aid of the Soldiers' Home, Guards' Depôt, Caterham, was given at St. George's Hall on Thursday evening under most distinguished patronage. The performance consisted of a new and original play by Miss Mary Woodifield, entitled Foil and Counter-foil. The plot of this new play is somewhat intricate. Sir Mark Joscelyn, of Joscelyn Towers, has a son, Nicholas, who takes to racing and neglects to pay his tailor, using his allowance to pay his debts on the Turf instead of the tradesmen. This hopeful young man is in love with Lady Betty Cyprian; his mother wants him, however, to marry a certain Marion Merridew, reported to be rich, but this lady's affections are already engaged to Oliver Travers, a barrister. Sir Mark Joscelyn has a trusted secretary, Joseph Barton, who is in love with Sally Moffat, a young lady evidently of the lower rank, who also has the disadvantage of being in the power of a man called Tuke, a friend, and an evil one, of Nicholas Joscelyn. In the first scene some valuable jewels arrive for Lady Joscelyn, and the Secretary places them in an unlocked desk in the room for safety! Sally Moffat steals into the room, and is about to take the gems—when Joseph Barton, coming back, and seeing a strange man in the room—for Sally is disguised as a man—seizes the intruder and finds it is Sally. She leaves, and the Secretary takes the gems, and on the return of the inmates of the house they find the jewels gone from the desk. Ramms, a butler, enters, and states that he has found the Secretary hiding the gems under the floor of his bedroom. They bring in Joseph Barton, who confesses to the robbery, and all the valuables are found except a diamond pendant, Sally having put that in her pocket. The first scene in Act II. shows the outside of the Full Measure Inn, and comic relief is afforded by Jock Do'em and his wife. The next scene is the interior of a prison. Joseph refuses to give up the name of his friend Tuke, as by so doing Sally will get into trouble. Seven years elapse between Act II. and III., and in Act IV., of course, all things are wound up, the villain unmasked, and the separated lovers united. Mr. C. V. Reynolds undertook the parts of Sir Mark and Jock Do'em, a publican, with a certain freedom and ability, though his style is better suited to the comic Jock than the part of the old nobleman. Mr. Sydney Brookfield played with no little intelligence the character, Nicholas Joscelyn; and Mr. Alex Duncan made a good Joseph Barton. Mr. Charles Moore had a somewhat ungrateful task in acting Catesby, a most impossible detective; and Mr. Scott did well in the small part of Ramms, the butler. Lady Joscelyn was capitally performed by Miss Anna Goad; and Miss Julia Samuel was charming in the part of Lady Betty Cyprian. The other characters of Sally Moffat and Martha Do'em, wife of Jock, were skilfully acted.

The string band of the Irish Guards, conducted by Mr. Hassell, rendered good service, and Mr. Edward Beecher acted as stage-manager, the play being produced by him.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The programme of the concert on Wednesday evening opened with a pianoforte solo, "Au printemps,", by Grieg, neatly executed by Miss Edith M. Ballard. In Guy d'Hardelot's pretty song "Because" and "The little Irish girl," by Herman Löhr, Mr. Percy Garfield was heard to great advantage, having a voice that will amply repay training. Miss Effie Cook also sang T. Riego's song "Look up, O heart" in a really artistic manner; while Mr. Josef Kiesewetter gained hearty applause in Tosti's "Mattinata." Miss Mabel Stevens, in her ambitious attempt, the scene from Irene, "Far greater in his lowly state," deserved praise, although the music proved somewhat beyond her present powers. In the instrumental portions Miss Nora Cookes gave a fairly able performance of Dancla's violin solo "Romance and Bolero," and Miss Blanche Hutchings deserved commendation for her piano solo "Blumenstück," by Schumann. A clever harp solo, grand study in imitation of the mandoline, by Parish Alvars, was given by Mr. Arthur Jones; and the only fault that could be found with Miss Lois Barker's pianoforte solos, "The fates," H. Farjeon, and "Scherzo," Cowen, was a certain heaviness of touch. Other able performances were a violin solo, Polonaise, Op. 4, by Mlynarski, played by Miss Elsie Kimpton, and Miss Helen Squire's piano solo, "The cascade," by Pauer. Miss Kate Richards acted as accompanist.

THE King, attended by his suite, was present at the British-Canadian Festival Concert in aid of the Countess of Minto's hospitals in Canada, held in the Queen's Hall on Wednesday.

THE CLAIMS OF COMIC OPERA.

"When the Savoy Theatre closed its doors to comic opera, London lost one of its charms. Do we not all of us remember those days of our youth," says Mr. Arthur Poyser, in the Musical Standard, "or younger manhood, when we looked forward to the visit to town—a visit always sure to include an evening of delight in the temple of Gilbert and Sullivan on the Embankment? The touring companies, in bringing those operas of perennial freshness to the local theatres, only whetted our appetites for that visit to the home of English comic opera where, on a first night—what first nights those used to be!—we might even see Sullivan himself in the conductor's chair, and perchance succeed in bringing Gilbert before the curtain at the end. It was all delightful. In the new opera (was it The Yeomen or The Gondoliers?) we heard an entrancing medley of wit and grace, and sweetest music, and came away feeling that there was at least one theatre in London where a delectable evening could be spent. We felt we had been under the spell of two magicians who outbid their own Mr. Wells in the "first-class assortment of magic" they had to offer—magic of incomparable libretti, magic of faultless lyrics, magic of melodies that robbed us of sleep. Yet we were not so musical a nation in those days. We had not learned to stand in a crowd for three hours at Queen's Hall to listen to Tchaïkovsky and Richard Strauss, nor had we jostled each other rudely in order to hear the mystical oratorios of an Elgar. We have progressed on one road; we have slipped back on another. We forget the triumphs of English opera at the Savoy, and we applaud the banalities of musical comedy.

"I go so far as to say that there are very few forms of entertainment so attractive to educated men and women in an English theatre as a comic opera of that national type hall-marked at the Savoy. Yet, when the curtain fell on the last opera of the now classic series, we tried to prevail upon the lovers of genuine light opera that musical comedy of the weakest possible kind was really what was good for them. The Savoy Theatre very shortly afterwards locked its doors. What its recent history has been we know too well. To-day we read glowing accounts of the Savoy Restaurant and Hotel, and the prosperity of that building, as shown forth in its sudden expansion of frontage to the Strand, causes us to gaze upon it in awe as we pass along the Actor's Mile. But what of the theatre smothered away somewhere in that great building erected to the delights of gastronomy? What of the policy that theatre was erected to maintain, and did maintain with such brilliance for so long a time?

"In endeavouring to state the case of comic opera one is tempted at times to cry that there is no case to state, and that "Ichabod" should be written up over the door of the temple of that particular form of musical art in England. Such a proceeding would not mend matters much unless the condition of extreme hopelessness it implies brought us, as a music-loving, if not a musical, nation to ask what was to be done. This is not a problem that can be easily put on one side. Much has been written lately concerning the drift of the drama: that at least presupposes the existence of a drama to drift; whereas to write of the drift of English comic opera would, to-day, be impossible, for the good reason that the art-form in question does not exist. Here is a point at which we reach complete agreement, and, having attained so desirable a rallying-place, we may look for some suggestions as to the future.

"Our first hope must be that London—the London of men and women with any pretension to be the possessors of a certain amount of culture and refinement—is heartily weary of its depressing period of dramatic, and especially musical-dramatic Zopf. When there comes a demand for better things there will be surely some supply to meet it. We must not be too critical at first, or we crush the seed before it is properly sown, or, having sown it, dig it up in feverish haste to see how it is progressing. Art epochs are not born in a day, but in a day the first blades may appear as a promise of what is to follow. If we harshly criticise, and then ridicule the blade because it is not the stout stem we expected, our plant will never grow, and we shall have to rest content with artificial flowers. All the "preliminary puffing," the over-dressing and over-mounting, and—it must be owned—over praising of worthless things, are but the paper flowers. The germ of real growth from the actual soil is smothered and stifled to death amongst the superabundance of childish inanities. Yet we wonder why there are no good, enduring English plays, or operas, written at the present time. As to native grand opera, that is quite another matter; we must be content with lesser flights at first. What we do demand is that whatsoever is done in the name of native art shall be the best of its kind; also that it shall not be judged from the standpoint of, or compared to, something not of its kind.

"It has been said that we must read the past in order to understand the present. The task proves unexpectedly interesting. In reading the fifth volume of the 'Oxford History of Music,' recently published, one finds that a very similar state of matters to that existing in England to-day existed in the eighteenth century. 'Society wanted to be amused, and cared little for the propriety of the entertainment. The audience refused to listen to anything that demanded thought; the composer stood, hat in hand, ready to offer his patrons whatever they wanted. Serene Highness, wearied by a day in the council chamber or the hunting field, betook itself to the theatre for an evening's peace, and, provided that the tunes were pretty and the accompaniments inconspicuous, was perfectly willing to be satisfied with its entertainment. . . . Little by little the fashion percolated to the lower strata of society; in a word, there was real danger that the whole of European music would be swamped by a flood of trivial commonplaces which should overspread it from coast to coast, and should then stagnate.' A composer of the period had 'just enough imaginative force to stimulate the interest of his patrons without arousing their apprehension. . . Our simple public, always on the lookout for false idols, accorded him an enthusiastic welcome, and he accepted the situation with good-humoured cynicism.' It reads like an article on the present state of music in our theatres in a quarterly review of to-day. So does history repeat itself.

"But what followed this sterility of the early eighteenth century? Why, the springing up of Haydn as the young stem of the tree of progress, of Glück as one of its noblest branches, and then the full glory of its mid-summer fulness in Mozart and Beethoven. If we give up hope, we forget the wonderful powers of revival that music, the youngest of the arts, possesses. Are we to believe that because the public of the present day desires trivialities in the theatre, that it will rest satisfied with that desire? In our hearts we know it is not so. The people of this country, whether they are patronising drama, comic opera, or grand opera, will not fail to support that which is excellent of its kind, as they crowded in years gone by to the Gilbert and Sullivan operas at the Savoy. What we wait for is a manager with sufficient courage to try experiments, as D'Oyly Carte tried, and to break fresh ground.

"If good English light opera is to be set up again in high places and to succeed, there must be no compromise between comic opera and musical comedy, as we apprehend the terms. They have nothing in common, and if the one, fearful of itself, descends at times to the level of the other, failure is courted at the outset. Comic opera is a distinct art-form, born when Mozart overthrew the singspiel—the musical comedy of the period—with his Il Seraglio; musical comedy is a loosely-strung entertainment which appeals to the jaded men and women of a strenuous life, who call for amusement, and are satisfied, 'provided the tunes are pretty and the accompaniments inconspicuous.' But there are still people left, happily, who demand some coherence, some sanity in the music-play. They may be few, but if education is really doing anything, they must become more numerous every day. Magazines and reviews that call for serious thought and appeal to cultivated judgment, and books that have a certain stamp of intellectuality, are all about us. They are read when the day's work is over, and they lift the mind out of its groove and lead it into the delectable regions of fancy and imagination. The method is not that of our present-day musical entertainments at the theatre, yet the call upon the tired mind is not made in vain. People go to the theatre to be amused, it is true, and no more delightful form of amusement, in the best sense of the word, can be found than an excellent comic opera.

"It is idle to say that the vein is worked out, or to be satisfied with the cry that there are no subjects for native light opera in our land. Our neighbours on the Continent do not think it necessary to leave their home-land in search of material. Wagner wrote his great comic opera on the material supplied by the everyday life of narrow-minded men in a small German town; French writers find abundant stores for libretti in Normandy and Brittany; Italian composers think village life on the slopes of their own sun-bathed hills quite exciting enough for their most dramatic works. Yet we Englishmen, possessing as we do so large a section of the habitable globe, are incessantly imitating other nations, borrowing ideas, translating, adapting, calling in foreign composers to write our comic operas; and we lay the scenes in France, or in some fictitious principality or dukedom because we have not the courage to be national, or because we have the fear of being original, in our ideas.

"That is the case of comic opera. The English home of that branch of musical art—the Savoy Theatre—is its home no longer, there are no revivals of classics, there are no new works. Yet we like to be patted on the back and called a musical nation.

THE WARWICK PAGEANT.

Some 5,000 spectators attended the rehearsal on the 22nd inst. of the Warwick pageant, which is to be given in commemoration of the thousandth anniversary of the Conquest of Mercia by Queen Ethelfleda, in the grounds of Warwick Castle, from July 2 to July 7 next. It would be difficult to conceive a more beautiful scene for a pageant, the arena chosen sloping down through an avenue of trees to the river Avon, and wooded hills forming a dark background to the glittering spectacle. In the foreground the realistic properties are carried on and off in an unobstrusive way, and the episodes are so arranged that the principal speeches are delivered right in front of the huge grand stand, which accommodates all the audience. Two thousand people, drawn from Warwick and the immediate neighbourhood, take part in the most fascinating folk-play, which has been admirably arranged and composed by Mr. Louis N. Parker, the well-known playwright, in eleven episodes, all full of dramatic and spectacular interest. They deal with the main points of the history of Warwick from the earliest times, each forming a play of its own, with a grand final tableau. The dresses are gorgeous, with beautiful arrangement of colour, and the splendid grouping, together with the elysian surroundings, and the delightful singing of the narrative and dramatic choruses, all go towards making the Warwick pageant one of the greatest triumphs of natural acting off the stage.

The pageant commences with a long flourish of trumpets by three heralds, after which a hidden orchestra begins a solemn march, and the narrative chorus, picturesquely garbed as Druids, march towards a rough altar stone, singing the opening chorus. They do ample justice to the appropriate music, composed by Mr. A. K. Blachall, F.R.C.O., and the graceful verse of Mr. James Rhoades, by which the episodes are introduced and linked together. The first episode deals with the death of Kymboline, the crowning of Caradoc, and the dawn of Christianity. The second scene illustrates the origin of the Bear and Rugged Staff, and is followed up by the commemoration of the raising of Ethelfleda's Round. In this scene the Conquest of Mercia, and the overthrow of Paganism a thousand years ago, is vividly illustrated. Episode four unfolds the romantic career of Guy of Warwick, his marriage with the fair Phyllis, and the slaying of the Dun Cow, the monstrous head of which is borne triumphantly on a trolley across the arena. The next episode depicts the return of Roger de Newburgh from the Holy Land, and the raising of the Church of St. Mary to collegiate rank. Then comes the stirring times when the Barons make short work of Edward II.'s favourite, Piers Gaveston. This is a most dramatic scene, the characters of which are admirably sustained, especially that of the ill-fated Piers Gaveston.

The Kingmaker scenes from Shakespeare's Henry VI. follow, and these, with the exception of the Elizabethan episode, are the most striking features of a spectacular entertainment. The characters here are taken by the Kineton amateurs. Lord Willoughby de Broke is Louis XI. of France, and Lady Willoughby de Broke Queen Margaret of England. Episode eight deals with the charters, and here the boys of Warwick Grammar School are introduced, and sing a Latin carmen, written by the master (the Rev. W. T. Keeling). Then comes episode nine, introducing the unpopular proclamation at Warwick of Lady Jane Grey as Queen, following which is the visit of Queen Elizabeth to the city. This is a very fine episode, and is cleverly enacted. Prior to the advent of Elizabeth, there are introduced the bailiff and the burgesses of the ancient borough, who disputed even in those days, and meet with Thomas and Dame Oken, whose charities, including marriage dowries for maidens, yearly feasts for the burgesses, and old age pensions, are depicted. Then comes in Queen Elizabeth, and Court revels and dances are given in her honour. The stately dances and the morris dances lend added enjoyment to the scene, and there is also some very fine singing. Here we are also introduced to William Shakespeare, then a boy, who is kissed by the Queen, and who boldly kisses her in return. In this scene also the boys of the King's County School, nicely dressed, come on and sing. At the close of the scene the Queen and her attendants depart in the State barge down the Avon. The eleventh episode deals with the great fire of Warwick in 1694, and this is followed by a final tableau of unprecendented magnificence.

All those who have taken part in the pageant are very effectively grouped. Britannia, Mother Warwick, mounted on a pedestal, surrounded by the fourteen Colonial and American Warwicks, are all introduced. After the singing of the Old Hundredth and the National Anthem, the whole of the performers march past. Mrs. Batchelor gives a very remarkable portrayal of Queen Elizabeth; and Mr. Rybot as Piers Gaveston is also very good. The Earl of Yarmouth will, during pageant week, appear as the Earl of Leicester, but in the dress rehearsals he is ably seconded by Mr. A. E. Batchelor. Two more full dress rehearsals were this week given, when the inmates of the Workhouse, Home for Incurables, other charitable institutions, and the poor of Warwick were invited. On another occasion the scholars of Warwickshire were afforded a day to witness the pageant.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

On Monday, June 25,
the Drama, entitled
"CHEER, BOYS, CHEER!"

This week Mr. Eade Montefiore commenced a short tenancy of this theatre for the summer season, during which he proposes to produce a series of dramas which have proved so popular at Drury Lane during past years. During the period which Mr. Montefiore has secured the theatre from Mr. Robert Arthur he will lower the prices of the seats, and this, coupled with the general excellence of the productions, should ensure good houses. It is a somewhat bold experiment, which, however, ought to meet with the support it deserves. On Monday evening Cheer, Boys, Cheer! was staged, and this stirring drama of the Matabele war, written by the late Sir Augustus Harris and Messrs. Hamilton and Raleigh, was capitally acted by a first-class company. Mr. Arthur Royston appears as the Marquis of Chepstowe, and he gives a finished interpretation of the character. As Lady Hilyard Miss Maud Williamson has made a great success by her vigorous acting. It is a capital delineation, played with much force, and full of sincerity. Miss Hilda Stewart is a very charming Blanche Lindesay. The scheming Reginald Fitzdavis is played in an effective manner by Mr. Riddell Robinson, who quite realises the requirements of this type of character. Mr. Templer Powell is excellent as Lord Archibald; while Mr. Cyril Austin Lee makes an earnest George Hilyard. Mr. Harry H. Rignold is most amusing as Wolff Meikstein, whose name betrays his nationality; and Mr. Augustin Symonds, another good comedian, is diverting as Oliver Brown, the clerk with a fondness for public oratory. Miss Lena Delphine is vivacious as Kitty Parker; and Miss Octavia Noel appears as Lady Kesteven with marked success. The other characters are capitally played, and the whole production is suitably mounted, under the stage-management of Mr. J. R. la Fane.

The evils of excessive drinking and gambling, and the misery that inevitably follows in their train, have often constituted the theme of melodrama; but seldom have they been more realistically shown than in A Gambler's Daughter, given with every sign of success at Mr. Bailey's popular playhouse on Monday. The drama, originally produced at the Theatre Royal, Blyth, on July 26, 1905, under the title of A Drunkard's Daughter, is well written, and contains plenty of sensational incidents and an abundance of comedy relief, and the "curtains" are all effective. The first scene takes place in a drinking saloon in Liverpool, and here we are introduced to the drunken gambler, John Grant, and the scoundrels responsible for his downfall, Stephen Brand, and his accomplice, the comedy villain, Solomon Solomons. Grant has lost all his money at the gaming table, and all the precious pair of evil-doers now want is a life policy for £2,000, which they determine shall be theirs ere he leaves the premises. His long-suffering and half-starved wife endeavours to persuade him to go home; but her pleadings are of no avail, and the poor woman is further tortured by the infamous proposals of Stephen Brand—of course, rejected. Brand's son, evidently a ne'er-do-weil, and Dick (known as "The Weasel")—the latter another victim of Brand, who has been imprisoned for forgery, of which he is innocent—also come to the saloon, and Dick is enabled to escape recapture by the police through the ingenuity of Desmond O'Dare, a genial Irishman, who is the guardian angel of virtue in distress throughout the play. Eventually Brand attempts to steal Grant's insurance policy; but the "gambler" makes a gallant attempt to retain it, Brand and Solomons killing their dupe at the finish, and Desmond O'Dare annexing the policy.

The next scene—a particularly tragic one—is Grant's home. His starving wife and children are awaiting his home-coming, and when his dead body is borne in, his broken-hearted wife soon falls lifeless by his side, after having first been assured of her children's welfare by Desmond O'Dare and a kind-hearted American capitalist, Ralph Gillman. Some years have elapsed when the next act opens, and Grant's children, brought up by their generous guardian, Gillman, have reached the age of discretion—or should have—when we see them on the Quayside, New York Harbour. All the principal characters have crossed "the pond" as well, for Desmond is there to watch over their welfare, and the scoundrel Brand, now known as Yelverton, and connected in business with Gillman, is also prowling around, determined to compass the downfall of the children, as he did that of their parents before them. He has been partially successful with young Jack Grant, who has frequented night clubs, and forged his guardian's signature to a cheque; but the girl is made of sterner stuff, and defies temptation, as her mother did. Dick, "the Weasel"—now Captain Stanhope—has fallen in love with her; and Brand persuades Carmen Sancho—still another of his victims—to waylay the gallant soldier and stab him. Carmen, however, kills Grant's own son by mistake, and Brand is arrested, but somehow again manages to escape justice. His next scheme to ruin Gillman, who has accepted a big Government contract which is to be completed within a certain time, is to entice all the workmen from the mills, giving them free drinks and unlimited credit. Gillman, young Jack Grant, and O'Dare all attempt to induce the men to return to work, as do also their half-starved women-folk; but the drinking-saloon is the strongest magnet. Then Miriam Grant has an idea. She induces the wives to follow their husband's example, and there is a very funny scene, wherein the men go home to find it deserted, and eventually discover their spouses in the liquor-palace, ordering drinks at their husbands' expense. The men insist that their wives shall not be served, and the women, as an alternative, ask Yelverton to refrain from supplying drink during working hours. This he refuses to do, and the women, in their wrath, completely wreck the saloon. Ere the curtain descends for the last time, Miriam saves her guardian and brother, and there is every prospect of happiness for "the gambler's daughter" and her friends.

Much of the success of the first performance is due to the admirable interpretation of the parts of Mildred and Miriam Grant and Desmond O'Dare by Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton, who head an excellent company. Miss Hill has opportunities for the display of most of the emotions in her depiction of the dual rôle of mother and daughter, and she took full advantage of them all. Her acting was pathetic in the extreme in the first act, in which the weary and half-starved wife appeals to her husband to leave the gaming-table and return home; and also in the concluding episods of the first act. In her portrayal of the daughter, Miriam, Miss Hill also was seen to advantage, very spirited and convincing being her attempt to induce the men to return to work; and her love-making with Captain Stanhope was quietly humorous. Altogether, Miss Hill is to be warmly congratulated on her portrayal of a particularly arduous rôle. Equally successful was Mr. Robert Ayrton as the light-hearted Desmond O'Dare, a very popular personage with the audience. The character is mainly a humorous one, but it has its pathetic moments; but in whatever mood we see O'Dare, he is always easy and natural, and the impersonation throughout is one on which the experienced actor is to be complimented. Another very humorous portrayal was that of the artful old Jew, Solomon Solomons, by Mr. Alfred Sanders, especially funny being the scene in which he is "fooled" by the coloured servant, Auntie Zeb, a part exceptionally well played by Miss Harriet Loydall, a gifted comedienne, who certainly scored one of the hits of the evening by her quaintly comical yet unexaggerated portrayal of the artful negress. Mr. Richard Pitt gave an effective portrait of the drunkard and gambler, Grant; Mr. Victor Millard is to be commended for his impersonation of young Grant; the capitalist, Ralph Gillman, was admirably undertaken by Mr. Vincent Carlyle; Mr. Harry Barham was a manly and sincere Captain Stanhope; the villainous Stephen Brand, a long and important part, was cleverly and convincingly enacted by Mr. Lincoln Calthorpe, an actor of decided ability. The numerous other characters were all ably enacted; and the scenery and stage-management—especially the destruction of the drinking-saloon—is entitled to praise.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

the Drama, in Five Acts,
by Henry Pettitt and Augustus Harris, entitled
"A MILLION OF MONEY."

The second week of Mr. Eade Montefiore's summer season has been productive of equally satisfactory results as those of the first, and audiences at Mr. Robert Arthur's theatre have responded in good numbers to the inducement held out by the production of the late Henry Pettitt and Augustus Harris's melodrama A Million of Money. Opportunity is given for some striking sets, of which full advantage is taken, and of the ten different scenes which illustrate the story those of the races and the Fête at the Exhibition provide the most elaborate specimens of scenic art The company has been selected with due regard to fitness. A splendid lead is furnished in Mr. H. Hamilton-Stewart, whose commanding presence dominates the piece agreeably. His manly fervour and dramatic expression give distinction to the inspiriting lines of the part, and the sentiment of Harry Dunstable's parting with his wife in the barrack-yard is made very affecting. Mr. W. F. Grant adopts an appropriately villainous scowl as the unscrupulous Major Belgrave, and a deep-toned voice used with skilful inflection gives added effect to the bitterness of his utterances. The character of Mary Maythorne is invested with gentleness and grace by Miss Doris Gilham, who is successful also in the portrayal of emotion as the young wife led by misrepresentation to believe that her husband is faithless. The spiteful Stella St. Clair receives adequately intense treatment at the hands of Miss Cecily Cromwell, who exerts her baneful influence realistically and suggests with unerring effect the vindictive nature of the character. The part of the scoundrelly Dick Bounder Mr. Victor Widdicombe makes entirely his own. His appearance is cleverly suggestive of the wily "sport," and the humour of the part is never allowed to flag. An artistic study of character is presented by Mr. Leslie Carter, the strength of whose portrayal of the unfortunate Geoffrey Stirling frequently raises a specially approving cheer; and another clever assumption is that of the lawyer Whetstone as presented by Mr. Frank M. Wood, who makes a very quaint and amusing personage of the elderly solicitor. Mr. George Percy is a buoyant and genial Tom Cricklewood; and a charmingly vivacious rendering of Hetty Nestledown is furnished by Miss Amy Grace, whose excellent light comedy style well befits the part. Mr. Wilfred Beckwith makes a benign parson as the Rev. Gabriel Maythorne, and acts with becoming gravity; and Mr. Murray Carrington should be cordially praised for his easy bearing and admirable delivery in the part of young Frank Hastings. Of the smaller characters the representation of Mrs. Marlow supplied by Miss May Romney, who speaks with excellent emphasis, should be singled out for praise; and the horse trainer of Mr. John Dane, the gipsy of Miss Viola Finney, and the Elsie Drummond of Miss Dorothy Finney, who dances elegantly, are also assumptions of distinct merit.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, June 25,
the Melodrama, entitled
"THE WAY OF THE WORLD."

For the last week of the spring season at this theatre Mr. Clarence Sounes made a popular booking in that of Messrs. Montague Beaudyn and Sidney Crowe's company, in The Way of the World. This play, which is well handled by an excellent cast, is a "melo-drama" in the strictest sense of the term, and the strong dramatic interest, combined with the interpolated musical numbers, proved much to the taste of Monday's audience. Miss Sidney Crowe is responsible for a forcible and convincing portrayal of Adela de la Roche, successfully insisting on the vixenish character of the vindictive Frenchwoman, and being particularly effective in the final scene of Adela's repentance. Miss Cissie Bellamy acts with a good deal of sympathy and power as Kate Montague, and soon becomes a firm favourite. As Marian Fanshaw Miss Violet Ingram speaks her lines distinctly, and with good effect. Miss Marie Fontaine causes considerable laughter as Polly Bell, the strong woman, and, with the aid of Mr. Dick Seddon, who also puts in a deal of hard work on his own account, is responsible for much of the success of the evening. As Cecil Montague Mr. Harold B. Lewis proves an excellent juvenile lead, acting with commendable ease and self-restraint. In the rôle of Captain Fred Slade Mr. Herbert Skardon earns the hearty execrations of the "gods." Mr. Clarence Temple plays Matthew Malyon with energy and conviction; Mr. Augustus Hammond is amusing as Horatio Bluff; and Mr. Pat Quinn acts well as Silas Montague.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, June 25,
the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled
"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

A return visit of Mr. Charles Harrington's No. 1 company, in an adaptation of Mrs. Beecher Stowe's beautiful work, Uncle Tom's Cabin, is being paid this week, and the large audiences that attended each performance testified, in no uncertain manner, their appreciation of the humorous and pathetic episodes incidental to negro life in the old slavery days, which are so ably embodied in the play. The piece, too, is admirably staged, and the scenery throughout excellent.

Mr. J. Carr gives a convincing impersonation of Uncle Tom, and his quiet but earnest acting makes a deep impression on the audience. Phineas Fletcher has a capital representative in Mr. J. H. Renney; and Mr. Stanley Howard presents a painstaking study of the wealthy planter, Mr. St. Clair. Mr. Leslie Beaufort is sufficiently manly and forcible as George Harris; and Mr. J. Henry Rogers, as the brutal slave-owner, Legree, looks the part to perfection. Mr. John Gibson as Mr. Wilson and Mr. James Jackson as Dan Haley are satisfactory in their respective parts; and Mr. Walter Langford causes much amusement by his character-sketch of the lawyer Marks. Miss Hettie Johnson is seen to advantage in the rôle of Eliza Harris; and Miss Carrie Ellis capably sustains the part of Emmeline. Miss Annie Watson as Topsy scores a decided success, and her clever acting keeps the audience in uproarious laughter. Miss Jennie Malcolm does all that is possible with the part of the staid Aunt Ophelia; and Mrs. Carr gives a good performance of Uncle Tom's wife, Aunt Chloe. Little Minnie acts with natural innocence and grace as Little Eva, speaking her lines with praiseworthy distinctness; and Miss Ethel Mildmay as Cassy, the creole slave, plays with pronounced success. A feature of the play is the grand plantation festival, in which Miss May Vincent, ballad vocalist; Messrs. Ikey Jones and Shorty May, dancers; Mr. W. H. Holt, tenor; Mr. Ben Rowe, bone soloist; and Rowe and Holden, cake-walkers, are accorded much applause.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, June 25,
the Historical Tragedy, in Four Acts, by J. Gordon, entitled
"MEDEA."

For Monday evening the Pavilion reverted to classical drama, and an excellent performance of J. Gordon's play Medea was given. Though not entirely free from the fault of diffuseness it proved one of the most successful pieces produced during the engagement of the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company. Mme. F. Waxman, who impersonated Medea, gave a fine example of high histrionic ability, and must be congratulated upon an admirable rendering of an extremely difficult character; every point was carefully made, and the conflicting passions were portrayed with great skill, while the intensity of her acting in the second act won unqualified applause. Mr. M. D. Waxman, looking very handsome in his classical costume, was in every respect an excellent Yozohn; Mr. M. Streng extracted all the humour possible from the part of Osanepontus; and Mr. D. Raitz was good as a Priest. Mme. Rose Waxman invested the rôle of Criozo with passionate warmth, and sang with much taste and effect. A highly meritorious rendition of Crehan was presented by Mr. Schapira; and Mme. J. Kayzer sustained Gara with conspicuous ability; while the Sisters Lubritzky acquitted themselves intelligently as the children of Yozohn and Medea. The play was suitably mounted. The week's programme includes Rachel; or, the Flag of Judah, The Workman, Alexander, Azaria, the Hero of the Army, and Blimele.

LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

the Drama by Walter Burnott and Harry Bruce,
entitled
"THE TWO HUSSARS."

The attraction this week at the Lyric is the military drama, The Two Hussars, produced with every success by Messrs. Fred J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company. Mr. Wilson Benge takes the leading part of Harry Alford, which he invests with all the pluck and dash so necessary for a soldier hero, and his performance is much appreciated by the audience. Mr. Fred J. Webb cleverly portrays the villainous Captain Paul Villiers; Miss Sadie Smith makes a very winning Ellen Maythorne, giving to the character at once a romantic and pathetic tone; Mr. Louis Nanton as Robert Runn, and Miss Lallah Price as Miss Molly Cutts, supply an abundance of merriment, and are the cause of much laughter. The part of Colonel Manners is entrusted to Mr. J. Stuart, who pictures this fierce old officer as a brave as well as good-hearted old man. Miss Danvers Smith renders the part of Marie with feeling, and acquits herself creditably. As Sergeant M'Finne Mr. G. Paradise is excellent; while Mr. Charles Fynes and a Mr. Jones give life-like studies of the Counsel for the Crown and defence respectively in the Law Court scene. Miss Marie Helene also deserves special praise, her part of Mrs. Giles, though small, being intelligently rendered. Minor rôles are successfully played by Messrs. F. G. Maddox, Louis Freeland, R. Charles, H. Lyndon, James Dalton, S. Little, Charles Dix, R. Bell, and R. Cross.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, June 25,
the Drama, in a Prologue and Four Acts,
by H. F. Housden, entitled
"A WOMAN'S PAST."

A Woman's Past will rank as one of the best dramas of its kind seen at this house for some time. There is not a dull moment throughout the performance, and it is ably interpreted by Mr. A. Hamilton Warden's excellent company. The David Heath of Mr. Horace E. Herbert is a sterling performance. His acting throughout shows carefulness and thought, and well merits the applause it receives. As Frank Dellannoy, Mr. Charles V. Sanford gives a bright and breezy rendering of an American; Mr. A. Hamilton Warden as Clement Harper makes a capital medico; and Mr. Oswal Cray as Uriah Craven is sufficiently repulsive and dastardly as the man responsible for "the woman's past." Miss Maisie Hanbury acts the rôle of Bessie with great credit, and wins the approval of everyone by her grace and charm of manner; and Miss Gertrude Harrison scores as the wicked Clara Darrel, her representation of the vindictive and desperate woman being excellent; Miss May Dallas as Dorothy Heath is bright and attractive; the minor parts are well played, and the piece is capitally staged.

DALSTON THEATRE.

the Drama, by Arthur Shirley and Henry Bedford, entitled
"THE STRAIGHT GAME."

Mr. Henry Bedford and members of his company are appearing at this theatre in the exciting drama entitled The Straight Game. Mr. Henry Bedford is excellent in the part of Nat Gould, and meets with a distinctly satisfactory reception; Mr. Alec Alexander as Frank Poole, an unscrupulous lawyer, portrays a calculating villain with just sufficient coolness of manner; Mr. Walter H. Domoney as Gilbert Lethbridge, the hero of the piece, has plenty to do, and he acts with vigour and good effect; Miss Bessie Bedford is Mary Lethbridge, Gilbert's wife, who has her full share of trouble; and a thoughtful study of the part of Belle Lorrimore, Mary's sister, comes from Miss Violet Alwynn. Mr. Sid Bedford as Tom Bounce, and Miss Jennie Risley as Kissie Lipscombe represent the courting servants, apparently indispensable in this class of play. The second act takes place in South Africa during the war. Here most of the people in the story who have been already seen make their reappearance, for one reason or another, and various military characters are well represented by Mr. George W. Hewetson as General Lisburn, Mr. Monkhouse as George Foster, and Mr. B. Leonard Page as Billy, a burglar.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

the Drama, in Four Acts, by James Willard,
entitled
"IN THE SHADOW OF NIGHT."

This well-known drama was accorded an enthusiastic reception on Monday night at the Stratford Theatre Royal, where the piece is paying a return visit. Mr. George Harvey makes the most of his opportunities in the limited part of John Allington, and Mr. Austin Mortimer plays with much earnestness as Gordon Allington. Mr. Geo. R. Montford makes Clifford Yorke the personification of gentlemanly blackguardism, in appearance, voice, and gesture; and Mr. E. Arnold Palmer is a breezy and manly exponent of Tom Nainby. Mr. Fred Norburn contributes a grim portraiture of Jake Grudgewell; and Mr. Harry Emmerson makes a hearty and rugged figure of Farmer Woodstock. Mr. C. P. Wentworth exhibits much resource in his depiction of such contrasted characters as the aged deaf postman, Joe Jackson, and the Rev. Nathaniel Hope; and Mr. Jas. Ingledew makes an alert Inspector Manners. Miss Phyllis Dailley is a sympathetic and charming Violet Kingston; Miss Nellie Sheffield is always bright and vivacious in the popular rôle of Molly Woodstock; and Miss Phyllis French plays with much expression as Bob. Minor parts are all in capable hands, and the piece is capitally mounted.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

the Play, in Five Acts, by Messrs. George Sims and Arthur Shirley, entitled
"TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS."

This, the last week of the present season, is devoted to a return visit of this highly attractive play, which is admirably interpreted by Hardie and Von Leer's clever company. Mr. William Fazan gives an earnest and painstaking performance of the part of George Thornton; Captain Darville is well acted by Mr. Sidney Vautier; John Scarth has an able representative in Mr. Dunstan Haye; Mr. S. Major Jones is a realistic Bill Muggins; and his confederates, Dido Bunce and the Cough-Drop, are well represented by Messrs. Frank Gordon and Fred Archer; Mr. Frank G. Kent is really excellent as Leeson; Mr. Marston Moor is good as Hargitt, as is Mr. Hugh Holliman as Joe Gargoyle; and the remaining male parts are in the capable hands of Messrs. Thomas Blakeman (Doctor Lynn), Henry Buckland (Whiffin), and W. T. Harris (the Footman). Miss Valerie Grespin gives a charming interpretation of Marion Thornton, gentle, tender, and sympathetic; Miss D. Rosslyn Vayne is an attractive Barbara Scarth; Miss Lenna Vernon is a pleasing Sister Randall; Miss Alice Ramsden is good as the maid; and Miss Marie Prichard as Biddy Mullins gives a neat character sketch. The two little Vagabonds are played by Miss May Hart, whose Dick is a bright, manly little fellow, who wins his way to all hearts; and by Miss Josie Beltram, whose Wally is pathetic, convincing, and most popular.

After this week the theatre will be closed for re-decoration, re-opening on August Bank Holiday.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

the Original Domestic Drama, in Four Acts, by Ridgewood Barrie, entitled
"A QUEEN OF VILLAINY."

Despite the weather, which has been so greatly against all theatrical amusements, a very fair audience assembled on Monday night to welcome Mr. P. Howard Sturgess's company in the exciting and interesting drama, A Queen of Villainy. The title-rôle is ably acted by Miss Edith Bland. Her excellent elocution and her handsome and commanding presence lend such distinction to the part of Cora Granville, that the audience are almost tempted to overlook the numerous moral delinquencies which must be charged to the character. Mr. Ernest G. Batley is an excellent representative of the hero Alec; Mr. Edward Heanley ably depicts the villainies of the unscrupulous Stephen Faucit; Mr. Arthur E. Maskel gives a good character-sketch as the poacher Reuben Hawk, infusing a good deal of grim humour into the part; Mr. P. Howard Sturgess causes abundant laughter as the timid tourist Timothy Kodac, whose sweetheart, Mollie Maggs, is brightly played by Miss Jessie Crummonde, who ably assists in keeping the ball of fun rolling. Miss Amy Ross Clyde, as the old nag Sally Chimes, contributes an able character-sketch, which is of the utmost value to the play. Miss Cecilia Desmond gains the sympathy of the house by her sympathetic rendering of the gentle Rose Delmayne; Mr. Charles Stirling is earnest and powerful as the convict Dick Leinster; and Mr. Lawrence Stevenson excellent as the waif Kit. Mr. Ern Carlton makes an aristocratic Sir John Desborough, and P.C. Martell is played with humour by Mr. Cecil de Lee, who also stage-manages the production. The scenery and effects are quite adequate, and special incidental music has been arranged by Mr. J. H. Hutchinson.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, June 25,
the Farcical Comedy, by Brandon Thomas, in Three Acts, entitled
"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

After a prolonged absence, regretted by many local playgoers, this amusing play, the popularity of which has not yet begun to wane, made a welcome reappearance at the Kingston playhouse on Monday, and has commanded fairly good audiences during the week, in spite of many out-of-doors counter attractions. The amusing antics of the old lady from Brazil were as provocative of mirth as ever. Mr. Stanley Cooke appears in the title-rôle, and extracts from it a maximum of humour. The parts of the two undergraduates are ably filled by Mr. Hastings Lynn and by Mr. Richard B. Mason. A capital impersonation of the part of the solicitor, Stephen Spettigue, is given by Mr. Walter Beaumont; and the part of Colonel Chesney is equally well played by Mr. C. B. Keston. Miss Lena MacNaughten figures prominently as Donna Lucia; and the other parts allotted to ladies are well played by the Misses Marion Ripley, Dorothy Deacon, and Gladys Storey. The play was admirably mounted.

COMPOSERS' BURIAL PLACES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—A contemporary journal has printed the subjoined paragraph, in answer to a correspondent:—"The remains of the following musicians have been reinterred: Bach, Haydn, Beethoven, Weber, Schubert, and Dragonetti; and of Englishmen, Dr. Greene, John Davy (in the same churchyard, St. Martin's-in-the-Fields), and Sir William Cusins. For a complete list you had better apply to Mr. Algernon Ashton: he could doubtless also furnish you with the names of those musicians who have been buried at sea—in other words, those who sleep their last sleep in the ocean's bed."

To the above-mentioned nine musical notabilities whose remains have been reinterred, I can add Gluck, who was transferred from the Matzleinsdorf Cemetery in Vienna, to the central cemetery of that city; Rossini, who rested for years in the cemetery of Père Lachaise, Paris, but whose embalmed body was subsequently taken to the church of Santa Croce, Florence; Bellini, who was likewise originally interred in Père Lachaise, but now lies buried in his native town of Catania, Sicily; and lastly, Schumann, who, in the year 1880, was taken from one grave to another in the cemetery at Bonn.

Of course there may be other famous musicians whose remains have been subjected to similar treatment, but whose names I cannot now recall. Regarding those musicians who were buried at sea (which is almost as horrible as cremation), I only know of one—Dr. John Naylor, the well-known church composer and organist of York Minster, who died on May 15, 1897, whilst on a voyage to Australia. Dr. Naylor was an esteemed personal friend of mine, to whom one of my earliest compositions (an Interludium for Organ, Op. 11) is dedicated.—I am, Sir, yours obediently,

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The London County Council resumed its sittings after the Whitsun recess at the County Hall, Spring Gardens, on Tuesday.

RESIGNATION.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported with regret that Mr. D. S. Waterlow, M.P., had found it necessary to resign his membership of the committee. They intended to report later as to filling the vacancy.

PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

The committee reported that they had had before them during the recess two drawings, showing certain proposed modifications of the gallery seating and of the exit at the back of the pit at the Putney Hippodrome, Gardner's-lane, Putney. The arrangements shown on the drawings appeared to be satisfactory.

ALLEGED DANGEROUS PERFORMANCE.

The committee reported as follows:—

Our attention has been drawn by Dr. F. J. Waldo, the Coroner for the City of London, to the rider which was added to the verdict of the jury at an inquest held on May 24, 1906, regarding the death of Michael Murphy, who died from septicæmia following an operation for re-setting the bone of his left arm, which was fractured on Jan. 6, 1906, by the deceased being thrown from an "unrideable" mule at the New Grand Hall, Clapham Junction. It appears that in one of the turns included in the performance at this music hall on Jan. 6, 1906, a revolving table, a pony, and an "unrideable" mule were employed, and men and boys from the audience were invited to ride for prizes upon the table and upon each of the animals, competitors being warned that anyone attempting the performances did so at his own risk. Evidence was given at the inquest that several youths had been slightly injured by falling or being thrown from or bitten by the animals. The rider attached to the verdict of "accidental death" arrived at by the jury was to the effect that the performance at which the deceased met his injury was a dangerous one, and should be discountenanced. We concur in the view expressed by the jury, and have informed the licensee of the New Grand Hall accordingly. A copy of the rider has also been forwarded by Dr. Waldo to the Home Office. We may add that we understand that the turn in question is not at present being performed in London.

The report was received without discussion.

PROPOSED KILBURN MUSIC HALL.

The Council on Nov. 21, 1905, approved drawings submitted by Mr. F. W. Hingston, on behalf of Mr. W. Stephens, of a music hall building proposed to be erected on a site between Kilburn High-road and Kilburn Priory, subject to the condition, inter alia, that the building should be commenced within six months from the date of the approval. Mr. Stephens has asked that this time may be extended by six months, and the committee recommended that the application be acceded to.

Approved.

ROYAL ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

A report having reference to this theatre, which was recently rebuilt after being destroyed by fire, was held over. The committee stated: It would seem to be quite clear that the Council has no jurisdiction and no responsibility for the safety of the public attending the theatre, and in the circumstances we do not think that the Council should take any further action in the matter.

THE TIVOLI.

The committee had considered drawings submitted by Mr. G. H. Dyball, showing how it is proposed to comply with certain of the suggestions made by the Council for the structural improvement of the Tivoli Music Hall, Strand. They recommended that Mr. Dyball be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the four drawings submitted by him, provided suggestions Nos. 18, 38, 39, 40, and 56 are complied with to the satisfaction of the Council.

Agreed to.

THE ALBERT HALL.

In reply to a question, Mr. Yates, the chairman of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, stated that the solicitor to the Council had not yet given his opinion as to whether or not performances at the Royal Albert Hall came under the jurisdiction of the Council.

WALDORF THEATRE.

The Building Act Committee recommended that the Council do consent to the erection of two iron and glass shelters in front of the Waldorf Theatre, Aldwych and Catherine-street, as shown on the plans, dated April 5, 1906, and May 21, 1906, submitted in connection with the further application of Messrs. Gillow and Co., such consent being subject to the usual conditions.

"THE INSPECTOR-GENERAL."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I should like, with your permission, to correct an impression which might be given by two or three passages in your criticism of Gogol's comedy in to-day's issue The play given at the Scala last week was translated a few years ago direct from the Russian, not from a German original or version. Its name in Russian is Revizor. It is of course a classic in that country, and was honoured by enthusiastic Jubilee celebrations in 1886, at St. Petersburg and Moscow.

For London audiences many of the Russian points and allusions had perforce to be cut, whereas I understand that the German version given some while back in Germany was artistically marred by being expanded and brought up to date.

The costumes in the Stage Society production were copied from Boklevski's album of "Types of Characters in the Revizor," as dressed for the Russian stage.—Yours faithfully,

ARTHUR A. SYKES.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—In your notice of the production of Welcome Home at the Empress, Brixton, in your last week's issue, by a programme error you state that the authors are Mr. Harry Leighton and George Errard. The latter name should be George Everard.—Yours faithfully, BERT D'ARCY, Brixton, June 20.

ONLY three of Wagner's works, namely, Der Ring des Niebelungen, Tristan und Isolde, and Parsifal are to be produced at the Bayreuth Festival of 1906, which opens on July 23. The latter work will be given seven times, and will close the festival on August 20.

THE famous violinist, Dr. Joachim, attained his seventy-fifth birthday on Thursday. Dr. Joachim made his first appearance in England sixty-two years ago, and since then he has occupied a position of influence in connection with music in England that has hardly been rivalled.

ON Saturday last M. Coquelin and company paid a special flying visit to the Manchester Theatre Royal, when large audiences assembled to witness a matinée of Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme and a very fine performance in the evening of Cyrano de Bergerac.

MISS ELIZABETH PARKINA, who was taken ill on the stage during a performance of La Bohème, at Covent Garden, and was unable to finish her part, is recruiting in the country, and will be able to resume her place at Covent Garden next week

"JOHN DRAYTON, MILLIONAIRE."

A Fanciful Comedy, in Three Acts,
by H. M. Walbrooke,
Produced at the Theatre Royal, Dover, on Monday, June 25.

John Drayton .....MR. FREDERICK ROSS
Philip Havelock .....MR. CHARLES FANCOURT
Constantius .....MR. RICHARD A. GREENE
Mary Maxwell.....MISS DOROTHY MAYHEW
Lady Maxwell .....MISS PHYLLIS NOELL
Nellie Brasher .....MISS DORA HARCOURT
Ellen .....MISS SYLVIA MORRIS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

John Drayton, Millionaire, is described as a story of mediæval legend blended with modern London life, and was, we believe, produced for copyright purposes at Brighton some five years ago, under the title of Sunshine and Rain. Since that date, however, considerable changes have been made in the script, and the result is a daring and original play, written with considerable power, and with an element of the fantastic which reminds one of A Message from Mars. The comedy had a most enthusiastic reception, the principal scenes being greeted with rounds of applause.

The first act introduces John Drayton, author, living on the verge of starvation in the attic of a Bloomsbury boarding-house. However, hope has not quite gone, for he has still the love of his fiancée, Mary Maxwell, and his pal, Philip Havelock, comes forward with offers of pecuniary assistance. Following an interview with his sweetheart, he receives a visit from an old man in a strange garb named Constantius, who tells him that the legend of the Wandering Jew is true. He who committed the unpardonable sin still exists, and indeed cannot die until someone dowered with the money Constantius has saved through many centuries commits an entirely self-sacrificing act, and so sets his weary spirit free. The old man offers Drayton unlimited wealth on certain terms. He may do what he will with the money; but there will be no rain in England until he has performed one act of real unselfishness. Drayton, after some hesitation, accepts the offer, and undertakes the responsibility. The last words of Constantius to Drayton, before his disappearance in the same strange way that he came, are to spend the money in the best manner possible, and to remember that the happiness of millions is at stake.

The first act of the new millionaire is to engage as his private secretary his old friend Philip Havelock, and to secure a cosy little flat in Piccadilly. Here he is found surrounded by all the luxuries that unlimited wealth can buy. All the happiness that the latter can bring, however, is overshadowed by the knowledge that his action of nine weeks ago has caused a terrible drought in the land. Thousands of pounds have been given away in charity, but what act of self-sacrifice must he make to bring the rain so urgently needed? Constantius comes in answer to his cry of "What more can I do? I would give up everything to bring the rain!" Drayton confesses he is living in luxury, and has not performed one real act of unselfishness. Constantius tells him that the only thing that would be of avail would be to give up the girl he loves. Drayton, however, emphatically declines to do this, and resolves to go back to the old days of poverty and work.

The third act brings us again to Bloomsbury. Drayton has left all the money in charge of the bank, and is as poor as he was nine weeks ago. Mary visits him, and there is a tender scene between the lovers. The erstwhile millionaire struggles against the good impulses which prompt him to give up his love and bring gladness to millions; but finally they conquer. He tells Mary he never cared for her, and bids her forget him as speedily as possible. She leaves him apparently broken-hearted. Havelock enters and draws attention to the darkness of the sky. They both rush to the window. The room is suddenly illuminated by a flash of lightning, and the rain pours down in torrents. Havelock leaves, jubilant, and Drayton is again honoured by a visit from the Wandering Jew, who restores his wealth, and comforts him with the assurance that his sacrifice has not been in vain. Mary returns, confesses that she knew Drayton did not mean her to take seriously his wild words, and the curtain falls on two happy pairs of lovers, for Havelock, in the intervals of assisting his friend, has found time to woo and win Ellen (the daughter of an Army officer), who has been masquerading as a servant.

Mr. Frederick Ross is well-known locally as an artist of exceptional ability, but the audience were hardly prepared for such a remarkable display of talent as shown in his portrayal of John Drayton. The pathetic struggle of the penniless author, the remorse of the millionaire who is responsible for the awful curse upon the land, and the spontaneous humour in the lighter scenes, were cleverly depicted, and it would be impossible to imagine a more effective rendering of the part. Mr. Charles Fancourt as Philip Havelock acted with unflagging energy, and was particularly successful in the light comedy scenes, which suit him so well. Mr. Richard Greene—brother to the popular Evie Greene—deserves nothing but praise for his rendering of Constantius; it was both striking and impressive. A clever and fascinating Mary Maxwell was found in Miss Dorothy Mayhew; her vivacity and sympathetic manner renedered her performance completely captivating. A notable touch of individuality was given to the part of Ellen by Miss Sylvia Morris, who won the entire approbation of the audience by her graceful portrayal. Miss Phyllis Noell made the most of her slender chances as Lady Maxwell; and Miss Dora Harcourt, beautifully gowned, played with quiet assurance and considerable charm as Nellie Brasher.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The chamber concert of Friday evening, June 22, opened with a careful and intelligent performance of Schumann's "Quartet for Strings in F, op. 41, No. 2," the executants being Mr. William Armstrong, Miss Marjorie Beer, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Miss Beatrice Jones. A clever and extremely youthful student, Miss Gertrude Mustard, proved excellent in her piano solo of Schumann's "Carnaval," both for touch and execution. On the vocal side of the programme, Miss Janey Fyans displayed a well-trained mezzo-soprano voice in two songs, "I Cherish Thee," and "King of Thule," by Liszt. Miss Dilys Jones and Miss Mary C. Harrison were also much applauded in their vocal duets, "Die Zuversicht," "Die Gefangene," and "Die Trennung," by Dvorák; and Miss Mary Hughes greatly pleased by her performance of Wagner's two songs, "Träume" and "Stehe Still." The concert, which was largely attended, concluded with the organ solo, "Fantasia" (W. Wolstenholme), well played by Mr. Edward Tayler. Miss Alice Cotton, Miss May Harrison, and Mr. Harold Samuel acted as accompanists.

THE ALEXANDRA, STOKE NEWINGTON.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Our attention has been called to a paragraph which appears in your issue of the 23rd inst. to the effect that Mr. Frank Macnaghten has acquired the lease of the Stoke Newington Theatre, which he will re-open as a variety theatre on August Bank Holiday. We beg to inform you that this is in no manner the case, and that Mr. Macnaghten has not acquired the lease of the theatre, and we therefore shall be glad if you will insert this letter in your next issue.—Yours faithfully,

"WHERE IS WILLIAM?"

A New and Original Farcical Comedy,
by Charles Windermere,
Produced at the Theatre Royal, Worthing, on Thursday, June 21.

Sir William Gregory ..MR. CHAS. WINDERMERE
Harry .....MR. HARRY AVERELL
General Rubbub .....MR. WENTWORTH FANE
William Jolley .....MR. GRAHAM MORRISON

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The plot of Mr. Windermere's new farcical comedy turns on the remarkable likeness between William Jolley, the butler, and his employer, Sir William Gregory. Mr. Windermere is to be congratulated upon the amount of genuine humour he introduces in the unravelling of the awkward situations brought about by this likeness. Judging from its reception at the first performance, the new play is likely to have a successful run.

In the first act, Harry, son of Sir William, and Phyllis, companion to Lady Mary, hold a conversation respecting a model of a boy invented by the first-mentioned. Lady Mary, who is going to a dance, expresses her regret at her husband's resolve not to accompany her. Sir William, as an excuse for remaining at home, pleads that he is only a parvenu, while she is a lady. Jolley enters to announce that the motor-car is ready to take Lady Mary, Harry, and Phyllis to the dance. Lady Mary, turning hurriedly to give her husband a parting embrace, kisses Jolley, to her great annoyance. She complains that she can only tell her husband and the butler apart by the brass buttons on the latter's coat. Just prior to retiring for the night, Jolley announces that he must leave the service of Sir William, and threatens to commit suicide on account of the trouble he is in. Questioned by Sir William, he states that his first wife, whom he had supposed dead, was expected to arrive the next day from Australia. Sir William, after a glance at the photograph of the returning wife, assures the unhappy butler that he will assist him out of his difficulties.

During the night a burglar enters the house, and, bungling, rouses Jolley, who fires a revolver. The burglar is uninjured, but seeing no other way of escape, feigns death. Sir William enters, and hearing what has happened, helps Jolley to cover up the supposed corpse. He then advises Jolley to make good his escape. The burglar, before quitting the house, discovers the dummy figure, and places it in the spot where he had been left. Jolley and Sir William returning, decide to place the body in an ottoman. Jolley, who has donned his master's coat and hat, departs, and Sir William, in order to screw up his courage, drinks a tumbler of whiskey, and then, feeling cold, puts on Jolley's coat. Being overcome by the whiskey, he lies down on the ottoman, and falls fast asleep. Lady Mary, on returning home, finds him there, and supposing it to be Jolley, is extremely angry, and orders him to retire to the servants' quarters. He asserts he is Sir William, but is not believed, as he is wearing Jolley's coat. Eventually it is found that Sir William's hat and coat are missing and the party retire for the night.

In the morning there is no news of Sir William, so Harry goes to the police station to make enquiries. Amusing complications ensue through Sir William being mistaken for Jolley by both the first and second Mrs. Jolley. The father of Lady Mary also calls, and, not having before met Sir William, naturally takes him for the butler. He learns from his daughter that her husband is missing, and, meeting Mrs. Jolley and the lady from Australia, is led to suppose his daughter has been the victim of a bigamous marriage. Harry, having found Jolley, supposes him to be his father, and bails him out, the butler having been taken into charge for drunkenness. Thinking it a fit opportunity, Harry decides to ask permission to marry Phyllis. Jolley, forced to keep up the pretence, willingly gives his consent, to the astonishment of Harry. Joe Budge turns up in search of his long-lost wife Eliza, whose photograph he had recognised on the previous night. Jolley, having learnt that he has not committed murder, nor bigamously married Emily, seeks Sir William. Much fun is introduced in the third act in the unravelling of the several entanglements.

Mr. Charles Windermere as Sir William Gregory scored an unqualified success, his quaint humour and funny facial expression causing roars of laughter. Mr. Harry Averell also deserves special commendation as Harry. He played the part with admirable ease, and appreciably added to the general mirth. Mr. Wentworth Fane did well as the irascible, deaf General Rubbub; Mr. Graham Morrison scored as William Jolley; Mr. Henry Nelson was a typical burglar as Joe Budge; the part of Rafter, a cabman, was in the safe hands of Mr. Mackenzie; Miss Phyllis Leslie ably sustained the character of Lady Mary; Miss Clare Manifield was a winsome Phyllis; Miss Evelyn Shelley as Emily, Jolley's wife, was particularly good; and Miss Zoe Davis was also successful as Eliza from Australia.

SHAKESPEARE IN THE GLADE.

Midsummer Eve witnessed the resumption at the Botanic Gardens, Regent's Park, of Mr. Patrick Kirwan's season of pastoral plays. The weather on Saturday was not altogether perfect, and a low-lying mist served somewhat to obscure the performance of A Midsummer Night's Dream, with which the series of Shakespearean plays began. The spot for the al fresco performance was happily chosen, and the fairy-like forms disporting in the limelight were gracefully outlined against the background of trees and foliage. The Idyllic Players, as they are called, worked hard and earnestly, and a large audience thoroughly enjoyed the performance. Mr. Kirwan himself played the part of Bottom, the lines of which he declaimed with emphasis and point. It was a humorous conception, and frequently aroused laughter. Miss Phyllis Relph distinguished herself in the rôle of Oberon, making a stately appearance, and speaking with admirable effect; and Miss Jessie Stanton also created a favourable impression in the part of Helena. Miss Barbara Guthrie made a sprightly Puck, although her voice was not equal to making itself heard without great effort. Miss Josephine Arthur sang well as Titania; a prepossessing Hermia was found in Miss Helena Parsons; and Miss Elizabeth Holt was a regal Hippolyta. Quince was drolly rendered by Mr. George Hawtrey, and Messrs. John Kelt, E. G. Venning, J. M. Napper, and St. Clair acted quaintly as Flute, Snug, Snout, and Starveling. Messrs. Frank Ellison and Gerald Saffery looked their parts excellently, and did very well as Lysander and Demetrius. Other parts were ably sustained by Mr. St. Clair Bayfield, who appeared as Egeus, Mr. Douglas Allington and Miss Elizabeth Holt as Theseus and Hippolyta, Miss Irene Arden as First Fairy, and Mr. Van T. Ranney as Philostrate. The music of the Singing Fairies was admirably rendered by Messrs. Bellew and Stock's choir. Selections from Mendelssohn's music were harmoniously rendered by Mr. Cecil Stock's quintet. A Midsummer Night's Dream was announced for repetition on Thursday and to-night (Saturday).

A MONUMENT to the father of modern Norwegian music, Richard Nordraak, has been erected in the Jerusalem Cemetery, Berlin. Nordraak was the composer of the Norwegian National Hymn, and his career was one of great promise, till death cut it short in 1866, when he had lived only twenty-four years.

"THE GORILLA'S REVENGE."

A Sketch, in Two Acts, by Chas. M. Daly,
Produced, for the First Time, at the Avenue Theatre, Sunderland, on June 25.

Waram Braadt .....MR. ALBERT SEMBER
Jack Durand .....MR. STANLEY S. GORDON
Goorl Ramero.....MR. DUNCAN BELL
Borgia Ramero .....MISS NINA VAUGHTON
Jacky .....MR. CHARLES M. DALY
Zongalez .....BY HIMSELF
Zepher .....BY HIMSELF

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Novel, weird, and enthralling, the above-named sketch, produced as a curtain-raiser on Monday, is one that ought certainly to prove a welcome addition to the numerous plays that are now to be found in every variety programme. The incidents of the piece appertain to the struggle for the possession of a jewel of fabulous worth taken from the head of an Indian image. The jewel is in the possession of a young English seaman named Jack Durand, a former lover of one Borgia, the daughter of Goorl Ramero, an Indian dealer in wild animals and collector of precious stones. Borgia has been betrayed by an unscrupulous adventurer named Waram Braadt. When the play opens Braadt is seated in his private room, in which is a cage containing a huge gorilla called "Jacky," noted for its huge strength and also for its revengefulness towards anyone whom it dislikes. Braadt has incurred the anger of the animal through his cruelty to it during its confinement in his room. Borgia enters and demands to be made his wife; but Braadt is immovable. Durand now makes his appearance, expecting to find Goorl Ramero, to whom he wishes to dispose of the jewel. Braadt pretends that he is empowered to act as Ramero's representative in regard to the purchase, and Durand is left to sign the necessary paper of transfer. During Braadt's absence Borgia returns, and is surprised to find in Durand her old love. Hasty explanations are made; and, on her advice, instead of asking £500 for the stone, he raises the price to £5000. Braadt refuses to effect a deal for any such sum, and Durand angrily takes his departure, Braadt being finally driven from the room by Borgia, who holds a venomous snake on her outstretched hand.

In the second act the stage is converted into a huge menagerie, and in one of the cages the great gorilla is confined. In the next cage, separated by a sliding partition, the old Indian has fitted up his office. Durand calls by appointment, and agrees to accept the sum of £500 in payment for the jewel. He hands the stone to the Indian, on whose invitation he steps to the desk inside the cage, but finds that the wily old dealer has entrapped him by barring the door. The gorilla is then driven into the cage, but the beast makes no hostile movement beyond endeavouring to regain its liberty. Braadt has a desperate struggle with the dealer for the possession of the stone, which he ultimately obtains, and he then endeavours to enrage the gorilla so that he will attack Durand; but the animal succeeds in forcing the bars and, springing upon his tormentor, strangles him. The gorilla releases Durand, but is shot by Borgia, and after joining the hands of the lady and Durand the animal falls dead.

The piece had a flattering reception, and Mr. Machin is to be congratulated upon its successful production. The incidental music is by Mr. William Jackson, a Wearside musician, and is quite in keeping with this weird and wild production. The feature of the sketch is of course the part of the "gorilla," cleverly played by the author, Mr. Chas. M. Daly, and special commendation is due to this versatile artist for his highly realistic animal impersonation. Mr. Albert Sember is successful in his portrayal of the rôle of Waram Braadt; and Mr. Stanley S. Gordon is effective as Jack Durand. Mr. Duncan Bell submits an excellent study of the Indian dealer, Goorl Ramero; the rôle of Borgia Ramero makes no great demands upon Miss Nina Vaughton's well-known histrionic ability, but she does all that is possible with the part. Zongalez and Zepher, an Indian monkey and a Phybia snake respectively, are the importation of Mr. Cross, of Liverpool, and add considerably to the realism of the production.

THE HURLINGHAM PASTORALS.

"The gods on Thespis smile." A real, enpurpled midsummer night steeped in soft gloom the delightful grounds of this club on Wednesday last, where, in a green, undulating spot, embowered lovingly by grand old trees that might almost have been the very wood where Bottom and his companions met to rehearse their "tedious, brief, tragical, merry play," Mr. Patrick Kirwan's company of Idyllic Players unfolded to a large audience of members and their guests the pastoral scenes of Shakespeare's Dream. Pleasant limes secreted among the drooping foliage furnished the due effects, myriads of tiny jewelled lamps everywhere about the wide grounds, with the young moon glimmering over all, enhancing the fairy charm of the general scene.

One of the best impersonations came from Miss Phyllis Ralph, who brought out with fine elocution (especially in the "love-in-idleness" speech) the lyrical beauty of Oberon's lines, surely some of the most cloying-sweet verse that was ever penned. We speak advisedly; our own unchanged opinion being—notwithstanding the notable representations by some of our best actresses that one can recall—that the rôle of the Fairy King is essentially one for a jeune premier, a view (on purely artistic grounds, of course) which the recent Adelphi production is alone sufficient to justify. But this by the way. Miss Josephine Arthur acted with charm as Titania, though perhaps just a trifle monotonous of diction in the earlier passages. Puck, in the hands of Miss Barbara Guthrie, was a real "mad spirit," full of the espièglerie and downright love of mischief that the part demands; the First Fairy being well sung and spoken by Miss Irene Arden.

To descend to the mortals, Mr. Douglas Alington made a dignified and manly Theseus; and Messrs. Frank Ellison and Gerald Saffery very acceptable lovers as Lysander and Demetrius respectively, though somewhat passionless at times in the scenes with the Hermia of Miss Helena Parsons, and the Helena of Miss Jessie Stanton, the latter especially well done. Miss Elizabeth Holt made the most of the meagre opportunities of Hippolyta, even if physically she hardly suggested the sword-wooed warrior-queen

Excellent portrayals of the "crew of patches, rude mechanicals," came from Mr. George Hawtrey, very finished as Quince, Mr. John Kelt as Snug, Mr. E. G. Venning as Flute, and Mr. J. M. Napper as Snout; Mr. St. Clair Bayfield displaying good versatility in combining the doddering Starveling with the very diverse rôle of Egeus; and last, but assuredly not least, Mr. Kirwan himself, burly and deep-voiced as Bottom, getting out of the part every bit of ripe and unctuous humour of which it is capable—which is saying much. Mr. Vant-Ranney made the small part of Philostrate to quite stand out, dainty little fairies from the children of the Bellew and Stock Choir completing a very efficient cast.

MR. JOHN HARRISON, who has just finished his engagement at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, and who sung the tenor part in Dr. Harriss's cantata Pan at the British Canadian Festival Concert on Wednesday evening, has been engaged for the Birmingham Festival in October.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, June 28.—This is the work of a young rising author, and, though not without traces of talent, is distinctly amateurish. A psychological problem is aimed at, but the experience necessary for such plays is lacking. The most successful features of the piece—which is termed a domestic tragedy—are the sympathetic characters and the dialogue, which is frequently superior. A few words will be sufficient to detail the plot. Frau von Sanden is the wife of a retired colonel. They have one daughter, Erna, who is the offspring of Hellmut Roland, a former lover of Frau von Sanden's—unknown, of course, to the colonel. This step from the path of virtue was taken about five-and-twenty years before we make the Sandens' acquaintance, and Nemesis is already claiming her rights. Roland, who is a widower, has one son, Walter, who has known Erne von Sanden from a child, and, unconsciously, the young people love each other, not knowing of the blood-relationship between them. The wretched mother sees trouble ahead, and marries off her daughter quickly to another man—Hans von Wernsdorf. This does not avert the catastrophe; on the contrary, it hastens it. Walter sees his sweetheart the wife of another, all the old feelings are aroused, and the lovers follow in their parents' footsteps. Then, when it is too late, they are told the terrible truth, and, according to them, there is but one way left—"blood; shame can only be atoned for by blood," they say, and a couple of revolver shots announce the end to the distracted parents. More than this, we gather from the few words Roland lets fall that he and the erring woman he still loves will follow the "children." With this massacre the play is at an end, and the curtain descends. The reception was very cordial, and the author was "called"; in response to hearty applause, too, the principal artists came before the curtain, fully meriting the honour.

AT the Schiller Theatre O, the Morwitz summer opera season is doing good business. In that crowded part of the city light opera at popular prices is very welcome, and the theatre is provided with a garden in which to spend the entr'actes. Rigoletto was put in the bill on Sunday with special success. The title-rôle was very well sung by Herr Albert Fischer, the star of the company; Fräulein Heinze as Gilda, and Herr Hocheim as the Duke, also gave admirable renderings.

FRAULEIN POSPISCHIL'S season at the Berliner is attended with a satisfactory amount of success. It is true the evenings are a little warm for the tragic plays which form the famous actress's repertory, but Fräulein Pospischil has so many devoted friends and admirers in the city where she lived so long that her audiences are fairly large. The finest specimen of her powers that we have had as yet was on Monday evening in the title-rôle of Grillparzer's tragedy Sappho, one of the best-written plays ever produced in Germany. Every phase of the character was splendidly portrayed, and Fräulein Pospischil was much and deservedly applauded. Unfortunately, she was but indifferently supported, the part of Phaon being very inadequately given by Herr Pfund.

ON Saturday an interesting experiment was tried at the Berliner, Shakespeare's Cymbeline being given by Fräulein Pospischil's company, she herself, however, not appearing in the piece. The part of Imogen was quite delightfully played by Fräulein Serda, a young actress of unusual talent, and the remainder of the cast was fairly satisfactorily sustained. It is very rarely that Cymbeline is performed, and our thanks are due to Fräulein Pospischil for reviving it.

MAXIM GORKI has just completed a new drama entitled Barbaren (barbarians). It will be produced at the Kleines Theatre early in October.

SARDOU'S new comedy, La Piste, has been translated into German, and adapted for the German stage by Dr. Oscar Blumenthal, and will be produced for the first time in Germany at the Lustspielhaus in October. The piece has also been acquired for Hamburg, Breslau, Vienna, Leipzig, and Hanover. The German title is Verwehte Spuren.

PASTORAL PLAYS AT NORTHAMPTON.

A series of pastoral plays was given on the 22nd and 23rd inst. in the magnificent grounds of St. Andrew's Hospital, Northampton, by Mr. Phillip Sanders's company of pastoral players. The performances were largely attended by the élite of the town and county, and were a great success in every respect. At a matinée on Saturday selections were given from the Merry Wives of Windsor and The Tempest. In the first-named comedy, Mr. Phillip Sanders gave a very good presentment of the amorous knight, Sir John Falstaff; Mr. R. A. Pittar was a commendable Ford; Mr. Geo. Buchanan played with due discretion as Page; and Mr. Stanley Howlett was an excellent Slender. Mistress Page and Mistress Ford were amusingly portrayed by Miss Vivienne Stuchley and Miss Violet Vorley. In The Tempest Mr. Sanders appeared as Caliban, bringing out strongly the fiendish malignity of the character. Mr. B. A. Pittar was an impressive and dignified Prospero, full of affection for his daughter; Miranda was sweetly presented by Miss Vivienne Stuchley, and ably wooed by Mr. Stanley Howlett as Ferdinand. Mr. Geo. Buchanan played with discretion the drunken butler Stephano; and Mr. John Cairns was also good as Trinculo. Miss Violet Vorley endowed the part of Ariel with lightness, refinement, and grace. The Tempest selection was repeated at the evening performances, where it gained in effect from the limelight and coloured lamps, preceded by selections from The Taming of the Shrew. As Petrucio Mr. Sanders was seen at his best. He is well suited to the part, and played it with discretionary power and finish. Miss Violet Vorley gave a spirited and charming presentment of Katharina; Mr. B. A. Pittar was an effective Biondello; Mr. Geo. Buchanan was full of humour as Grumio; Mr. John Cairns was good as Baptiste; Mr. Stanley Howlett was highly satisfactory as Hortensio; and Miss Violet Vorley made a charming Bianca.

"THE KINGDOM," the new composition by Sir Edward Elgar, to be produced at the Birmingham Festival, will be performed for the first time in London by the Alexandra Palace Choral and Orchestral Society, under the direction of Mr. Allen Gill, on November 17. The programme will also include Bach's Mass in B minor, Handel's Messiah, Mendelssohn's Elijah, Elgar's Dream of Gerontius, Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's Hiawatha, Sullivan's Golden Legend, and Gounod's Faust.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, June 28.—The truth of the remark so frequently made that if a Parisian is far ahead of the provincial, as regards esprit, the latter possesses far more common sense, and does not indulge in such hysterical outbreaks of enthusiasm, has been found out by Mlle. Merelli to her cost. It will be remembered that this young lady was the mistress of an absconding bank clerk, with whom she was arrested in Bahia. Acquitted by a tender-hearted jury, Paris went so frantic over her that, although she has hardly any talent, an enterprising manager paid her £20 per night to appear at his music-hall. Everybody wanted to see her, and the music hall's speculation turned out very well. Unfortunately, Mlle. Merelli mistook all this excitement for genuine admiration for her artistic qualities, and, thirsting after fame, resolved to turn her back on music halls and try the legitimate stage. She found an impresario foolish enough to engage her as a "star" to play the leading part in Le Premier Mars de France, and they started on tour. Mlle. Merelli was not long in doubt. The first night she made her appearance there was a kind of hostile demonstration, followed a few days later by absolute indifference. The provincials wanted neither to see nor to hear her; and the company has now broken up. Parisians receive sometimes some wise lessons from the provincials—whom they generally turn into ridicule—but they never profit by them.

M. ALBERT GUENAN is putting the finishing touches to Elle et Eux, a new comedy in three acts, to be brought out at the Gymnase in the course of next season.

AT the Nouveautés the first novelty will be a play by MM. Maurice Hennequin and Pierre Véber, wherein M. Noblet will interpret the principal rôle. M. Micheau is also thinking of giving us a revival of Florette et Patapan.

"LE PRETEXTE" is the title of a new play by M. Daniel Riche, intended for the Comédie Française.

THE Palais Royal has been let during the summer months to M. Fursy, who will inaugurate the hot season on July 1 with La Dame du 23, the well-known farce by MM. Paul Gavault and Baurgain. With the thermometer at 95deg. in the shade this seems rather a rash venture, but no matter how high the temperature, there are always amateurs for theatres in Paris.

SISOWATH, King of Cambodia, is with us at present. His sixty-nine dancers have remained in Marseilles, but by Royal command these young ladies will come to Paris and exhibit themselves in the Trocadero. They have already appeared in public in Marseilles, and we are told that the people were somewhat taken aback by the slow movements and the character of these dances. The truth is that, with all respect to his dusky Majesty, King Sisowath, that monarch is wrong in allowing these ladies to exhibit themselves in public. These dances are absolutely sacred, and the young ladies perform several of them before going to rest, in lieu of prayers. These girls are the daughters of high State officials, and I know for a fact that among the King's followers there is dissatisfaction at his sanctioning these public performances. As one of them put it very plainly: "The King, to please the French, may act the part of balletmaster, but it will give strangers a poor idea of our respect for our religion. Would this same stranger like to see some of his religious ceremonies performed in a show before a gaping crowd?" Thus spoke a dark-skinned old gentleman, expressing himself in excellent French; and he is not far from the truth.

A CONDUCTOR'S CLAIM.

A case of interest to theatrical managers and theatre-goers was tried by a jury on Monday, in Judge Woodfall's court as Westminster, when Mr. Paul Graener, formerly the conductor of the orchestra at the Haymarket Theatre, sued Mr. Frederick Harrison, lessee of the theatre, for £100 damages for breach of contract or for wrongful dismissal.

Plaintiff's case was that for eight years past he had occupied the position of conductor of the orchestra at the Haymarket, and for some time past his salary was 10 guineas a week. On Friday evening, April 27, during Mr. Harrison's absence from London, two gentlemen in the stalls commenced an extraordinary system of annoyance to the plaintiff, throwing pellets of silver paper at him and other members of the orchestra, and tickling the back of plaintiff's neck with a programme. Plaintiff turned round and said to these gentlemen, "If I had you outside I would give you a good hiding." He afterwards proceeded to "the treasury" to draw salaries, and there told Mr. Watson, the acting-manager, what had happened. He added that he proposed to conduct the "march out," which, as a rule, he did not do, and, if the annoyance was repeated, he said he was quite capable of jumping over the barrier and giving the gentlemen a good hiding. Mr. Watson said, "Nonsense," but, as plaintiff appeared to be serious, he countermanded the "march out" altogether. On Monday plaintiff received a letter from Mr. Watson stating, in view of the incident of Friday night, he must offer the plaintiff one of three alternatives: Either his immediate resignation, or to take a holiday until Mr. Harrison returned. If he would accept neither of these, Mr. Watson said he would suspend him until Mr. Harrison's return. Plaintiff refused to do anything, and was forthwith suspended. Upon Mr. Harrison's return, plaintiff had an interview with him; but nothing came of it, and plaintiff brought this action.

Mr. Watson, in his evidence, said it never occurred to him that anybody in the plaintiff's position could seriously think of carrying out his threat, but he could not take the risk of a member of the staff assaulting a member of the audience, and therefore ordered the "march out" to be dispensed with. Plaintiff did not ask him to have the annoyance stopped. He only came to witness with his threat.

Mr. Frederick Harrison, lessee of the Haymarket Theatre, said he thoroughly approved of Mr. Watson's action. If the plaintiff had carried out his threat, a riot might have occurred, and it would have been most damaging to the interests of the theatre.

In stating the law upon the case, Judge Woodfall said that if the plaintiff did anything that was incompatible with the due discharge of his duties to his master, Mr. Watson, acting for the defendant, had a right to dismiss him. If he had clambered over the orchestra and approached these gentlemen, it would have been an outrageous thing, and if there was any serious prospect of his doing so it was only right that he should be prevented.

The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff for £100, with costs.

Mr. Walter Lloyd appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. R. J. Willis for the defendant.

MR. BANNISTER HOWARD has selected a beautiful spot in the North Tower Gardens at the Crystal Palace for his Café Chantant, where performances are now given twice daily. Nothing is more delightful than to sit there of an afternoon or evening with a gentle breeze blowing off the country, and listening to a really good entertainment, such as is now provided. During the week the programme has included Sylvia Spears, comedienne and dancer; Eugene and Willis, musical and acrobatic clowns; Queenie Laurence, burlesque actress and vocalist; Harold Hughman, mimic; and Hallam and Stanton, in a particularly entertaining little comedy, called A Broken Journey.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MISS ELLEN TERRY'S visit to her native city takes place to-day. Leaving Euston at 10.15, and arriving at Coventry before one o'clock, the famous actress will proceed at once to the new theatre, and lay a commemorative tablet. Places of interest in the city, including Market-street, in which Miss Terry was born, will then be visited by means of the motor-car, after which luncheon will be taken at St. Mary's Hall, where the Mayor and Corporation and Miss Terry's personal friends will be among the guests. In the afternoon the Mayor and Mayoress will hold a reception, and an illuminated address of welcome will be presented to Miss Terry.

MR. J. L. TOOLE'S condition has undergone but little change in the course of the week, restless nights having given place to days during which the sufferer has experienced relief. The patient had a fairly comfortable day on Thursday, and in the evening no alteration was reported. On Sunday Sir Francis and Lady Burnand were among the callers.

THE Drury-lane pantomime this year is to be Sinbad, a subject which has not been treated at the National Theatre since 1882. Mr. Arthur Collins and Mr. J. Hickory Wood will be responsible for the "book," the story of which lends itself to scenic display, of which Mr. Collins may well be trusted to take full advantage. The fun and frolic of the annual is also secure, many of last year's favourites being in the cast, including Mr. Harry Fragson and Miss May de Sousa, whose success in the pantomime was afterwards continued in Castles in Spain at the Royalty and Terry's. Mr. Harry Randall will again have a large share in the comic episodes, and other important engagements are in the making.

THE distressful case of the Musical Copyright Bill is humorously treated in a cartoon in yesterday's issue of the Tribune. Mr. T. P. O'Connor, seated at a piano, is conducting a young lady, representing the Bill, through the intricacies of the committee stage, the harmonies of which are shattered by a vigorous blast of opposition from a trombone blown by Mr. Caldwell, who stands outside the window in the character of a street musician.

"ALADDIN IN LONDON" is the title that Mr. George Edwardes might well bestow on his new production, which will succeed The Spring Chicken at the Gaiety in September. The action of the play, which has been written by James T. Tanner and W. H. Risque, with music by Ivan Caryll and Lionel Monckton, is laid in the Great Metropolis, wherein the hero of the famous story disports himself in modern attire. An idealised view of London will be furnished, and amazing changes in its constitution will be wrought. Miss Gertie Millar will be seen as Aladdin, and Miss May de Sousa will lend her charming personality to the production in the part of a Princess. Mr. Edmund Payne will have a character in which his drollery will take a new turn; Mr. George Grossmith, jun., will be fitted with a rôle suited to his versatile powers; and Miss Connie Ediss will appear as the Slave of the Lamp.

MR. CHARLES MCLELLAN, the author of The Belle of New York and Leah Kleschna, is at work on the book and lyrics of a new musical play for Mr. Charles Frohman to be called Nelly Neil. The music is to flow from the tuneful pen of Mr. Ivan Caryll, who is similarly interested in the impending Gaiety production. The first act of the novelty of which Mr. Frohman will have both the English and American rights, is already finished, and its introduction to the stage may be looked for in the winter.

MEMBERS and supporters of the British Empire Shakespeare Society will muster in force on Monday afternoon at the Garrick Theatre, when the Bishop of Ripon gives his address on Shakespeare's plays. Among the distinguished gathering will be Her Highness Princess Louise Augusta of Schleswig-Holstein, the Austrian Ambassador, the Marquess of Ripon, Lady Bancroft, Lady Dorothy Neville, Miss Marion Terry, Miss Genevieve Ward, Archdeacon Sinclair, Archdeacon Wilberforce, Mr. Hamilton Aidé, Sir Theodore Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Harvey, Mr. Herman Vezin, Mrs. George Alexander, Mr. Alan Mackinnon, Miss Gertrude Elliott, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, and Mr. Lewis Waller.

MR. E. S. WILLARD'S company for next season is entirely made up, so that requests for engagements will be fruitless. So many applications have been received by Mr. Willard that he is unable to answer all, and it is hoped that this intimation will be accepted in reply, and thus acquit him of any discourtesy.

"THE PRINCE CHAP" will make his début at the Criterion on Monday, July 16. The heroine, who in the course of the play grows up from childhood to womanhood, will be played, in the first act, by Miss Betty Green, in the second by Miss Geraldine Wilson, and in the third by Miss Janet Alexander. The cast will also include Mr. H. R. Roberts, Mr. George Shelton, Mr. Sam Sothern, Mr. Frank Collins, Mr. George Schäfer, Miss Hilda Trevelyan, Miss A. E. Greenaway, Miss Evelyn Weedon, and Miss Lilias Waldegrave.

MR. G. P. HUNTLEY is about to tour under the auspices of Charles Macdona with the Apollo production of Mr. Popple, of Ippleton. Mr. Huntley will be seen in his original character, and Miss Millie Legarde has also been specially engaged. The largest cities in the provinces will be visited, but only four suburban theatres, embracing those at North, South, East, and West, will share in the good fortune of a visit from the popular comedian. While in Dublin it is Mr. Huntley's intention to enter one of his horses for a local event of some importance.

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL closed the Criterion Theatre on Saturday night, after five performances of the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Lyttelton's play, The Macleans of Bairness. On the same evening, Castles in Spain, at Terry's, came to an end. Mr. Harry Fragson will remove a little further up the Strand, having been engaged to appear shortly at the Tivoli, thus returning to the class of entertainment in which he gained his wide renown in Paris.

MR. FORBES ROBERTSON will make Bernard Shaw's play Cæsar and Cleopatra a feature of his American tour, which starts at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, on Oct. 29. The production, which is to have the personal supervision of the author, is to be of the most elaborate description. The company, which will be composed entirely of English artists, will include Miss Gertrude Elliott.

THE sixth annual Conference of the Actors' Church Union, the president of which is the Bishop of Southwark, will be held at Bishop's House, Kennington Park, on Tuesday, July 10, at 2.30, when the speakers will be Mr. Martin Harvey and the Rev. J. W. S. J. Danbury. Mrs. Talbot will be "at home" in the garden from four to six o'clock.

MR. OTHO STUART will produce Tristram and Iseult, the new play by Comyns Carr, early in September. During the short holiday that Miss Lily Brayton and Mr. Oscar Asche are presently to take, the Adelphi Theatre will be closed. In the new piece Mr. Matheson Lang will appear as Tristram, and the cast will also include Miss Hutin Britton and Miss Gertrude Scott.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE, feeling the need of a rest after an exceptionally busy season, will suspend the run of Colonel Newcome on Saturday next. This withdrawal will allow Mr. Tree to devote attention to the rehearsals of A Winter's Tale, which will be produced with Miss Ellen Terry as Hermione on Sept. 1. Two days later the eminent actor will start at Blackpool an eight weeks' tour with Colonel Newcome, The Man Who Was, and Business is Business. Colonel Newcome will be revived at His Majesty's at the earliest date possible.

"A WASTE OF TIME," the novel concoction produced at Brighton last week by the touring company of West End players, will have its London representation at the Coronet Theatre on Monday, when it will follow Captain Robert Marshall's comedy, His Excellency the Governor. The afterpiece is sustained by Mr. H. Marsh Allen, Mr. James Blakeley, Mr. Lionel Mackinder, Mr. Lennox Pawle, Mr. Littledale Power, and Mr. Loring Fernie, who each in turn contribute song, dance, or recitation, according to the class of work with which their names have long been associated.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN is this week commencing his annual season of Pastoral Plays. Most of the important towns in the South of England are booked, and Mr. Norman intends introducing several novelties in the shape of "Pastorals." He has arranged with Miss Beatrice Wilson to give her charming performance of Rosalind whenever As You Like It is produced.

A SMALL fair-haired girl of eight summers, accompanied by her father, applied, at the Marlborough-street Police Court on Thursday, for a licence to enable her to perform at a "charity concert" at Queen's Hall on the afternoon of July 21. It was explained that the concert was in aid of various hospital funds. The girl was very fond of the violin, and her greatest ambition was to play in public. Mr. Plowden said he did not think it necessary to ask for a licence for anything that takes place in the afternoon. "It is done in a noble cause," added the magistrate; "so fiddle away by all means."

MR. CLARENCE SOUNES will close the Grand Theatre, Woolwich, after this week for a short summer vacation, re-opening August Bank Holiday with Brigadier Gerard, by arrangement with Mr. Lewis Waller. Mr. Sounes will continue to present dramatic programmes at the New Prince's Theatre, Poplar, all through July. This theatre, in spite of the weather, is doing good business, a proof that it fulfils a long-felt want in the East End districts it caters for. The Theatre Royal, Aldershot, another of Mr. Sounes' enterprises, will also keep open during the summer.

A NEW one-act play by Mr. Alfred Sutro will figure in the programme of an entertainment which will take place at the Botanical Gardens on July 10, in aid of the promotion expenses of a guild called the Legion of Frontiersmen. Miss Lena Ashwell, Miss Nancy Price, and Miss Constance Collier have promised to recite, and the play scene from A Midsummer Night's Dream will be performed by a company of popular artists. The programme will be under the direction of Mr. Norman McKinnel.

MR. CHARLES FROHMAN is engaging a strong company of English and American actors to produce The Hypocrites, the new play, in four acts, by Henry Arthur Jones, at the Hudson Theatre, New York, in the autumn. The scene of the play is laid in the small southern English town of Weybury, near the cathedral city of Gilminster, and the time of the action is an autumn in the present decade. The dramatis personæ number fourteen, and form a little coterie of English county society. Mr. Jones will sail for New York next month to superintend the production. Mr. J. H. Barnes will be in the cast.

MR. T. D. FRAWLEY, one of the most enterprising of the young managers in America, is taking a stock company for the summer to the West. He begins at Seattle, and goes on to San Francisco, where a tent, which will hold 2,000 people, has been erected for him. Mr. Frawley's booking has already been enormous in San Francisco, as the people there wish their minds to be diverted from their terrible memories. Mr. Frawley will present a play written by Mrs. T. P. O'Connor, founded upon one of the most famous lawsuits that were ever tried in America—the play in brief is whether a girl is black and a slave, or white and free. This play will be produced for the first time in true showman's manner in a tent.

MISS RAY ROCKMAN, the American actress, was married last week to Mr. Frank Braham. After the ceremony a reception was held by Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Ford at their residence, 18, Old Queen-street. There were about 126 guests, including Sir Simeon and Lady Stuart, Sir Harry and Lady Johnston, the Hon. Arthur and Mrs. Ponsonby, Mr. and Mrs. Moberley Bell, Mrs. Meynell and her daughters, Mrs. W. K. Clifford, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hewlett, Mrs. J. M. Barrie, Mr. Humphry Ward, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mills, Mrs. Alfred Sutro, Miss Edith Craig, Mr. Bram Stoker, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred East, and Mr. Arthur Hutchinson. Mr. and Mrs. Braham left for a honeymoon in Switzerland.

DURING his three years as manager of the Grand Theatre, Southampton, Mr. Sydney Paxton (who is severing his connection therefrom) has been thanked and complimented by Ellen Terry, Sarah Bernhardt, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Olga Nethersole, Messrs. Charles Manners, F. R. Benson, Henry Jalland, Wentworth Croke, W. W. Kelly, Alfred Smyth-Piggott, Bram Stoker, H. J. Loveday, and many others.

THE late Sir Henry Irving, in his farewell speech at Southampton, said:—"I would also like to thank a very old and valued friend of mine, the manager of this theatre, Mr. Sydney Paxton. I have known him for many years and I knew his father before him. He came to me as a little bit of a boy, and I told him if he wanted to be an actor he must soon make a start and try. He made a start and became an actor, and got on very well, and eventually became the manager of this theatre, and I congratulate you on having so conscientious a manager as you have in him. Sydney Paxton is a man who wants to make the theatre a place of recreation for high-minded and intelligent people, and I think he will succeed." Mr. Paxton's former managers have included Mr. J. L. Toole ("Walker, London"); Mr. W. S. Penley, 1894-1897 (Globe Theatre); Mr. George Grossmith and Mr. Weedon Grossmith (Royalty and Avenue Theatres and America); Mr. Martin Harvey (Lyceum and Prince of Wales Theatres); Mr. Edward Compton, 1885-1892 (Compton Comedy Company); Mr. Harry Paulton, Miss Kate Santley, Messrs. A. and S. Gatti, and Mr. D'Oyly Carte.

MISS ST. DENIS appeared on Tuesday night before Consuelo Duchess of Manchester and her guests at Grosvenor-square, when the company included the American Ambassador, Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, the Duke of Devonshire, and many other notabilities.

DURING the absence of Miss Jane May from the cast of The Belle of Mayfair at the Vaudeville, the part of Lady Violet Gussop was most creditably sustained by Miss Dora Denton, who betrayed such distinct ability in what we understand is her initial effort as to give promise of a successful career.

MR. CHARLES FROHMAN was the recipient on the night of the 21st inst., at the Garrick Club, of a remarkable tribute. More than sixty authors, playwrights, and actors entertained him at a supper as an expression of esteem for what Mr. Frohman had done for the stage, for the actor, and for dramatic literature Among those present were Mr. J. M. Barrie, Mr. Arthur W. Pinero, Captain Robert Marshall, Mr. Comyns Carr, Mr. Alfred Sutro, Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. John Hare, Mr. Seymour Hicks, Mr. Dion Boucicault, Mr. Eric Lewis, Mr. Louis N. Parker, Mr. Gerald Du Maurier, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, Mr. Sam Sothern, Mr. Cyril Maude, and Mr. E. A. Mason. There were no speeches.

THE usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday last. There were present Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Mesdames Carlotta Addison, Beatrice Lamb, Kate Phillips, and Saba Raleigh, and Messrs. Cecil Barth, Clarence Blakiston, Burton Cooke, C. Hayden Coffin, F. Cremlin, Quinton McPherson, M. R. Morand, Brandon Thomas, Fredk. Volpe, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). The hon. solicitors reported progress in several matters, and stated that they had advised different members upon points submitted. They were requested to confer with certain members as to claims against managers.

THE question of augmenting the band of "missioners" was again under consideration, and the secretary was directed to post a notice in the general offices to the effect that the meeting of the Council on Thursday last, to which the missioners were invited, would be open to all the members of the Association who were interested in the work of that body, and to invite them to offer their services to act in co-operation with those already appointed. A case of alleged bogus management was under consideration, and the secretary received instructions to endeavour to establish the identification of the person implicated. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received. Dr. Campbell Boyd, of 13, Sloane-court, S.W., was appointed an hon. medical officer in the place of Dr. George A. Gunton, who had given up practice at that place, and gone into the country. May Fairclough, Ethel Dunbar, Frank Cave, Adelaide Weston, and H. Manfred Russell were nominated for election. The suggestion book was considered, and entries made.

MR. LOUIS BRADFIELD while in Australia ten years ago with the Gaiety company was able to render an important service to a gentleman of enormous wealth, whose gratitude was such that he immediately, it is said, made a will in Mr. Bradfield's favour by which the actor would benefit to the extent of over half-a-million. Difficulties have, however, arisen, and Mr. Bradfield's legal representatives in Australia are trying to bring about a satisfactory settlement.

THE Duke of Marlborough occupied the chair at the one hundred and sixty-eighth anniversary festival dinner of the Royal Society of Musicians, held on Thursday at the Gaiety Restaurant. The chairman said that perhaps at some future date the State would be able to recognise music in some practical form, but until that was done they must rely upon voluntary effort. He could not conceive an object more worthy of support than that of the Society. He would be very glad if he could lend his house in London at any time during the next six or eight months for the giving of a concert in aid of the funds of this Society. Subscriptions amounting to upwards of £1,200 were announced by Dr. W. H. Cummings (hon. treasurer), and also a legacy of £550 from Mrs. Elizabeth Mounsey. The subscriptions included donations of ten guineas from the King and five guineas from the Queen.

THE Royalty season of French plays will be continued in turn during July by the comedians, M. Felix Huguenet, M. Galipaux, and Mlle. Marthe Regnier. The end of the season will be marked by an interesting event in the last appearance on the stage of M. Antoine, the founder of the Théâtre Antoine, who has just been appointed to the control of the Odéon, one of the State-subsidised theatres of Paris.

MR. WALTER MCEWEN will shortly produce a new historical and romantic opera, entitled The Cornish Girl, written by E. C. Arden, with music by Clement Locknane and Jullien H. Wilson. The play is founded on fact, and deals with the adventures of a Cornish girl who is wooed by a London merchant, and eventually becomes Lady Mayoress. The scenes are laid in Cornwall and old London in the time of the Tudors. Mr. McEwen is engaging a strong company, with full chorus, quartettes, and dances, and the scenery and costumes will be a special feature of the production.

MISS FLORENCE GLOSSOP-HARRIS (daughter of the late Sir Augustus Harris) and Mr. Frank Cellier, jun. (son of the eminent musician, so long associated with the Savoy Theatre), are completing arrangements to tour a répertoire of Shakespearean and other plays, commencing at Christmas. The dresses are being specially designed, great care being taken to secure accuracy of detail, and new scenery and effects will make each production as complete as possible. The plays will be produced by Mr. Percy H. Vernon.

MRS. HARRY K. THAW, the wife of the perpetrator of the recent crime in Madison-square Theatre, was one of the flower girls in the American production of Florodora. It is curious that of the original Florodora girls in the New York production of Mr. Leslie Stuart's work, there is not one who has not achieved fame or had notoriety thrust upon her. Nan Patterson, it will be remembered, was a member of the Florodora company. All the Sextet girls, as Mr. Leslie Stuart recalls, married millionaires, and Miss Frances Belmont (née Donnelly), who was one of the celebrated "Sextet," married Lord Ashburton.

LADY ASHBURTON, who was admitted to be one of the prettiest girls on the American stage, began her career at the early age of sixteen at the Victoria Theatre, New York, as one of a chorus of charwomen, and after appearing in Mr. Leslie Stuart's musical comedy and in The Toreador, joined Mr. Charles Hawtrey's company, in which she rose to leading parts in A Message from Mars and other plays. She left the stage at the end of 1904, and took up her residence in Paris, where, in February last, she became the wife of Lord Ashburton, who is the holder of the oldest of the four peerages belonging to the Baring family.

MR. CHARLES MANNERS has made a generous offer to a musical enthusiast, who has under consideration the production of an opera by Dr. Arne. "I will gladly," says Mr. Manners, "lend scenery, costumes, and principal singers, free of charge, as, naturally, I am deeply interested in any opera in English, but more so when it is an English opera. Last week a man in Kissingen said English people who did not like foreign composed operas in English reminded him of the Frenchman who would not eat roast beef because it was on the menu in French. Granted, Tannhäuser (from the very high artistic point of view) does not sound quite so well in English as in German, is but this one little speck going to stop opera in our country and the thousand glorious probabilities that would come in its train?"

MISS KATE PARRY has been engaged by Mr. Chas. Macdona for Mr. Popple for the autumn.

MME. SARAH BERNHARDT, having completed the most eventful and profitable tour of America that any foreign artist has ever made, has returned to her native land, arriving at Havre at midnight on the 22nd inst. She gave three farewell performances at the Lyric Theatre, New York, during her last week in that city, appearing in Hamlet, La Sorcière, L'Aiglon, and Frou-Frou. The theatre was crowded to the doors at each performance, and Mme. Bernhardt received an ovation. During her long tour she played in tents, skating rinks, barns, town halls, and open-air theatres. In California she acted on a stage that had been "twisted" by the earthquake, but nothing disturbed her equilibrium in the least. Acording to the newspapers, Mme. Bernhardt's share of the proceeds of this remarkable tour amounted to something like $250,000.

WE regret to record the death at Stratford-on-Avon of Mr. A. H. Wall, for several years librarian of the Shakespeare Memorial, and at one time an actor, in which capacity he played with Macready. He also figured in his career as author, miniature painter, dramatist, novelist, and editor of the Ladies' Pictorial and other illustrated journals. He was a Shakespearean scholar of no little eminence, and was famed for acts of benevolence.

JUDGMENT in the action in which the late SIR HENRY IRVING appeared as a witness shortly before his death was delivered by the Lords of the First Division of the Court of Session at Edinburgh on the 22nd inst., when the former ruling was reversed. The action was brought by Mr. William Crooke, photographer, Edinburgh, against the Society Pictorial Publishing Company, Ltd., for £2,000 damages for breach of the Copyright Act in publishing a photograph of Sir Henry Irving, the copyright of which belonged to Crooke. In the Lower Court Lord Ardwall dismissed the action, but the First Division reversed the judgment. The Lord President said Sir Henry Irving went to be photographed for his friend, Mr. Shorter. Mr. Shorter had the selection of two photographs, and paid 5 guineas for the reproduction. Mr. Crooke had the copyright of the one photograph, and he awarded him £5 damages. The other judges concurred.

AN open-air performance of A Midsummer Night's Dream was given by the Shakespeare Reading Society in the grounds of Cleve Hall, Champion Hill, on Saturday afternoon. A large audience, drawn from the neighbouring districts of Dulwich and Camberwell, was attracted, and the performance of Shakespeare's comedy was greatly admired.

MR. CHARLES HANNAN'S version of The Vicar of Wakefield, entitled Sweet Olivia, will again form a feature of Mr. Hoggan Armadale's costume répertoire, with which, after a year's vacation, he goes on the road next month. Mr. Armadale has previously played Sweet Olivia weekly in his répertoire for over two years.

THE Australian rights of Messrs. Ernest Martin and Fewlass Llewellyn's successful play The Coal King have been secured by Mr. Chas. Holloway, and the piece will be toured by him this year. Two companies of the play are going on tour this autumn in England.

THE Theatre Royal, Macclesfield, closed its doors on Saturday last for the summer vacation, and will re-open again on August Bank Holiday next During the interval a scheme of painting and redecorating is to be carried out. New, large mirrors are to be placed around the side walls, and many comforts will be added. The principal feature, however, will be the lighting of the house by electricity. This will be, indeed, a great improvement, and one that is badly needed. Mr. W. K. Gatley, the proprietor and manager, will supply his own plant.

THE R.M.S. Oroya will arrive at Tilbury Dock to-day with Messrs. J. J. Dallas, Clyde Meynell Wilde, and Mallalieu on board, returning from Australia after their brilliantly-successful tour with The J.P., There and Back, &c., which turned out to be one of the most successful tours of farcical comedy made for many years. Mr. Clyde Meynell who has secured the Australian rights of The Little Stranger, intends producing that eccentric farcical comedy at Melbourne about the time that the Cup is run for.

"THE JUNGLE," Mr. Upton Sinclair's novel, which revealed the horrors of the Chicago packing-houses is being dramatised for production in New York.

AT the Grand, Newcastle, on Saturday, Mr. T Arthur Jones will conclude his present tour of Mr W. A. Brabner's play, Life's Sweetest Sins, and incidentally nearly 700 performances. After a short vacation the tour, which is booked up well into 1907, will be resumed at Seaham Harbour.

MR. CHARLES CAREY is back in town after a brief holiday, during which he has motored from Tunbridge Wells to North Wales and back, breaking his journey at several places en route. On the return Mr. Carey passed through Warwick, where he witnessed the dress rehearsal of Mr. Louis Parker's magnificent pageant on the banks of the Avon, and we should not be surprised to hear of another pageant next year, and that at Tunbridge Wells.

"AFTER THE BALL," No. 1 company, sets forth on an eighteen weeks' tour early in August, visiting the principal Northern cities, including Edinburgh and Glasgow. The musical comedy will be played in two acts instead of three. An exceptionally strong cast has been secured, and new scenery and dresses are being prepared at the Opera House, Tunbridge Wells.

MR. AUGUSTIN SYMONDS, who has made a conspicuous success in the comedy part in Cheer, Boys, Cheer, at the Kennington and Camden Theatres, is engaged by Mr. Chas. Macdona to support Mr. G. P. Huntley in Mr. Popple, for the autumn.

MR. CHARLES FROHMAN has arranged with Miss Ruth St. Denis, the mystic dancer, to begin a series of periodical matinées at the Aldwych Theatre on Thursday next. Miss St. Denis will appear in East Indian dances, entitled "The Spirit of Incense," "The Cobra" (a study of Indian street life), and "Radha," a Hindoo temple dance.

THE Vienna Philharmonic Society's concert at Queen's Hall on Tuesday was a great success The fine tone, unanimity of attack, and beauties of expression secured by the players won great admiration, which was shown in constant applause.

MISS FLORENCE HAYDON having resigned the part of Mrs. Clandon in You Never Can Tell, by Bernard Shaw, it will be played by Miss Henrietta Watson at the Court Theatre on Monday, July 9 Miss Haydon prefers not to be in You Never Can Tell, and will come back to the Court Theatre for the new play by St. John Hankin, entitled The Charity that Began at Home, in which there is a very good part for her, and later on will play her original part of Mrs. Whitefield in Man and Superman.

WE are sorry to record the death of Mrs. Feaver Clarke, wife of Mr. R. Feaver Clarke, the popular and highly respected secretary of the New Public Hall and Theatre, Gravesend. Mrs. Clarke, like her husband, and identified herself with much good work in the town, and the sympathies of all will be with her husband in his bereavement.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD has arranged for the Ben Greet Company to open a two weeks' season of pastoral plays at the Crystal Palace on Monday, July 9. A Midsummer Night's Dream will be given every evening at 8.30, except Thursday and Saturday, when it will start at 7.15, and be over in time for the fireworks. There will be special matinées on Wednesday, July 11 and 18, of The Comedy of Errors, on Saturday, July 14, of Twelfth Night, and on Saturday, July 21, of A Midsummer Night's Dream. The spot chosen for these pastoral plays adjoins the panorama, and is within one minute of the Low-Level Station. When wet the performance will take place in the theatre.

MISS CELESTINE BERTRAM, who is playing Rosie Platt in The New Clown, thus relates her experience of the earthquake which took place at Swansea on Wednesday: "My brother and I had just sat down to breakfast when suddenly there was a terrific explosion. The walls on either side of us tottered; everything on the table was upset, pictures being shaken out of their frames, and the plaster torn from the ceiling. We rushed to the kitchen, thinking the explosion must have emanated from there, when we were met by the landlady, pale and frightened. We then went into the street, where people were rushing, shrieking in every direction, and the ground was strewn with bricks and chimney-pots which had been wrenched off by the shock. Trafalgar-terrace, overlooking the sea, seems to have felt the effects worse than higher in the town, the fact being probably accounted for by its close proximity to the Mumbles."

ON the arrival of the Glasgow night mail at Stafford early on Sunday morning the door of a second-class compartment was found open. A large amount of luggage was scattered about, but there was no one to claim it. A light engine was sent down the line to search, and three miles from Wolverhampton the men came across a young lady terribly mutilated. She proved to be Miss Dot Stephens, who had fulfilled an engagement on Saturday night at Her Majesty's, Walsall, and was travelling to Glasgow to appear there on Monday at the Empire. She was conveyed to Wolverhampton General Hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate one foot and part of the other.

WE deeply regret to realise that the sad accident has cut short Miss Stephens's bright career on the stage at the early age of twenty-two. She first appeared with Mr. Bannister Howard as the Salvation Army lass in The Belle of New York, remaining with the company three years. She then joined Mr. George Dance for the part of Mrs. Pineapple in A Chinese Honeymoon, and afterwards Mr. C. P. Levilly, understudying Miss Stella Gastelle as Alesia in La Poupée, a part she subsequently played, and was to resume in the autumn in Mr. Herbert Ralland's company, lately on tour. Miss Stephens has been the sole support of a widowed mother.

"OUT WEST," an admirable one-act tragedy of Western life, founded by Mr. A. Chance on a story of Bret Harte's, was a feature of the programme at Lady Maud Wilbraham's matinée at the Scala on Tuesday. The chief part is that of Salomy Jane, a fine-spirited creature who shelters her lover, who is a horse thief. In the end she is shot by another man who has mistaken her motives. Miss Granville gave a finished and artistic performance of Salomy Jane; and Mr. Matheson Lang and Mr. Hubert Carter rendered able support.

MR. FRANK LINDO, who is running a summer season at the Victoria Theatre, Broughton, produced on Monday last The Merchant of Venice, which proved so successful that it will be kept in the bill for one week longer. Compliments from all sources have been paid to Mr. Lindo as Shylock and Miss Marion Wakeford as Portia, and they are supported by a carefully selected company.

IN the Court of Bankruptcy on Thursday the affairs of C. W. Clifford Rean, described as of the Theatre Royal, Wexford, were discussed before the Official Receiver. The debtor has been connected with the stage since 1893, and six years later inherited about £900, which, together with a borrowed sum of £500, he lost in ventures for the production of plays. The liabilities were estimated at £900, the assets including the copyright of two plays. The meeting was adjourned for a week, with a view to the appointment of a trustee.

THE Hon. George Coppin, the Father of the English-speaking Stage, who recently died in Melbourne in his eighty-eighth year, left an estate valued at £10,232 10s. 4d. After making provision for his widow and family, he bequeathed 1,000 shares in the Melbourne Theatre Royal—the Australian Drury Lane—of which he was managing director, to augment the endowment fund of the benevolent homes for old Colonists and aged actors and actresses, which he was mainly instrumental in establishing in one of the prettiest spots near Melbourne.

AFTER a very long illness, which he bore with gentle resignation, Mr. Sidney Alport passed away at his sister's residence on Wednesday. He was a little over fifty-nine years of age, and in the palmy days of Messrs. David James and Thomas Thorne, at the Vaudeville Theatre, was one of the best-known and most popular theatrical managers of London. Before his engagement at the Vaudeville he was for some years secretary and treasurer at the Alhambra, in which position he was succeeded in January, 1882, by Mr James Howell of the Tivoli. He was a most patient sufferer, and endeared himself to all by his sweetness of disposition. He died at the house of his sister in Kensington, and was lovingly cared for until the end came. He is to be interred to-day in Tooting Cemetery.

MISS NAOMI ADA NEILSON is anxious that her correspondents should note that she is no longer resident at 74, Marlborough Flats, Walton-street, Chelsea. Notwithstanding the necessary notification to the Post Office authorities some twelve months ago, and the customary card in our advertisement columns, communications continue to be sent to the old address, with the serious result that a few days ago the lady lost an important engagement, the offer having been returned to the sender through the channel of the dead-letter office. Miss Neilson's address appears under her advertisement card in our columns.

ON Thursday evening, at the Haymarket, the part of Mr. Pomfrey in The Man from Blankley's was successfully played, in the absence of Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald, by Mr. Victor H. Leslie.

PHELPS the actor was invariably to be found during the theatrical vacation for many successive years at his favourite haunt, the Lion Hotel, at Farningham, where he stayed for weeks together to enjoy the pleasure of trout fishing in the river Darent, which runs in front of the gardens of the old hostelry. The farmers in the neighbourhood never suspected that a visitor who conversed with them so freely about their crops was at the same time busy studying a part in a Shakespearean play, and it is related that a Kentish yeoman, bringing his family to town for the purpose of seeing The Doge of Venice at Drury-lane, recognised a familiar voice and manner in the prominent actor, and astonished the audience in the midst of the play by involuntarily exclaiming, "Blest if the Dodge isn't the old Farningham fisherman!"

GARRICK THEATRE MATINEE.

At a special matinée at the Garrick Theatre, on Monday, June 25, was produced a play in one act by Cosmo Hamilton, entitled

"GRAN'FATHER COQUESNE."

Gran'father Coquesne.....MR. C. AUBREY SMITH
Trooper Hans Dorp ....MR. PHILIP CUNINGHAM
Desiré .....MASTER PHILIP TONGE
Marie .....MISS ADA WEBSTER

This matinée, arranged by Mr. Alan Mackinnon, was in aid of the Building Fund of the Charterhouse Mission, Mr. Arthur Bourchier having kindly permitted the use of his theatre for the occasion. Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Forbes-Robertson, Mr. Charles Allan, Mr. C. Aubrey Smith, and Mr. Douglas Imbert-Terry, who were all Charterhouse boys, appeared in one or more of the plays and scenes from plays which formed the programme. The only novelty was Mr. Cosmo Hamilton's one-act play, Gran'father Coquesne. The story recalls the days when the Franco-German War was raging, and France had been invaded by the victorious foe. Gran'father Coquesne, a cobbler and ex-sergeant of Napoleon's Guard, has a son who is in the army and is away fighting for his country. The old man laments the fact that he himself is no longer able to serve as a soldier; and in his chats with his little grandson, Desiré, he expresses his bitter hatred of the foreign invader. He is considerably disconcerted when he hears that his daughter-in-law has been seen walking with Hans Dorp, the big Prussian trooper, who has been quartered at the cottage, and has by reason of his liberality in the provision of sweets become quite a favourite with little Desiré. The Prussian has been making love to his hostess, who encourages his amorous advances. Gran'father Coquesne obtains proof of this by watching the pair, and the old man resolves to preserve his son's honour at any cost. The trooper is accustomed to take his repose upon a bed in the sitting-room, and the old man persuades his grandson that he intends playing a practical joke upon Hans which will make him laugh when he wakes. The trooper is plied with brandy, which quickly takes effect, and, falling upon the bed, he goes fast asleep. The old man's grandson, blissfully unconscious that he is assisting at a murder, slips a noose round the sleeping man's neck, and the other end of the rope being attached to a windlass in the room, the Prussian is speedily strangled to death by the ex-sergeant, who is happy in the thought that he has saved his son's honour and at the same time rid his beloved country of a foe. Mr. C. Aubrey Smith, in a part quite out of his usual line, played Gran'father Coquesne with considerable power and intensity. Mr. Philip Cuningham was a fine soldierly Trooper Hans Dorp. Miss Ada Webster was excellent as the unfaithful Marie; and Master Philip Tonge was delightfully natural and boy-like as the cobbler's grandson, Desirée. The new production was favourably received.

The programme opened with the late Sir Charles Young's comedietta entitled That Dreadful Doctor, in which Mr. Charles Allan was an appropriately genial and good-natured Dr. Mars; Mr. Charles Maude was quietly effective as Edmund Beauchamp; and Miss Ethel Warwick did very well as Mrs. Beauchamp.

Next came the Trial Scene from The Merchant of Venice. Mr. Bourchier's admirable performance as Shylock and Miss Violet Vanbrugh's interesting and highly successful embodiment of Portia were again greatly appreciated. Mr. Arthur Whitby was a dignified Duke; and Miss Muriel Beaumont an attractive Nerissa. Other parts were excellently played by Messrs. Julian L'Estrange, Charles V. France, George Trollope, Wilfred Forster, Douglas Imbert-Terry, Alfred Bristowe, and Harrison-Carter.

In Scene I., Act II., of The Clandestine Marriage Mr. Cyril Maude delighted the audience by his cleverly-drawn picture of Lord Ogleby. Excellent, too, were the Stirling of Mr. Lionel Rignold, the Canton of Mr. Eric Lewis, and the Brush of Mr. A. E. Matthews; while Miss Alice Crawford was a charmingly coquettish Chambermaid.

The second act of Hamlet was the next item in the programme. Mr. Forbes-Robertson's Prince of Denmark is too well known to need comment; it is only necessary to place on record the fact that this notable performance is as admirable as ever it was, and Mr. Robertson was several times recalled. Miss Gertrude Elliott was also seen to special advantage as Ophelia. Mr. Charles Largley gave valuable assistance as Polonius; the King and Queen were ably represented by Mr. Ian Robertson and Miss Adeline Bourne; Mr. Hylton Allen and Mr. Frank Bickley were good as Rosencrantz and Guildenstern; and Mr. Walter Ringham as the First Player spoke his lines with capital effect. The performance concluded with a scene from The Heir-at-Law, Mr. Cyril Maude giving his amusing portrayal of Dr. Pangloss and Mr. G. M. Graham scoring in the part of Dick Dowlass.

It was announced from the stage that the handsome sum of £442 had resulted from the matinée performance.

AN inquiry into the sad death of Emma Elizabeth Finch, the young maid of Miss May de Sousa, who was run down by a motor-car in Brompton-road last week, was made on the 22nd inst. The maid, who was accompanying Miss de Sousa to Daly's Theatre on Monday evening about six o'clock, rushed into the road from the right-hand side, and was knocked down by a motor-car. The driver of the motor-car said the girl appeared to hit the front wheel and fell under the wheels. The crowd got round, and some of them seized him, and almost dragged him from his seat. They shouted, "Move the car on. The front wheel is on her." He moved the car on, and the back wheel went over her also. A verdict of accidental death was returned, but the jury expressed the opinion that proper precautions were not taken by the chauffeur to give an alarm in the congested traffic.

MR. TOM GREEN, the well-known comedian, clown, and stage-director, is making a most unique offer up to date, with a view to Christmas arrangements. Any manager or agent, who calls at the Walturdaw Co., 3, Dean-street, Holborn, or at Cricks and Sharp, 7, Great Queen-street, W.C., can see him in some of his latest productions on the cinematograph. This will enable managers to judge of an artist of thirty years' experience.

THE Palace-by-the-Sea at Clacton is doing excellent business, and the band stand (which this season is being run by the Municipal Council) is attracting large and appreciative audiences. There is an orchestra of nineteen performers, under the able conductorship of Mr. Joseph Sainton, and the special artists engaged for this week are Miss Marian Brereton and Mr. Lawrence Derrick, who have scored their usual success with their humorous duets and musical sketches. The business arrangements of the Municipal concerts are in the able hands of Mr. Fred McLeod.

THE HON. STEPHEN COLERIDGE will take the chair at the annual meeting of Our Dumb Friends' League at the Scala Theatre, Fitzroy-square, on Thursday afternoon next, when the Marchioness of Ormonde will distribute medals to the members of the Children's Branch of the Society. Tickets may be obtained on application to the Secretary, Mr. Arthur J. Coke, 118, Victoria-street, S.W.

"FOR WIFE AND HOME" will be produced, for copyright purposes, at the Rotunda Theatre, Liverpool, on Friday, July 13th—not the 6th, as stated in a contemporary.

"LA PRINCESSE GEORGES."
Comédie, en 3 Actes, d'Alexandre Dumas Fils.

On Friday, the 22nd inst., Mme. Hading and company appeared in La Princesse Georges, by Dumas fils. As Séverine, Princesse de Birac ("La Princesse Georges"), Mme. Hading acts in her own inimitable fashion the part of the wronged wife of the title-rôle, who is about the only sympathetic character in this story of infidelity and mercenary motives, ending in the death of one of the infamous Sylvanie's lovers. The guilty pair, Sylvanie, Comtesse de Terremonde, and her lover, the Prince de Birac, are left to trammel the earth, the play thus ending in a note of interrogation so far as they are concerned. La Princesse Georges acquaints the Comte de Terremonde with his wife's perfidy by ordering her rival out of the house. Then, after a vain attempt to wean her husband from his folly by pointing out Sylvanie's unscrupulous nature and her notoriety, and finding that he really loves her, she advises him to go at once, thinking he will be shot by Sylvanie's outraged husband. She immediately regrets this step, but as the Prince prepares to go, the shot which kills M. de Fondette is heard. Mlle. Fériel is a fascinating Sylvanie de Terremonde; M. Rouyer an ardent Prince de Birac; M. Garat a vigorous and determined Agénor de Terremonde; Mme. Alcime-Leblanc a resourceful and masterful Mme. de Périgny; and the other parts are suitably allotted as above.

On Wednesday and Thursday evening Frou-Frou was presented at the Coronet. Mme. Hading depicts the vain, flighty, frivolous nature of Gilberte in the earlier scenes, her carelessness, coquetry, and caprice, but later the actress makes quite a tour de force of tragic intensity, and shows the deep feeling and passion underlying this butterfly exterior. She sounds the depths of despair in the last two acts, and her pathos is too deep for words. Her Frou-Frou is yet another notable illustration in her gallery of realistic triumphs in character-acting. Mlle. Fériel is delightful as the self-sacrificing sister, Louise, and small wonder she is so universally beloved. M. Arnaud is excellent in his well-regulated and touching rendering of the part of Valreas. M. Rouyer adds to his laurels with quite an unwonted performance of calm self-restraint as Sartorys, very aptly conveying in a few graphic touches the sufferings he endures in the closing acts. M. Luguet is remarkably lifelike and natural as the gallant old gentleman, M. Brigard. Mlle. Florian is good as Pauline; and M. Garat and Mme. Alcime-Leblanc act capitally as le Baron and la Baronne de Cambri.

"LE MAITRE DE FORGES."

By arrangement with Mr. W. H. Kendal, M. Georges Ohnet's clever play was presented during the first week of Mme. Hading's visit. It was repeated on Monday, and again on Wednesday (matinée) and Friday. This story of a loveless marriage and mental anguish, culminating in a duel, and reconciliation resulting from heroic self-sacrifice, happily unattended with serious results, shows off the supremely-gifted actress, Mme. Hading, in quite a new light. As Claire de Beaulieu she practices the art of severe emotional repression and latent fire; only when strung up to the highest pitch of cerebral excitement does the crater of her hidden passion break forth in an unrestrained torrent of tumultuous rage, grief, and despair. Deeply touching is her expression of dumb agony, and her mental revolt from this self-inflicted torture, finding expression in words and action, comes almost as a relief from the tension of her controlled suffering. Her performance as Claire ranks high among her portrayals of esoteric character. M. Rouyer is again well to the fore as the noble-minded, purposeful Philippe Derblay, and he strikes the right note of character as the magnanimous but determined ironmaster. The scenes where he reproaches Claire with having made a tool of him to maintain her pride of place, and again where he resists her blandishments when she would make him forego the duel, are very fine pieces of acting. Mme. Feriel almost makes the unpleasant part of Athénais palatable, so charming is her personality. Mlle. Florian (who on Monday enacted the part of Baronne de Préfont, instead of Mlle. Cath. Fonteney) is elegance and charm personified. Mme. Alcime-Leblanc is very elegant and distinguée as the Marquise de Beaulieu; M. Garat as le Baron the Marquise de Beaulieu; M. Garat as le Baron de Préfont, M. Arnaud as le Duc de Bligny, M. Peyriere as Octave, and others, are very commendable in minor rôles; nor must we forget the amusing portraiture of the thick-skinned parvenu, Moulinet, cleverly sketched by M. A. Bour.

This is the last week of Mme. Hading's visit to London with her Parisian company, and to-day is the last chance of seeing this fascinating and accomplished artist at the Coronet, Sapho being performed at the matinée and in the evening.

MR. H. CHANCE NEWTON, in an article on "Fools and Failures" in last Saturday's issue of the Freelance, refers to Sir Henry Irving, who, he says, was smitten with a sudden passion to revive Lord Byron's Manfred. He even ordered the music and sundry other more or less necessary ingredients, but Mr. Newton, seizing the privilege of an old and ever-outspoken friend, on his own account caused him to abandon that "most morbid, most miserable, and least money-drawing of plays."

THE Handel Festival, which began at the Crystal Palace on Tuesday, drew an enormous audience to the opening performance of The Messiah. Dr. F. H. Cowen conducted, and the soloists were Mmes. Albani and Ada Crossley and Messrs. Ben Davies and Charles Santley, the veteran singer being enthusiastically cheered on rising to sing his first number. All praise is due to the members of the chorus, who sang with admirable precision and perfect intonation. The London Symphony Orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. Frye Parker, played the accompaniments to the solos, and Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock presided at the organ with his customary skill.

MISS CLARA MORRIS, the famous American actress, tells a characteristic story of the late Dion Boucicault, the celebrated dramatist and actor. She had observed that a certain death scene had been, in her opinion, a little too long for nature, and the actor-manager exclaimed: "Yes, and for art, too. Never rack your audience. Touch 'em—thrill 'em—chill 'em—but never s-t-r-a-i-n 'em."

"THE FATAL WEDDING," the well-known drama of "heart interest," proved such a pronounced success in Australia, that two companies were formed for its representation. The piece has now been played for six years in the United States of America by five companies, and in England by four companies. A Chicago newspaper states that the author, Mr. T. Kremer, has drawn 60,000 dollars (£16,000) a year in fees.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A very hearty reception was given to this play at the New Palace Pier Theatre, Brighton, last Monday evening, when it was produced by Mr. Chris. Walker, and performed by Mr. H. Bernhardt's company. On the termination of the comedy the authoress, who figured prominently in the performance as the heroine, was enthusiastically recalled by the very appreciative audience. On the conclusion of the second act she was also the recipient of a basket of beautiful flowers.

The first act opens in the Misses Purvis's parlour in the village of Dagmar. The two spinster ladies, who keep a small shop, are discovered in a state of great nervous excitement, owing to the news that has reached them of a burglary at a neighbouring farm. It is also obvious that the worthy ladies are very anxious respecting their niece, Peggy, whom they have on their hands, in consequence of the death of the girl's father in South Africa. Peggy is a lively little body, and evidently proves attractive to the young gentlemen of the district. Captain Marshall calls, leaving Lord Brooklyn's walking-stick, that a ferrule may be put to it. The aunts receive a letter from their nephew, James Purvis, who writes that he has made his "pile" in America, and intends paying them a six months' visit. He asks the old ladies to meet him at station, unless he wires that he is detained in London. The aunts have scarcely left home for the station, when Lord Brooklyn calls for his walking-stick. He is at once enamoured of the little shop-girl, who, on her part, imagines the visitor is the expected cousin, James, and falls in love with him at "first sight." An amusing scene follows. The "cousin" must have tea after his long journey, and his lordship is induced to array himself in cosy slippers and a white apron, and to make scones for the meal. A telegram from the real cousin arrives, stating he is detained in London for two days. Lord Brooklyn, who has realised the situation, burns the telegram during Peggy's temporary absence, when three knocks, arranged by the nervous aunts as the signal for admission, are heard at the door; and, as Peggy hurries to admit the spinster ladies, the curtain falls upon the interesting and humorous love scene.

In the second act it is seen that Lord Brooklyn, still posing as the real cousin, has been a guest of the Purvises for two days. He surprises Peggy by telling her that he has enjoyed the joke, and must leave her for good. Peggy fails to understand the joke, and is much depressed to think she is losing her "cousin." His lordship quietly places an explanatory letter on the breakfast table, kisses Peggy, and leaves the house. The aunts come down to breakfast, and cannot understand their "nephew's" departure. Peggy reads the letter, in which Lord Brooklyn, signing himself "James," asks her to marry him; she rushes excitedly from the room. The aunts, after some hesitation, also read the letter, and recall the fact that Peggy's father had left instructions that a box in his daughter's possession was to be opened when she had a proposal of marriage. The much perturbed aunts retire, and then the real nephew arrives, only to be regarded as a burglar, and ordered to leave the house. Lady Julia, Lord Brooklyn's sister, and Miss Evelyn Morris, an American heiress, appear upon the scene, having had some inkling of his lordship's escapade. They are anxious to gain information respecting the American heiress's rival for the hand of Lord Brooklyn. His lordship returns, and Peggy reproaches him for his joke, but he soon proves he is really in earnest, and desirous of marrying the little shop girl. The Earl, too, appears, and vainly appeals to his son to discard Peggy, and tells him the story of his own brother, who married beneath him, and, rejected by his family, died in Africa. A humorous scene follows, in which Peggy, disguised as one of the aunts, confronts the Earl, and demands £10,000 as a solatium for breaking off the engagement with the Earl's son. The aunts are indignant at Peggy's scheme, and they tell her the story of her mother's unfortunate marriage with a "gentleman," and her unhappy life that was closed in Africa. Then comes the opening of the box already referred to, and, as already anticipated, the audience realise that Peggy's mother married Earl Truro's brother, and, therefore, Lord Brooklyn is none other than Peggy's cousin.

At the opening of the third act, in the Earl of Truro's drawing-room, there is an interesting scene between Earl Truro and the American heiress, Evelyn Morris. The latter declares she does not care for Lord Brooklyn, and then succeeds in captivating the Earl himself. The spinster aunts arrive with Peggy, who has been invited to a dance at Brooklyn Hall by the Earl, the latter hoping the shop-girl will commit some error in good manners, and thereby disgust his son. Peggy begins to realise that Lady Julia, the Earl's daughter, is making sport of her; and, further, she is treated with scant courtesy by Captain Marshall, one of the guests, who rudely attempts to kiss her. Lord Brooklyn witnesses this, and orders the Captain to leave the house. Peggy, however, makes the mistake of assuming that Lord Brooklyn is also making sport of her, and states her determination to break off their engagement. She tells him of her mother's indiscreet marriage with one above her in rank; and the act closes with Peggy's declaration, "I won't make you unhappy!" All, however, ends happily in the last act, the scruples on the part of the Earl as to his son's marriage with Peggy being removed when he realises that the "shop-girl" is actually the daughter of his deceased brother.

Miss Atholie Robertson undertook the part of Peggy Purvis, and merits warm praise for the admirable manner in which she acquitted herself. In the light comedy scenes she was bright and winsome; while, on other occasions—notably in the third act—she showed herself capable of impassioned declamation. Mr. Douglas Vigors made an excellent Lord Brooklyn, and displayed manly, artistic, and thoroughly convincing acting. Mr. Frederick Annerley submitted a highly-polished enactment of the Earl of Truro; Mr. Simon Ord was well suited as James Purvis, and made the most of his opportunities; Miss Molly Paget was ingenious as the American heiress, Evelyn Morris, and was especially effective in the third act in her tactful advances to the Earl. Capital character studies of the nervous spinster aunts, Elizabeth and Amelia Purvis, were presented by Miss Nellie Clarence and Miss Mary Relf respectively; while the thankless part of Lady Julia was ably sustained by Miss Rose Cazelet. Mr. Jackson Wilcox as Captain Marshall, and Mr. Herbert Dickeson as Lord Bob, were well placed. Mr. Wilkins Baldi did capitally as P.C. Jones; and satisfactory support was given by Mr. Gilbert Williams and Mr. Albert Murray.

REJANE AT THE ROYALTY.

Mme. Réjane opened her second week with a representation of Le Monde où l'on s'ennuie, in which her performance of Jeanne Raymond again gave considerable pleasure to a large house. On Tuesday she revived La Rafale, which was seen at the same house in January last. The author, Henri Bernstein, undoubtedly possesses what is commonly known as the instinct of the theatre; but in his treatment of situations and incidents he seems to have given rein to a desire to be as brutally frank as is permissible on the stage. There is, however, a crude power in the piece, clumsy as it is in structure, and rough and unsympathetic as are its characters. Then there is Réjane, whose superb acting would justify the production of a worse piece. The plot, briefly outlined, runs as follows: The Baron de Lebourg is an exasperating snob, whose daughter, Hélène, is married to Armand de Bréchebel, a nonentity with a title and nothing more. Hélène had never taken the union seriously, and gives her love to Robert de Chacéroy, an inveterate gambler, whose only method of "raising the wind" is apparently the baccarat table. At the Baron's soirée in the first act, Robert informs Hélène that he has not only lost all that he possessed, but also a sum of 650,000 francs that did not belong to him. Unless he finds that amount in the course of the next day he will be arrested, and charged with embezzlement. It is a desperate case. Robert indignantly refuses Hélène's offer to help him; but the next morning she sends for a jeweller, and asks him to make her an advance on her jewels. The man is quite willing to do so, but requires time to find the money. Hélène then applies to Amédée, a former admirer and a cynical cur, who will help her—but on his own terms: the price of her honour. Hélène shows him the door; but, after a stormy interview with her father in the second act—the great dramatic moment of the play—she goes to Amédée, and secures the funds; but at what a price! She is too late, however, for Robert shoots himself.

None of the author's personages appeal to our sympathies, and this defect of the original play, which was produced on Oct. 20, 1905, at the Gymnase (with Mme. Simone le Bargy in the rôle of Hélène), was the chief cause of the failure of Mr. Harry Melvill's adaptation, The Whirlwind, with which Mrs. Patrick Campbell started her recent disastrous season at the Criterion on May 23. The most important scene in the piece is where Hélène seeks to obtain from the Baron, her father, the money to save her lover. Herein, Réjane has a chance of working herself into a whirlwind of passion, and she was seen at her very best on Tuesday, when the audience became very naturally quite enthusiastic. M. Pierre Magrier as the gambler, Robert de Chacéroy, again showed himself to be a finished actor; and the part of the Baron was effectively presented by M. Arvel. M. Saint Bonnet exhibited artistic restraint as the odious Amédée.

On Wednesday afternoon and evening was presented Edouard Pailleron's comedy in three acts, La Souris. Mme. Réjane had a rôle (Pépa) in which light-hearted gaiety predominated, and she played it in her most mercurial manner, constantly evoking the laughter of her legion of admirers by her breezy comedy. Mme. Suzanne Avril's Hermine was in excellent contrast; and M. Pierre Magnier as the man of the world, Max de Simiers, was quite irresistible in his love scene with Mdlle. Lély, who acts "the mouse" with freshness and charm. Mdlle. Verneuil as Clotilde also aided the effectiveness of the piece, which met with a favourable reception both at the afternoon and evening performances.

La Piste, Victorien Sardou's latest comedy, which was originally produced at the Théâtre des Variétés, Paris, filled the Thursday night's bill at the Royalty. It belongs to the same class as Les Pattesde Mouche and Divorcons. It is full of artifice, and is, as it were, built up on the points of needles. Not to put too fine a point upon it, it is just a shade démodée; but nevertheless its scenes possess a gaiety, a singular animation, a verve that easily carry it to success. The author's wonderful adroitness and dexterity in construction and fertility of invention are very marked throughout the three acts, and it is remarkable how M. Sardou, who has succeeded in all kinds of stage productions, should preserve such freshness and ingenuity after playwriting for over half a century.

The plot of La Piste is a typically Parisian intrigue. Florence Rébillon, a light-hearted somewhat feather-brained wife, has divorced her first husband, Philippe Jobelin, previous to her marriage with Casimir Rébillon, whose jealousy is aroused when he finds a compromising but anonymous letter some years old in her escritoire. Florence is ready with various explanations, none of which are regarded as satisfactory by a jealous spouse. One of her "fibs"—that the letter belonged to a lady who had been the former tenant of a flat—would have set his mind at rest had not her sister unintentionally blundered in saying that the desk was a family possession. As a last resource Florence hurries off to her former huband, Philippe Jobelin, and asks him to explain that he knew all about her affection for the mysterious writer of the letter, and that it is a matter of past history. In the belief that she is victimising her second husband Jobelin bears out her story, but finds that it is true, and that he had a rival. The discovery, although disagreeable for number one, is accepted by number two, who asks his friends to celebrate the occasion joyfully and dine with him. Mme. Réjane, who played her original part of Florence Rébillon, was intensely amusing. Mme. Suzanne Avril did admirably as Hortense.

AT the Marylebone County Court on Monday, Miss A. Anabel Montagu, a professional singer, who was sued by her landlord for £17, said to be due for her rent of a flat at Southwold-mansions, Elgin-avenue, put in a curious counter-claim. Miss Montagu said that while she was away her landlord broke into her flat to distrain on her goods, and then put a new lock on the door, which prevented a friend sending her letters on to her as he had done before, and caused a letter containing a contract of engagement for the Carl Rosa Opera Company to be returned. She lost the position and the chance of a lifetime. Mr. Walter van Noorden, manager of the Carl Rosa Company, said that the contract engaging Miss Montagu was returned to him unopened, and he had had to fill the position. The landlord said it was untrue to say he broke into the lady's flat. The door and window were open, and the bailiff walked straight in. He put a new lock on the door to protect Miss Montagu's goods. His Honour thought the evidence of damage for the lost contract was too remote even if there was liability, but he allowed defendant £4 for the damage of certain goods.

THE career of Haydn Gunter, the new Welsh violinist, who makes his London début at Miss Italia Conti's Stafford House concert on Thursday, has been a romantic one. The son of poor parents, he began life as a pit-boy at a Welsh colliery. His father, an engine-driver, was fond of music, and he gave the boy so much encouragement in his violin studies that at the Welsh National Eisteddfod he won, at the age of sixteen, the national prize. He was then sent to Leipsic, where he won the Mendelssohn Verein gold medal, being the first Britisher to gain that honour. Thence he went to Prague and Vienna, and returned home to play at the Eisteddfod as an artist, where he had formerly been a competitor.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

André Messager's Les Deux Pigeons was produced at Covent Garden on Thursday night, June 21. When originally performed at the Grand Opéra, Paris, in 1886, the ballet was in three acts, which has been condensed into two acts on its revival on Thursday night. In the past, when we had such famous exponents of the light fantastic as Fanny Gissler, Taglioni, and Carlotta Grisi, the ballet was an important feature of the Opera, and it remains to be seen if the present experiment will revive the ancient glories of the ballet in these modern days, with its increased knowledge of the higher forms of musical art. The story of Les Deux Pigeons is founded on one of La Fontaine's fables, and the first scene takes place in Mikalia's house, where her daughter Gourouli is expecting her lover Pepio. Gourouli and her friends are having a lively dance, as it is her mother's birthday, when Pepio arrives. It is at once apparent that something is wrong with the young lover, as he greets his fiancée coldly, and though she tries to please him with her dancing, and at last persuades him to join her; but when the dance is done Pepio relapses again into gloom. At this moment a gipsy troupe enters, accompanied by Djali, a Bohemian maid, and it is at once evident that she and Pepio have met before. After an Hungarian dance, in which Gourouli, competing with Djali, and failing to win back her lover, indignantly dismisses the gipsy troupe, Pepio states that he is going in search of adventure, in spite of Gourouli's pleading.

The second act is the gipsy camp. Pepio appears, and is warmly greeted by Djali. Shortly after, Gourouli arrives, and finding her lover still under the spell of her rival, thinks out a plot to reclaim him. She makes the gipsy chief an offer of a purse of gold if he will consent to her changing dresses with Djali and when this is done, Pepio thinks Gourouli is Djali. In her ruse Gourouli is successful. She tells fortunes, pleases the people by her dancing, and makes Pepio gamble until all his money is gone. A thunderstorm comes on, but Pepio has no money. The gipsies will not let him enter their tents; an innkeeper near by also refuses to take him in, so Pepio takes shelter under a tree, but this is struck by lightning, and the unfortunate man drenched to the skin, and thinking he is deserted by Djali, turns again to his former love. Pepio is satisfied with his flutter, seeks forgiveness of Gourouli, and all ends happily.

The music of M. Messager is lively, melodious, and, in many instances, charming. Much use is made of the gipsy motive to give strength and impart contrast to the work. A short introduction is given before the curtain rises. In the first scene, a lively dance by Gourouli's friends, who are carrying wreaths to decorate the room, proved very attractive, and the dance, "Pas des Deux Pigeons," between Pepio and Gourouli, was certainly one of the most charming numbers of the ballet. There is also a clever march, which heralds the approach of the gipsies, and some melodious and pathetic music, that accompanies Gourouli's endeavours to win back Pepio. In the second act there is some gipsy dancing, and the solo dances of Gourouli and Djali are in clever contrast. A vivacious waltz and an Hungarian dance are also pleasing features of this scene, which, after the storm music, closes with rejoicing and a spirited dance.

Mlle. Aida Boni, who was dressed in the regulation ballet costume, made a charming Gourouli, dancing in a graceful and finished style, with a good command of gesture; and Mlle. Irma Legrand proved equally attractive in the character of the fickle Pepio. Mlle. Lucie Raulin undertook the part of Djali with intelligence, but was hardly so successful in her dancing as her companions; M. F. Ambrosiny made an excellent gipsy chief; and Mme. Meulendyck appeared to advantage in the small part of Mikalia. The dresses were pretty, and the work mounted with considerable care, the general ensemble going smoothly under the conductorship of M. André Messager. The ballet was preceded by Massinet's charming miracle play, La Jongleur de Notre-Dame, a work that admirably contrasted with M. Messager's ballet.

A fine performance of Verdi's Aïda was given on Monday night at Covent Garden. Verdi's Egyptian opera always arouses interest, both by its great melodic charm, and the fine scenic effects that the Opera syndicate have lavished on this work. The cast included that great artist, Signor Caruso, who, being in good voice, sang the music allotted to the part of Radames to perfection. Mme. Giachetti as the heroine proved her ability as an actress, but vocally Mme. Giachetti was not entirely satisfactory, displaying at times a strong tendency to the vibrato. Amneris can always be considered one of Mme. Kirkby Lunn's best parts, and one that shows her fine voice to great advantage. Mme. Lunn made an effective use of her great vocal powers in the duet with Aïda, and in other more dramatic portions of the opera. Signor Sammarco as Amonasro, and M. Journet as Ramfis, were eminently successful in their respective characters; and M. Artus made a regal Il Ré. The dresses were handsome, and the opera mounted with the utmost care. Both the chorus and orchestra are worthy of great praise, under the skilful conducting of Signor Campanini.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your brief but kindly comment on my recent letter to the Press concerning the shockingly neglected state of Chopin's grave in the Père Lachaise Cemetery, Paris, you call Chopin a "French" composer. But please permit me to state that though this illustrious musician's father (Nicholas Chopin) was a born Frenchman, his mother (Justine Krzyzanowska) was a thorough Pole; and as Chopin himself was born on Polish soil (Zelazowa Wola, near Warsaw), he cannot in truth be called a Frenchman, notwithstanding that he made Paris his permanent home for many years.
—I am, Sir, yours obediently,

ALGERNON ASHTON.

AN English 'cellist, in the person of Mr. Joseph Schofield, is to make his début at the Steinway Hall on July 3. The young musician, who is a Yorkshireman, was born in 1886, and in 1899 gained the Baron Johann Knoop open violoncello scholarship at the Guildhall School of Music. He has since taken numerous prizes for 'cello playing at this school. Since 1902 he has studied under Hans Brousil. A special feature of his concert will be his playing of "Le Streghi" (Paganini-Brousil), which has never before been given on the 'cello.

MR. MESSAGER'S Savoy opera, Miretto, will be presented, under the direction of the composer, at the inaugural performances of the Cambridge University Operatic Club at the Scala Theatre on the afternoons of July 2 and 3. The performances will enjoy the patronage of Princess Henry of Battenberg.

THE Madison-square Roof Garden Theatre, the scene of Mr. Stanford White's murder, is one among many roof gardens in New York, numerous hotels and music halls offering the open-air entertainment in summer. At one hall an artificial farmyard, with real roosters, pigs, and peasants, has been fitted up on its roof.

"PUT IT IN BLACK AND WHITE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Managers and actors can obviously make what customs they please, so long as they are agreed about them; but the old custom was simple, and fair to all. Why any manager wanted to upset it I cannot imagine. The new custom attempted to be set up is, I understand, that engagements for "parts" are for a run, unless there is a written contract to the contrary, but engagements for chorus are on two weeks' notice. The futility of attempting to make this distinction was shown in the Vaudeville case. If the new "custom" is to hold at all, it must obviously apply to all engagements. That it is an undesirable custom—whether for the actor or the manager—I have no manner of doubt.

I was asked to give evidence in Thomas v. Gatti. I replied that I could do no good, as I considered the defence was on mistaken lines. It would, in my opinion, be even more impossible to get a unanimous agreement, as to what constitutes an "actress" or a "part," than to get a unanimous approval of any form of the Education Bill. No hard-and-fast line can be drawn

The defence should, I consider, have been that, as far back as anyone can recollect, it has been the recognised theatrical custom that all agreements with artists, unless a defined time is specified in writing, are subject to two weeks' notice on either side. This is practical and sensible.

To waste the time of our judges and juries on such questions, especially the latter, seems to me ridiculous. The only useful result can be to afford some amusement to the Court.

Managers and artists had better return to the simple old plan, recognising the right of each party to give two weeks' notice unless it is clearly defined otherwise in writing—this to apply to everyone, principals and choristers. It is surely very easy, where a longer engagement is intended, to reduce the terms to writing; and it is certainly worth while to do so where such serious responsibilities are involved. Myself, I always have signed contracts with my artists, and in the many thousands of engagements we have made since 1877 each one has contained the following clause: "All engagements for the run of a piece or season, unless any defined time is specified, are terminable by a fortnight's notice from either party." When it is agreed to make the engagement definitely for the run or other fixed period this clause is cancelled and initialled by both parties. —Yours faithfully,

D'Oyly Carte Opera Companies,
Savoy Hotel, London, W.C. June 27.

SIR,—Taking into consideration the idiotic verdicts, given both for and against managers, and for and against artists, by judges and juries who are entirely ignorant of the customs and usages of the theatrical and variety profession, contracts are scarcely worth the paper they are written or printed on. I consider the only way out of the difficulty—with equal justice on both sides—is that every contract should be made with the mutual agreement that any dispute should be settled by a Board of Arbitration—so many on either side—people connected with and experienced in our profession, with a president who is neither a manager nor an artist, but who is intimately connected with the affairs of the profession, and who would have a casting vote.—Yours truly,

ERNEST DOTTRIDGE.

June 27.

SIR,—I have always been under the impression that an engagement at a West End house meant for the entire run of the play—hence "the rehearsal on approval," and the non-payment for rehearsals (sometimes covering a period of five or six weeks). As a touring manager, I have always found the "Fortnight's notice on either side" to be insisted upon by artist and manager. I do not see how a London manager could insert the "Fortnight notice" clause in his contract, for often he takes the play off after a run of three nights.—I am, Sir, Yours truly,

E. VIVIAN EDMONDS.

2, Sunnyside-terrace, Weston-super-Mare.
June 27.

SIR,—No good manager will part with a good actor easily, and this, of course, cuts both ways; but in these days of syndicates, with their many voices, unfortunately there are others! As it is best to act in a clear atmosphere, all actors with confidence in their own tried powers should vote solidly for the old contract of a "fortnight's notice." Contracts for the "run of the piece," and for "three years," were invented by the manager for his own protection, not the actor's. When a person on the stage, whether he or she can act or not, makes a hit, there is an immediate run on him for his personality in the particular class of part he is called upon to impersonate (this, by some humorist, has been specialised as "his line"), and for the time being he could practically command his own terms. But he is tied to the manager "for the run of the piece," at his formerly undiscovered "line" price. Under the "three years" signing, the manager can "farm" the more or less fortunate actor, hit or miss, to whom he pleases, and in many instances pockets a good round sum as difference of salary. One cannot blame the manager; it is a legitimate gamble, and the actor has no right to grumble, as each contract is a matter for individual calculation. As a matter of "theatrical custom," however, it behoves us to stick to the old one. And now that this question has been raised, is it not also time that some arrangement should be come to about certain remuneration for rehearsals? Our cry should be for a fortnight's notice on either side, and half salaries for all rehearsals over a fortnight in London, and over a week for provincial tours, where artists are not employed in the evening bill.—Yours truly,

MATTHEW BRODIE.

21, Colville-road, W. June 26.

SIR,—My opinion is that provincial theatrical customs will not suffer by the decision given in the "Gibson Girl" case.

London customs have, in my experience, always differed from provincial ones. For instance, seldom is an actor or actress engaged in London unless they are known, and suited for the part they are engaged to play, and therefore it is only just and equitable that they should be engaged for the run of the piece. For my own part, I do not indulge in the luxury of contracts. Those that I have seen are, in my opinion, illogical, if not illegal. I make only two stipulations in my agreements, which always take the form of a letter. One refers to sobriety, the other, that this agreement is subject to the usual theatrical terms and conditions. It is thoroughly understood by every provincial actor or actress that these conditions comprise a fortnight's notice on either side, and "no play, no pay."

Pardon me if I consider this, as Artemus Ward put it, "enuff for all practical purposes."—Faithfully yours,

HENRY BEDFORD.

SIR,—The saying, "consuetudo pro lege servatur," has unusual weight in the theatrical profession, so, with regard to any particular point of law, it remains but to determine what is the "custom" in such case. As to the unwritten conditions of agreement when artists are verbally engaged, there appear to be two—London custom, affirming that all actors and actresses are engaged for the "run of the piece"; and provincial practice, contending that all engagements (unless otherwise specified in a written agreement), are terminable by a "fortnight's" notice on either side.

Mr. Blackmore has already said sufficient to show that provincial practice is more business-like and more conducive to harmony, though, from the London actor's pint of view, the possibility of receiving a fortnight's notice after having spent, perhaps, six weeks in rehearsals, is anything but reassuring. It appears, in fact, that each custom has grown up "a natura rei," and as it is doubtful if either will give way to the other, a written understanding of the matter, signed by both parties, is the only practical method of avoiding an occasional mal entendu.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES HALLING.

T. R., Chatham. June 27.

SIR,—I make a great number of contracts with artists during the year; on every one of them (without exception) the following clause is printed:—

"This engagement is made subject to all the recognised rules and regulations governing first-class theatres and tours, and is at all times terminable, on either side, at two weeks' notice."

It seems to me an equitable sort of arrangement, and I never have any trouble.—Yours faithfully,

PETER DAVEY.

Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames.
June 27.

SIR,—I have read Mr. Herbert Blackmore's letter on the custom of concluding engagements by a fortnight's notice.

As a difficulty has arisen over this question, it appears to me that the only way out of it is to insert on all contracts a clause to specify whether the engagement is for the season, the run, the tour, or terminable by the usual fortnight's notice.—Yours faithfully,

WYN WEAVER.

Theatre Royal, Worthing. June 26.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—There would be far less friction if a custom was generally recognised that every engagement made in a theatre was terminable on either side by giving a fortnight's notice, unless specified in writing that a definite period was mutually agreed on. This would be fair alike to manager and actor.

If the manager does not wish to bind himself for a stated period, it is only fair that the actor should better himself if he can. Per contra, if the actor will not bind himself for a certain time, it is fair the manager should suit his own convenience with a fortnight's notice.

I have been witness of a theatrical law-suit where out of twelve of our leading managers and actors six swore one way and six the other, and finally established that there was no custom at all and very little sense in theatrical contracts.—Yours faithfully,

WM. FARREN, JUN.

32, Cleveland-road, Barnes.

SIR,—I do not care to discuss or express a public opinion on any High Court judgments, but in regard to the general question of theatrical engagements, I disagree with Mr. Blackmore's ruling and interpretation of unwritten laws and general practice. Nearly everything in the dramatic profession is strangely elastic, and the "practice" may be anything an individual manager insists upon; but it must be equitable as a safeguard against favouritism and tyranny—and the ridiculous list of printed "pains and penalties" called "Rules and Regulations," which are generally disregarded, or considered loopholes for the unscrupulous and undependable.

A proper contract is a very simple matter, consisting of an offer on certain definite terms and conditions, and an acceptance. There is no need of uncertainty or ambiguity; a definite offer is made (say) for the—

1. Run of a play;
2. A season or seasons, years, months, weeks, or single performance;
3. At a fortnight's notice at any time after the first week; which also means that the engagement might last much longer than the first play you acted in; or, as a courteous concession of the manager, to inform his company generally of the termination of a run or season to all to whom it applied.

Theatrical disputes are deplorable, in my opinion, and should be easily avoided.—Most truly yours,

HENRY NEVILLE.

June 28, 1906.

SIR,—I do not hold with Mr. Herbert Blackmore's letter at all. Surely, from a legal point of view, it has been held long ago that an actor cannot be dismissed at a fortnight's notice, unless a specific agreement to that effect is mutually arranged by both parties. A manager should exercise care in selecting the actors and actresses who are likely to suit him, and he should not be allowed the luxury of caprice. On the other hand, an actor or actress should not enter into an engagement with his, or her, eyes shut. The reasons for which an artist can be dismissed are, or should be, always stated in the contract, where one exists, but the fortnight's notice is, in my opinion, bad for both parties. It is bad for the artist who after a long period of "resting," may be again sent into that blissful state, at the caprice of the manager; and it is bad for the manager who may be left with two weeks in which to procure, and rehearse, a possibly unknown artist, in important parts (a sometimes impossible task, in spite of the tremendous overcrowding of the theatrical profession) because the leading man, or woman's, dressing-room happens to have no electric light in it, or something equally important to the display of genius. No, take a little trouble over the matter, engage your people, and keep them. Much better for all parties if it were universal. Of course a certain amount of risk must always be taken in engaging people. They may not turn out quite as one expects, but managers should take the trouble to see artists' performances, even if it involves a railway journey, before engaging them, and, as a rule, if it is gently pointed out to an artist at rehearsal that his or her reading of a part is not quite to the liking of the management, and therefore also, presumably, not to that of the British Public, the artist usually sees the matter in the same light, and there is no difficulty, but if proper precautions were taken this would rarely occur.—Yours faithfully,

NORMAN V. NORMAN.

SIR,—Referring to Mr. Blackmore's letter in The Era of last Saturday, I quite agree with him in every detail, and the whole thing, it seems to me, would be simplified if, as Mr. Blackmore suggests, all agreements were made in writing.

The Two Weeks' Notice Clause on either side could not possibly be improved upon, and I have never found the slightest dissatisfaction with it among artists whom I have engaged; in fact, if there has been a suggestion of reluctance on the part of an artist agreeing to the two weeks' notice clause, I have invariably found that they were not desirable people to engage, and would attempt to bind a manager to a guarantee of so many weeks or a tour, not feeling sure of their ability to hold the engagement.

I think even though an artist be engaged for a run of a play, or a certain number of weeks, or a definite period, that there should be some established rules regulating the conduct of both manager and artist, the violation of which would justify a cancellation of the contract by either side giving a reasonable notice, say four weeks instead of two, because neither an artist or a manager wish to enter into an agreement for a definite period unless they both feel satisfied that the number of weeks stated is sufficient to protect their respective interests for that time.

If an artist is necessary enough to a manager to be engaged for a definite time, then also is the manager necessary enough to the artist to use his services for the same period, and from that standpoint probably both sides would find it a little more difficult to replace each other, and in my opinion the term of notice should be longer than the ordinary two weeks.—Yours faithfully,

BERT COOTE.

150, Oxford-street, W.
June 28.

DEAR SIR,—I must say that I quite agree with Mr. Blackmore, as I cannot understand any artist wishing to continue in an engagement to which he or she is unsuited, as it cannot be but disastrous to both artist and manager.—Sincerely yours,

AUSTIN MELFORD.

SIR,—Sir Charles Wyndham is abroad, but I am quite safe in telling you that Sir Charles's strong opinion is that an engagement is for the run of the piece, failing any written contract to the contrary.—Yours faithfully,

A. F. HENDERSON.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

THE Challenge Shield presented by the proprietors of The Era for the tug-of-war competition at the Theatrical Sports, is at present on view at the office of that journal, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand. It will shortly be dispatched to the holders, the Empire team, Dublin The Theatrical Sports Committee are anxoius to publish the accounts, and as the audit will take place on Monday at the office of the committee, 29, Wellington-street, Strand, the ticket-sellers who have not yet sent in their returns and sales are urgently requested to do so at once, in order that the business may be disposed of.

THE drawings sent in to the London County Council, showing how it is proposed to carry out the suggestions made by the Council for certain structural alterations at the Tivoli, Strand, were prepared by Mr. G. H. Dyball, the stage-manager.

THE annual outings of the working staff are now taking place week by week. On Sunday week the Alhambra staff will go for their outing to Dovercourt. The Empire staff will go to Clacton on the same day. At this latter house the management, for the first time, have taken over the control of the outing. The outing will be open to all employees, back or front, who care to go and subscribe 10s. each, which sum, it is expected, will be refunded, the expenses being provided by funds raised from other sources.

A SOCIAL gathering was held last Sunday in the Freemason's Arms, Long Acre, under the auspices of the Carpenters' Society and the General Operatives Sick and Benefit Society, for the purpose of receiving subscriptions for the benefit of Mr. T. Rowe, a well-known carpenter, who has become blind, and thus unable to follow his occupation. Mr. A. Palmer, of the Comedy Theatre, acted as chairman, and Mr. A. E. Wood vice-chairman. The meeting was well attended.

MR. E. FURGESON, a member of the American Alliance of Stage Employees and property master of the Sho-Gun company, has just returned to New York after a short stay in Paris and London, which he visited as a holiday. He attended a number of West End theatres, and much appreciates the courtesy shown to him by the various heads of departments.

A MEETING of the National Committee of the National Association of Theatrical Employees was held on Thursday evening, at 29, Wellington-street. Reports from the various branches were submitted. The meeting adjourned to next Thursday.

BLACKPOOL was the place chosen for the annual outing on Sunday of the employees of the Theatre Royal, Bradford, when the staff to the number of twenty-five availed themselves of the kind invitation of Mr. John Hart, the lessee. The arrangements, which were perfect, were in the hands of Mr. T. F. Doyle, the stage-manager, and the acting-manager, Mr. James Richardson. Lunch was provided at the County and Lane Ends Hotel, after which circular drives were indulged in, and a sumptuous dinner was partaken of in the evening at the hotel. The weather was delightful, and a most enjoyable day was spent.

THE annual staff outing of the Grand Theatre, Woolwich, took place on Sunday, when a party of forty, comprising members of the orchestra, front of house, and stage staff, including Mr. J. Gladwin, Mr. Sounes's manager. The company journeyed to Ramsgate, arriving a little before one, afterwards making their way to the Royal Oak Hotel, where an excellent dinner was prepared. After dinner, Mr. Gladwin proposed the health of the proprietor, Mr. Sounes. which was drunk with musical honours. Mr. Gladwin then, on behalf of Mr. Sounes, heartily thanked the staff for their efforts during the past season. Mr. Percy Court then accorded a vote of thanks to Mr. Gladwin. which was seconded by Mr. Joseph Klee, musical director, and enthusiastically carried. After dinner most of the musicians took a sea trip by the new yacht, Moss Rose; whilst the stage staff enjoyed a brake ride to Minster, returning to the same hotel to tea. The whole arrangements were carried out by Messrs. Percy Court, A. D. Jones, George Jewett, and Charles Kitchen.

FREEMASONRY.

The companions of the Asaph Chapter held their thirty-fourth installation meeting on Monday, at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. Amongst those present as visitors to do honour to the occasion were Messrs. W. Cleghorn, P.G.S.B., W. H. Stocks, W. F. Allocy, W. B. Smith, Will Sparks, W. Lestocq, and Charles Cruikshanks. Mr. Luigi Lablache, the I.P.Z., acted as first principal, and was supported by Messrs. Tom de B. Holmes, J. D. Beveridge, Harry Nicholls, P.D.G.D.C., and A. G. Duck, past principals, and the following officers:—Messrs. W. J. Harvey, James Weaver, P.1stA.G.D.C., James W. Mathews, Ed. Humphrey, and E. H. Bull, and companions Messrs. Clarence Coggin, J. Powell, J. H. Ryley, W. J. Keen, Geo. F. Carr, G. A. Keen, A. P. Oxley, C. W. A. Trollope, and E. A. Whitehouse. Mr. Herbert Chenery became a member of the Chapter, and Mr. W. Cleghorn was unanimously elected as an hon. member, a distinction conferred upon him in recognition of his many services to the Chapter as Installing Master.

The Chapter having been opened, and the preliminary business settled, Mr. James W. Mathews was installed as Third Principal, and afterwards (in conjunction with Mr. W. J. Harvey) as Second Principal. A conclave of First Principals was formed, and Mr. W. J. Harvey was installed as the ruler of the Chapter, the ceremonies being conducted by Mr. W. Cleghorn in a masterly manner, and Messrs. Tom de B. Holmes, Ed. Humphrey, and A. G. Duck rendering valuable assistance. The newly appointed chief appointed and invested his officers:—Messrs. Jas. Weaver (E.), Clarence Coggin (N.), Ed. Humphrey (treasurer), Stanley Pringle (P.S.), E. H. Bull (A.S.), and Duncan Tovey (A.S.), and E. A. Whitehouse (O.). The choice of the companions fell upon Mr. Whitmore, the present Master of the Lodge of Asaph, as Third Principal, and Mr. Gilbert, who has held his office since the inception of the Chapter, as Janitor.

THE SWANBOROUGH BENEFIT.

The professions, both variety and theatrical, took considerable interest in the benefit matinée given to dear old Teddy Swanborough on Thursday afternoon, by the kind permission of the directors, at the London Pavilion; and the fine house which responded to the appeal of Mr. Henri Gros and an influential committee was in itself a splendid testimony of the affection and esteem in which the popular manager—now laid by through serious illness—is held. We were reminded of the old Strand days—the palmy days of well-written burlesque and Byronic comedy—when Mr. Edward Terry came on to the stage towards the end of a long and attractive entertainment to say a few words of thanks on behalf of the beneficiaire. The popular comedian, who claimed the indulgence of the audience as an extra turn, said it was his privilege that afternoon to return thanks to them for a dear, esteemed friend of his—a friend of many years—who, he felt sure, would rate very highly the very great testimony of feeling implied by the large number of his friends who had come there that hot afternoon. He would not refer to him as Mr. Edward Swanborough, but as "the genial Ted," the friend of them all, under whose revered mother he had served at the Strand Theatre in the days of his youth—days that he should never forget. He would thank Mr. Hugh Astley and the directors for the loan of the house and the artists for their kindly offices, and special thanks were due to Mr. Henri Gros. In conclusion, Mr. Terry stated that the sum raised by subscriptions and the matinée reached the handsome sum of £450, and that he would convey to Mr. Swanborough their hearty good wishes for his speedy restoration to health.

The entertainment had notable contributors in Mr. J. H. Barnes, who recited; Mr. Rutland Barrington, the old Savoyard, who gave "His last dinner"; Mr. Charles Collette, who sang, as he only can, "I've a terrible lot to do to-day"; and Mr. Charles Hawtrey, who appeared with his customary success as the light-hearted and mercurial Charles Grahame in the comedietta, by Lady Bell and the late Arthur Cecil, entitled Time is Money. Mr. Hawtrey was well supported by Miss Florence Sinclair as Mrs. Murray and Miss Mona Harrison, who appeared by permission of their several managers. Somewhat heavier in texture and of more serious interest than the airy trifle just mentioned was The Chorus Girl, presented by Miss Rose Stahl and her own company from the Palace Theatre. The American actress created an excellent impression by her powerful realisation of the moods of Miss "Pat" O'Brien, an extra lady at an opera house—a child of nature, a gem in the rough, a "dead straight girl," fierce in hate, but strong in affection—and the enthusiastic call at the close was a well-deserved compliment to the clever American actress. She was well supported by Mr. Jack Denton and Miss Elma Morris.

Another turn from America, the Kentucky Four, echoed the plantation melodies across the footlights. Messrs. Jordan and Harvey, also from the States, evoked laughter by their Hebrew dialect; Australia was well represented by Miss Alice Hollander and the beautiful Milo, in her posings as the Venus of various ancient sculptors; Mr. C. Emlyn Jones and his Emerald Quartette were responsible for an attractive vocal entertainment; and Miss Winifred Hare, looking radiant, chose a charming selection from her repertoire; Mr. Wilkie Bard roused laughter by his exceeding drollery in a popular number; and Mr. Arthur Prince, returning temporarily to the scene of his London début, again astonished his numerous admirers by his wonderful technique as a ventriloquist. Other turns in the matinée bill were Mr. James Stewart, the tramy pianist; Stenelli, a clever child violinist, age eleven, a pupil of Herr Stern, of Brighton, who made his first appearance in London; Cruikshank, the wonderful caricaturist, who drew impressionist sketches of Sammy Woods, the Somersetshire cricketer, and of R. H. Spooner, the brilliant bat of the Lancashire eleven; and Miss Sarah de Groot, who recited "The idyl of Battle Hollow," by Bret Harte. To Mr. Frank Glenister, who managed the entertainment, acknowledgments are due for the smooth working of an excellent list of attractions, which were accompanied throughout most artistically by the fine band under the direction of Mr. A. Bond Sayers.

DEAR SIR,—In my last letter to you, which you were good enough to publish last Saturday, I stated that the list for subscriptions would be kept open until August 6. This is a clerical error; it should have read July 6.

I send you herewith further list of donations received to-day.—Yours faithfully,

HENRI GROS.

OPEN AIR music halls in Paris are coining money now, especially the Ambassadeurs, the management of which has just brought out Et Puis—Zut! a smartly-written revue by MM. Georges Manteuil and Henri de Garsse. The work, in keeping with the temperature, is rather "hot," and it would be impossible to describe the scenes in detail. The prudish stranger, however, will not be called upon to blush, for it is most improbable that he will understand many of the allusions. It is worth while going to see the revue, if only to hear Max Dearly take off an American, a Spaniard, &c., and hear his description of his journey to Madrid to attend the Royal wedding. Excellent, too, is Mme. Allems, an admirable diseuse, whose couplets, presented in her inimitable style, scored a huge success. Lastly, there is M. Girier, who appears as Mme. Aurelia, an imposing-looking lady, with large diamond ear-rings and bejewelled fingers. She is supposed to keep a glove shop, but the young ladies in her establishment have altogether a different profession; and when a government official calls to fill up the lists for the census, a quid pro quo arises that baffles description.

ONE of the principal attractions at the Hackney Empire next week is Mr. Frank Danby, who with a capital company will appear in The Chauffeur, a new musical comedy sketch. Mr. Danby is one of Mr. George Edwardes's principal comedians.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The Students' Orchestral Concert attracted a large audience to Queen's Hall on Wednesday afternoon. The programme, which was varied and interesting, began with a spirited and crisp performance by the orchestra of Auber's overture, "Marco Spada," one noteworthy feature being the good work done by the wind instruments, always a severe test of student orchestras. Mr. Rowsby Woof produced a slightly thin tone, but gave ample evidence of his executive ability in his violin solo of Brahms' First Movement from Concerto in D, in which Mr. Woof has introduced a clever cadenza of his own composition. At the close the young violinist was warmly applauded and recalled twice to the platform. The chief novelty of Wednesday's concert was a new work by that talented young composer, Mr. Hubert Bath (a Goring Thomas scholar), who on this occasion contributed "Orpheus and the Sirens," a Sea Picture (MS.) for solo, chorus, and orchestra, the words being taken from the poem of William Morris' "Life and Death of Janson," a selection being made from Book XIV. It was evident that so fine a subject offered great scope for musical treatment, and in this Mr. Bath has been eminently successful. There are some clever solos and most effective choruses, while the scoring for the orchestral portions shows decided talent; the extreme length was the only exception or drawback to the work, which showed the skill of its composer in varying the monotony of alternating solo and chorus. The composition owed not a little of its success to the refined singing of the female chorus in many melodious passages for the Sirens, while Mr. John Bardsley gave due importance to the solos of Orpheus and Miss Olive Clare to her one air. Great and long continued applause greeted the composer at the close of "Orpheus and the Sirens." In her pianoforte solo of the Second Concerto in E, by E. d'Albert, Miss Christian Carpenter gave ample proof of her technical capacity, being admirably supported by the orchestra, and Mr. Frederick W. Hodgkinson did good work in his violoncello solo, Varaitions sur un Thème Rococo, by Tschaïkowsky. The vocal items of the concert were also of much interest, Mrs. Alice G. Prowse singing with not a little dramatic power Weber's air, "Ocean, thou mighty Monster" (Oberon), and Miss Maude Isabelle Wadia an artistic rendering of "Aus Tiefe des Grames" (Achilleus), by Max Bruch. Mozart's song, "Mentre ti lascio, o figlia," was well sung by Mr. Leslie Mackay, although the music was somewhat low for his voice. Miss Ida Kahn also was successful in her song "Die Allmacht," Schubert—Liszt. Sir A. C. Mackenzie conducted the concert, which reflected the greatest credit on the teaching staff at the Tenterden-street institution.

"CASEY'S COURT," a very funny farce, is one of the principal attractions next week at Holloway Empire. It is a street urchin's idea of a variety entertainment, and is cleverly played by a fine company of youngsters.

MISS ETHEL RA LESLIE is taking a well-earned rest after a nine months' tour. She will spend her vacation between her houseboat up the Thames and her charming residence at Streatham.

MR. CHARLES FISHER, the well-known originator of "miniature opera" in the halls, has made arrangements with the executors of the late Sir Augustus Harris to give excerpts from Carmen at our variety theatres. We are quite sure, judging by Mr. Fisher's former artistic productions, that nothing will be wanting on his part to sustain the brilliant reputation of Bizet's masterpiece.

MISS JOSEPHINE COLONA, who has recently finished a provincial tour as Lady Godiva, will produce her own sketch on the same subject next week at the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton.

T. T.—For Her Sake, one-act drama by Alec Nelson (Edward B. Aveling) was produced at the Olympic, June 22, 1888.

W. F.—The Surrey Theatre was destroyed by fire on Jan. 30, 1865. There was no loss of life, but the actors in most cases had to escape in their theatrical costumes.

LEICESTER SQUARE.—The play called Our American Cousin was produced at Wallack's Theatre, New York, on May 12, 1858. Our American Cousin came to the Haymarket in 1861. A few years later Sothern appeared in a sequel (written by Henry J. Byron), entitled Lord Dundreary Married and Done For.

COMEDIAN.—"Tommy, make room for your uncle" was first sung by W. B. Fair at one of the London halls about 1874.

E. J.—Under the Red Robe was produced at the Haymarket on October 17, 1896. The cast included Messrs. Herbert Waring, Sydney Valentine, Hamilton Revelle, Holman Clark, Albert Meyer, Mackay, Bernard Gould, Dawson Milward, Clarence Blakiston, Rupert Lister, Granville Barker, and Cyril Maude, and Misses Eva Moore, Fanny Coleman, Halkett, Annie Saker, and Winifred Emery.

HARRY.—Mr. Beerbohm Tree first played Hamlet in London, at the Haymarket Theatre, on Feb. 21, 1892.

C. G.—Mr. H. V. Esmond's play My Lady Virtue was produced at the Garrick, Oct. 27, 1902.

MAB.—Miss May Yohé originally sang "Honey, Ma Honey" in Little Christopher Columbus at the Lyric in 1893.

G. H. H.—We do not, as a rule, insert the cast in the case of copyright performances.

C. C.—You must apply to the Commissioners of Inland Revenue for an excise licence.

W. BELLONINI.—We have, since replying to your query, received a letter from a correspondent, stating that Mr. Henry Spencer, 5, Bath-street, Glasgow, has two play-bills at least on which the name of H. C. Mellon appears. Quoting from memory, he adds that G. V. Brooke played Matthew Elmore, and Mr. H. Melton, Friar Dominic in Love's Sacrifice at Drury Lane on Nov. 18, 1861, and Mr. Mellon also appeared as Danny Mann in The Colleen Bawn at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, in Oct., 1861.

WYNDHAM.—We are not acquainted with any Accident Insurance Company that offers any special terms to members of the profession.

MR. STEPHEN S. STRATTON, the musical critic of the Birmingham Daily Post, died suddenly this week. Mr. Stratton was a prolific writer on musical subjects, and enjoyed the personal friendship of all the great artists attending the Birmingham Musical Festival. The compilation of "The British Musical Biography" occupied him ten years, and another interesting work which he wrote was "Curiosities in Music."

HOW TO KEEP COOL.

We strongly recommend all who suffer from the prevailing heat to add a few drops of Condy's Fluid to the Daily Bath or Foot Bath.

A Condy's Fluid Bath imparts a delightful sensation of Coolness, Freshness, and Purity. It invigorates the body and braces the nerves. The Cooling, Strengthening, and Bracing effects are Simply Magical, they are so very lasting.

Tired and Tender Feet are instantly relieved, and every trace of Odour and all other unpleasant effects of Perspiration immediately disappear. Book on bottle contains full directions and reports by a great many Eminent Physicians.

Sold by all Chemists, 1/- 8oz., 20oz. 2/- Caution.—Insist on having "Condy's Fluid."

A VERY beautiful form of fountain, and a useful one withal, has just made its appearnce. It can be constructed to form and discharge up to 20,000 bubbles a minute. If the atmosphere be calm the bubbles, being inflated with gas, rise in a huge column in the air and form a very imposing and beautiful spectacle. They can be distinctly seen at a range of a quarter of a mile. If the sun is shining, the spectator sees two bright reflections in each bubble, wherever he may be standing. The beautiful series of tints of colours in the bubble-film is common knowledge. At night time a most fairy-like effect can be produced with artificial illumination, two points of light being reflected from every bubble for each light employed. With a large number of lights properly arranged the bubbles appear like balls of fire. The rising column can be lighted at the base, producing a pillar of fire.

THROUGH the closing of the Tivoli, Leeds, Miss Maidie Scott has an opportunity of appearing next week at the Palace, Hammersmith, and Ealing Hippodrome, where she should be welcome.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

Mr. EDWARD LAURI and COMPANY arrive home per R.M.S. China July 2, after an enormously successful tour of Australia and New Zealand. Mr. Lauri is empowered to purchase pieces, and engage Artists and Novelties in all branches of the profession for a six or twelve months' tour of the Colonies.
The Sydney Referee, April 11, 1906, says:—Mr. Stephenson's company is one of the best, if not the best, that has ever toured this colony. Never before have we had five capable comedians, all expert dancers, in one company, while vocally there are no less than ten cultured singers.
The above company was organised and the pieces produced by Mr. Lauri in England and Australia, originally for a six months' tour, and on May 28, 1906, they concluded a two years' engagement.
Notice.—To authors, composers, artists, and others.—Mr. Edward Lauri begs to inform all whom it may concern that he terminated his engagement with Mr. George Stephenson, of Australia and New Zealand, on May 27, 1906. Address pending arrival, Care of "The Era" Office.

IBSEN AND HIS INFLUENCE.

Before deciding what was the influence of IBSEN on the modern English drama, we must ask: What is it that distinguishes the realistic dramas of IBSEN from the ordinary play? Chiefly, that the material dealt with is "stuff o' the conscience." He is more intimate with his characters than is the ordinary dramatist. The development of character by action, not the development of plot by incidents, is the object of his works. It is only in the very highest class of play that the former method is adopted. It is too costly for the ordinary playwright; for it involves the power of getting inside one's personages, and then turning them inside out.

The great vice of the modern English audience is inattention. They have been so long accustomed to find nothing in drama besides situations that they will not listen with the absorbed interest which the development of a moral struggle should evoke. So careless are they that many of the misapprehensions of IBSEN's plays at the time of their first production in England came from ignorance of the actual text. But what in IBSEN's dramas was chiefly resented by the British public was that, even to endeavour to understand them, one was forced to think. This, the unpardonable sin in a British dramatist, was not likely to be forgiven in a Norwegian.

And, in addition to making people think, IBSEN had an uncomfortable way of "touching them up" on their tender points. He went behind the ordinary "regulation" morality, and insisted upon exposing the pinchbeck ethics of the ordinary man. He would not be satisfied with the whitened front steps of the very respectable dwelling; he persisted in examining the drains. He disturbed the self-satisfaction of many worthy men—an unforgivable offence. Hundreds of Helmers had an uneasy half-recognition of themselves on the stage; dozens of ultra-submissive Mrs. Avelings saw their misgivings put into dramatic form, and secretly and sadly despised themselves; and in importing An Enemy of the People Mr. TREE ran the risk of offending somebody or other in every vestry or Board of Guardians in the Metropolis.

These observations refer to what we may call IBSEN's rational dramas. Brand and Peer Gynt are poems, and more or less cryptic; and at the other end of the list we have The Master Builder, Little Eyolf, and When We Dead Awaken. These, with John Gabriel Borkman, we verily believe to be tainted with the cloudiness of brain which came over IBSEN's declining years. But the other plays, the dramas dealing with ethics, are consistent works, with no shadowy "symbolism." Whatever IBSEN may have been in his conception of his art, in carrying out his ideas he was a workman. He knew how to put a play together, how to introduce his story, how to develop it, and how to end it. Hedda Gabler is faultless in workmanship; the climax of Ghosts is worked up to with the method of a master. If the British public did not like IBSEN, the English dramatists appreciated him in secret.

If IBSEN had any real influence on English dramatic art we should see it becoming more concerned with souls and less with situations, getting deeper and more serious. As a matter of fact, our leading playwrights, at the time when IBSEN was in the air, made several attempts in this direction, but without success. The IBSEN influence was strong in The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith, in Iris, and in The Crusaders; but the British dramatists fell between two stools. They wanted to combine the old-fashioned theatrical effect and smartness with the new-fashioned ethical argument. Still, to many, these plays, with all their shortcomings, have very great interest. The fact that they are forgotten shows the impossibility of using the English stage as a pulpit for the delivery of doctrine or as a stimulant to serious thought.

This impossibility is based on the deep seriousness of the English character. The Englishman's idea is to translate conviction into action; he cannot contemplate a question passively in art as the French and German can, and he is so much accustomed to going to the theatre to be amused that it seems a kind of desecration of a social theory to elaborate it behind the footlights. IBSEN's influence in England has been greater among readers than among playgoers; but he has had little on our playwrights. After the unavailing attempts above alluded to they returned to the play of character and situation. In this they were wise.

The great boons that dramatists owe to IBSEN are: his clearing the ground for more moderate freedoms in idea and speech, and his showing the way to make old situations interesting by dealing with souls in handling those situations. In Letty, in Captain Drew, and in many other modern plays, we come across many vivid and appreciative bits of soul-sketching which the authors would never have dreamt of putting there but for the example of IBSEN.

So far as the production of English plays of the IBSEN school is concerned, his "influence" has been, and is, immaterial. There is not a drama of the social problem sort on the boards at present. There is, however, a considerable minority who would like to see some of IBSEN's works again; and this seems an appropriate time for revivals. If any should take place, we hope the company will be influenced by Mr. TREE's Enemy of the People performance, and not take their parts so seriously or in such slow time as they did in the old days. IBSEN never has a fair chance when he is played by eccentrics with an obsession of seriousness, and amateurs who are always "letting it drop."

THE MUSICAL COPYRIGHT BILL.

The House of Commons went into Committee on the Musical Copyright Bill just before eleven o'clock on Thursday, the Speaker leaving his place, and Mr. Caldwell, amid cheers and laughter, coming forward to take the Chair as Deputy-Chairman of Committees. It being eleven o'clock by the time he reached his place the hon. gentleman quitted it immediately.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor: I appeal to hon. gentlemen—— (Loud cries of "Go on! Go on!")

Mr. Lupton (emphatically): I object!

The Speaker now returned to the Chair, and the House resumed.

Mr. O'Connor: Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether I am too late; but the Deputy-Chairman of Committees got very slowly into the Chair and very quickly out! It is now only eleven o'clock. There is ample time for the fullest debate on the amendments down in the name of the hon. member (Mr. Byles). Those amendments, so far as I am concerned, shall have the fullest and fairest discussion. Mr. Speaker, I appeal——

Mr. Byles: Are we allowed to debate this after eleven o'clock, Mr. Speaker? All I want is debate, and I shall be quite content to continue.

Mr. O'Connor: Mr. Speaker, I understand that, with the consent of the House, this can go on!

Mr. Lupton and several Members on the Irish benches: I object!

The Clerk: To-morrow!

The Bill had accordingly to stand over.

THE LYRIC.

On Thursday, June 28,
Revival of the Comedy, in Four Acts,
by Booth Tarkington and E. G. Sutherland,
entitled
"MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE."

The revival for a short season of Messrs. Booth Tarkington and E. G. Sutherland's comedy affords playgoers an opportunity of seeing Mr. Lewis Waller in one of his most successful impersonations; and the genuine enthusiasm displayed by Thursday night's audience proved beyond a shadow of a doubt the sustained popularity of the character which owes so much of its interest and vitality to Mr. Waller's admirable performance. Played for the first time at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, on October 6, 1902, Monsieur Beaucaire was first seen in London three weeks later at the Comedy Theatre. It was put on as a mere stop-gap, for the play had not been well received at Liverpool, but in the Metropolis it was from the first a decided success, and attracted a crowded and delighted audience at every performance. Indeed, the run of the piece was by no means exhausted when Mr. Waller closed the theatre in the August of the following year. It was revived last June at the Imperial Theatre, and now once more we have the chance of making or renewing the acquaintance of the eminently picturesque personage who became the talk of Bath society some hundred and fifty odd years ago. Mr. Waller as the Duke of Orleans, who, under the assumed name of Monsieur Beaucaire, cuts such a dashing figure in the fashionable West of England resort, bears himself right gallantly, and continues to invest the part with all those fascinating qualities which were the envy of the "young bloods" of Bath, and excited the unqualified admiration of the ladies who came within their powerful influence. Except for a slight hoarseness, which disappeared after a time, Mr. Waller was at his best on Thursday night, encouraged no doubt by the extremely cordial welcome he received from the crowded house. That Miss Evelyn Millard, who again appeared as Lady Mary Carlyle, had a large share in the triumphs of the evening, may be taken for granted. Her embodiment has all the grace and charm which one naturally associates with the beauty of Bath; and the popular actress's reception was of the heartiest. Mr. Charles Allan resumed his original part of Beau Nash, and his highly finished portrait of this famous personage was greatly appreciated. Mr. Arthur Lewis gave an excellent rendering of the Marquis de Mirepoix; and Mr. Frank Woolfe made good use of his opportunities in his impersonation of the Duke of Winterset. Mr. Owen Roughwood did well as Major Molyneux, and the Lord Townbrake of Mr. J. H. Irvine proved to be a highly creditable piece of work, while able assistance was rendered by Mr. C. McGuiness as Mr. Bantison, Mr. A. E. George as Mr. Rakell, Mr. Sheil Barry as Mr. Bicksett, and Mr. S. B. Brereton as Captain Badger. Miss Minnie Griffen gave a praiseworthy portrayal of the Countess of Greenbury, Miss Catherine Vyse was good as Miss Presbury, and Miss May Chenery a satisfactory Lucy Relleston. Other parts were safe in the hands of Messrs. J. Byron, W. L. Schonberg, and the Misses Constance Walton, Beatrice Lewis, May Taverner, and Eleanor May.

SOUSA, the "March King," recently appeared before a Joint Committee of the Senate and House at Washington to make a few remarks in his own behalf with regard to a proposed new Copyright Bill. He wanted some remuneration for the reproduction of his musical compositions in the phonographs. "When I was a boy," said Sousa, "the young people sat on the steps of their houses in the evening and sang the old songs and the new ones. Instead of hearing these young voices nowadays you hear those talking-machines. Caruso is paid a large sum for singing one song as a record, and a cornet-player receives four dollars for a solo, but the composer of the piece gets nothing." A provision in the new Bill will remedy this, as the consent of the composer will be required, before a record of a musical composition can be made for mechanical reproduction.

THE friends and admirers of Mr. Henry A. Moore, the well-known mimic, will be sorry to learn that he has been confined to his bed for the last three weeks with hæmorrhage of the stomach. No serious danger is apprehended, but the sufferer is ordered complete rest.

MR T. P. O'CONNOR ON PIRACY.

In an interesting "Talk," to which the well-known initials "H. F. S." are affixed, in the Westminster Gazette of Saturday last, Mr. T. P. O'Connor gives indisputable reasons why the Musical Copyright Bill, now before the House of Commons, should be allowed to pass speedily into law. "I do not think," says Mr. O'Connor, "that anybody outside the musical profession realises the personal tragedies which lie behind this question. Scores of men and women have literally been brought almost to starvation point. Some have actually died. Many widows and orphans have been left penniless. I will give you two instances out of many. George Le Brunn was, a few years ago, perhaps the most popular song-writer in England. His name was a household word. His songs must have been worth some thousands a year at one time, but in the last year of his life he made only £4 3s. 6d. He died at the age of forty-two, and a benefit had to be given for his widow and mother at the Oxford. Take also the case of Signor Mascheroni. His name is known to every lover of music and every singer. 'For all eternity' is one of his best-known songs. He lived in England during the greater part of his life, and had a fair competence. After the growth of this nefarious trade his income gradually diminished. He had to return to his native Italy, and died there, I believe, almost penniless. Edwin Greene is another popular composer. He is a permanent invalid, and dependent entirely for his livelihood on his songs. 'Sing me to sleep,' one of his best-known, has been pirated in several editions.

"This pirate war is against women as well as men. Take the case of Térèse del Riego. Some hundreds of thousands of one of her best-known songs, 'O dry those tears,' have been sold by pirates, without returning her a penny, and, of course, ruining her own copyright edition. Guy d'Hardelot is another well-known composer. Her song 'Because' has been pirated. These two ladies and the people dependent upon them get their whole income through their songs, and piracy has practically destroyed this.

"Let us look at this question from another point of view—the international. M. Messager, the French composer of Véronique and other well-known light operas, comes to London to superintend the production of his play. At the very door of the theatre where his play is being performed English thieves are selling the music they have stolen from him, and he has no redress. If an English composer found a French thief selling his music outside the door of a Paris theatre he would be able to have him immediately arrested and dealt with as an ordinary criminal. The case of America is even worse. The whole sale of the publications of Sousa, the well-known conductor, has been absolutely ruined in this country by piracy. An American song, copyright in America, being sung in pantomime, is sold at the doors of the theatre by pirates, and the American composer has no redress. An English composer in New York treated in the same way would be able to have the pirate arrested and tried by the ordinary law. In other words, we have made England the paradise of the music thieves against the music composer of every country in the world.

"The proportions reached by this trade are gigantic. Since the Act of 1902 the music publishers have seized between seven and eight million copies of pirated music. The irony of the situation is that the Act of 1902 was passed in the hope that it would put an end to this trouble. As a matter of fact, it has given it an enormous impetus. The number of copyrights infringed previous to the Act of 1902 was about fifty; the number has now increased to over four hundred, and is continually being added to. Mr. Caldwell insisted that the penalty clause should be excluded from the Bill. In the hope of getting rid of his opposition, and perhaps in the hope that the Act, though thus maimed, might be able to work, the promoters of the Bill consented to this change, and this is the result of Mr. Caldwell's tactics. The penalty proposed was 1s. a copy and 5s. a plate seized. But I need hardly say that such a penalty, which, if Mr. Caldwell had permitted it to pass at that time, might have put an end to the trade, is now quite insufficient in view of the gigantic profits in the pirate business.

"The objections to the Bill I can only describe as either unreasonable or irrelevant. It is objected that music is too expensive. The statement is not true. As to all classical music whose copyright is expired, music publishers now rival each other in producing cheap editions. You can get "The Messiah," "Elijah," or any other of the great classical oratorios for 1s., and the sonatas of Beethoven, or of any of the other great classical composers may be had in an excellent twopenny edition. So far as present-day music is concerned, cheapness does not save either the publisher or the composer. Take the case of Francis, Day, and Hunter. They publish most of their popular songs at 6d., but the pirate comes with his 2d. edition and robs them. Even the high-priced songs can be got in all shops at 1s. 4d. Two additional pieces of absurdity are added to arguments on this line. First, that there is a ring of music publishers keeping up prices; secondly, that this movement is organised by publishers without regard to the interests of composers. There is no such thing as a ring of publishers. On the contrary, the competition is keen, not to say relentless. Another proof of the hollowness of the statement about the dearness of music is forthcoming in a comparison of our prices with those on the Continent. Operettas published in France or Germany are never sold at less than 12s. In this country any one can be obtained for 4s. 6d.

"My Bill is mainly intended to strike at the hawker, though not because I think him the guiltiest person. I am not able to display the perverted sympathy of the opponents to the Bill for the thief instead of the composer; but, at the same time, this houseless and feckless kerbstone hawker appeals to me much more than the sleek thief behind him, who builds fine houses and acquires considerable property in the suburbs. But even the kerbstone trader cannot be permitted to live by robbing other people. He is the great agency through which this music is put upon the market, and if the law is made sufficiently strong to deal promptly with him, the whole nefarious traffic will come to an end. As the law stands, music publishers and composers have practically no remedy.

"How does the hawker know that the music is stolen? On every piece of pirated music there is what I may call 'the mark of the beast.' No piece of pirated music ever has upon it the name of a publisher or the imprint of a printer. Under my Bill the hawker will have exactly the same powers of proving his innocence as a man discovered in possession of a stolen watch or a woman in possession of a stolen brooch. If he has come by it innocently, he can go into the witness-box and prove it. If he declines to do so, the presumption that he is guilty is no more unfair in his case than in the case of the possessor of any other stolen goods. I know that the words of Clause 1 of the Bill—'Unless he proves that he acted innocently'—have excited some criticism and alarm, and they are said even to establish a new precedent. As a matter of fact, they do not create any precedent at all. They are a proviso recommended by the Report of the Musical Copyright Committee, appointed by the Home Department. I have appealed to the Home Department and to some of my legal friends as to whether I could safely leave these words out. If any legal ingenuity can give me words that will meet the objections as to proving innocence I will welcome it, provided that it does not destroy the Bill."

DANGEROUS PERFORMANCES.

The following is the text of "A Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the employment of girls, boys, or women in Dangerous Performances," which was introduced on Monday in the House of Commons, by MR. HERBERT SAMUEL (Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department):—

"Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

1.—(1) If any person causes a girl, boy, or woman to take part in any public exhibition or performance, and in the opinion of the court hearing the case, the life or limbs of the girl, boy, or woman, are endangered by the exhibition or performance, that person shall be liable on summary conviction for each offence to a fine not exceeding ten pounds, and, if the offence is committed in relation to a boy or girl, the parent, or guardian, or any person having the custody of the boy or girl shall also be liable to the like penalty.

(2) If, in the course of a public exhibition or performance, which is in its nature dangerous to the life or limb of a girl, boy, or woman, any accident causing actual bodily harm occurs to any such girl, boy, or woman, the employer of the girl, boy, or woman shall be liable to be indicted as having committed an assault; and the court before whom the employer is convicted on indictment shall have the power of awarding compensation for the bodily harm so occasioned not exceeding twenty pounds, to be paid by the employer to the girl, boy, or woman, or in the case of a boy or girl, if the court think fit, to some person named by the court on behalf of that boy or girl.

(3) For the purposes of this Act "a girl" means a female under the age of eighteen years, and "a boy" means a male under the age of sixteen years, and if an offence is alleged to have been committed under this Act in respect of any person alleged to be a boy or girl, and that person is in the opinion of the court hearing the case apparently a boy or girl within the meaning of the Act, it shall lie on the defendant to prove the contrary.

(4) A person shall not be liable to be punished under this section twice for the same offence.

2.—(1) Except where an accident causing actual bodily harm occurs to any girl, boy, or woman, no prosecution or other proceeding shall be instituted for an offence under this Act without the consent in writing of the chief officer of police of the police area in which the offence is committed.

(2) For the purposes of this section the expression "chief officer of police"—

(a) with respect to any place in England other than the City of London, has the meaning assigned to it by the Police Act, 1890;

(b) with respect to the City of London, means the Commissioners of City Police;

(c) with respect to Scotland, has the meaning assigned to it by the Police (Scotland) Act, 1890;

(d) with respect to Ireland, means in the police district of Dublin metropolis either of the Commissioners of Police for that district, and elsewhere the district inspector of the Royal Irish Constabulary.

3.—(1) The Acts mentioned in the First Part of the schedule to this Act (the Children's Dangerous Performances Act, 1879, and the Dangerous Performances Act, 1897) are hereby repealed.

(2) In order to bring the First Schedule to the Prevention of Cruelty to Children Act, 1904, into conformity with this Act, that Schedule shall be amended as shown in the Second Part of the Schedule to this Act.

4.—This Act may be cited as the Dangerous Performances Act, 1906.

GERMAN editors, on a visit to England, found their way on Saturday to Stratford-on-Avon, where they explored the treasure house of Shakespearean relics. The first pilgrimage was made to the Parish Church, where the visitors were shown the old register, open at entries of the baptism and burial of Shakespeare, and Herr Friedrich Dernburg, of the Berliner Tageblatt, the doyen of the party, laid on the poet's grave a huge wreath of laurel, tied by a silk ribbon of black, red, and yellow, the national colours of Germany. The veteran journalist declared they stood on holy ground. From time to time in the history of mankind there appeared men the greatness of whose genius brought to them godlike thoughts. Such a one was Shakespeare. Who could attempt adequately to praise him? He stood solitary and alone. He was the measure by which they might judge all other men and times. They were astonished that such a man could have existed. Germans were all educated in Shakespeare. To him they owed the renaissance of German culture. From him their classic authors had received inspiration. In Stratford, and by the side of that grave, they were not only friends and guests, but sons and comrades, and so they reverently bowed before this immortal."

THE party were afterwards entertained to luncheon by Alderman W. Pearce, the Mayor, among those present being Mr. Sidney Lee, chairman of the Trustees of Shakespeare's Birthplace, and Mr. F. R. Benson. One of the toasts was "The Immortal Memory of William Shakespeare," proposed by Mr. Lee. Nowhere, he ventured to think, ought Englishmen and Germans to grasp more warmly each other's hands than in that ancient borough, which owes its world-wide renown to its association with the greatest poet of all the world, Shakespeare—a link of gold between England and Germany. It was a singular fact that the best dictionary for interpreting the language of Shakespeare—and Shakespeare's language is his chiefest glory—should be due to the industry and insight of a German. A genius of the Shakespeare calibre may know little of the limitations of nationality, but Englishmen liked to remember that Shakespeare, as a matter of history, was one of us, was a native of that town of Stratford-on-Avon, who called his country

"This precious stone set in a silver sea,
This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England."

At the same time they rejoiced that other countries, and especially Germany, should love to honour our national poet; they rejoiced to do homage to Shakespeare's great memory in the companionship of so distinguished a body of German guests as was there assembled.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—Your correspondent of Birmingham says "'Kijoto' is a mysterious Japanese juggler and comedian."—It should have been, yours faithfully, KYOTO, the Original One.

A LETTER from Dundalk simply bearing a representation of a corned beef tin in place of address, with the words "The Canner, care of the Packers, London," was forwarded on Thursday by the Post Office authorities to Messrs. Francis and Day's, and proved to be a request for a professional copy of the firm's new song "In Chicago." The number will be heard on Monday night at a foremost West-End hall.

THE well-known "coon" singer, Mr. Billy Hobbs, will, at an early date, specially "feature" two of the Monte Carlo Publishing Company's "Sixpenny Successes," viz., "Good'bye, Mr. Williams," by Arthurs and Van Dixie; and "Try an' find another coon," by Paulton and Mellor.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

MR. HARRY RICKARDS will present the prizes at the Music Hall Sports on Thursday, July 12, at Stamford Bridge Grounds, Fulham. The popular Australian entrepreneur has also given a very handsome silver cup to be competed for.

THE Dangerous Performances Bill introduced in the House of Commons on Monday, on behalf of the Home Office, by Mr. Herbert Samuel, to consolidate and amend the law relating to the employment of girls, boys, or women in dangerous performances, will have to be drastically amended, if in future we are to enjoy gymnastic, acrobatic, or equestrian shows.

THE Bill makes no attempt at giving a definition of a dangerous performance. That seems to be left to the intelligence of an ordinary constable, who may pay a chance visit to a variety theatre. The full text of the Bill will be found on page 17, and we invite the opinions of our readers who are in any way connected, either as trainers or performers, with the acrobatic or equestrian professions, who should be on the alert to guard themselves against a measure that, if passed in its present form, threatens them with extinction.

MR. HARRY RANDALL, with his family, went on Monday to Margate, where he will spend a well-earned holiday. He has, however, accepted special engagements at "flying matinées" and evening performances at Harrogate, Buxton, Bournemouth, and Folkestone, and at the August Bank Holiday he will open a the Hippodrome, Margate. Just a few weeks after he will be busy rehearsing for another Drury Lane pantomime, the subject this year being Sinbad the Sailor, in which Mr. Randall will be again associated with Mr. Harry Fragson and Miss May de Sousa.

MISS CISSIE LOFTUS and Mr. Maurice Farkoa have been booked for America by Messrs. Somers and Warner. Miss Loftus is no stranger to audiences in the States, where she has won triumphs both on the legitimate and vaudeville stages. London audiences have recently been delighted with her performance of Peter Pan at the Duke of York's. It was while acting in America that Cissie was chosen by the lamented Sir Henry Irving to play the part of Marguerite in his last revival of Faust at the Lyceum. Both Miss Loftus and Mr. Farkoa will appear in musical comedy in December.

"THE LADY BANKRUPT" is a new musical sketch by Owen Hall, author of the book of The Geisha and other successful productions of Mr. George Edwardes' at Daly's and elsewhere. The music is by Frank Tours. When it is produced at the Oxford on Monday the title-part will be sustained by Miss Elsie Molloy, who has gained considerable notoriety by the exhibition of her portrait as "The Cherry Girl," by St. John Hare, this year at the Royal Academy.

MR. FRED TRUSSELL, the esteemed manager of the London Hippodrome, was paid a very graceful compliment on Wednesday by the directors, who informed him that his salary would be very considerably increased immediately, in recognition of his valuable services. It may be mentioned that since Mr. Trussell joined the Hippodrome five years ago, his yeoman services have very materially helped to mutually benefit all concerned.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE CHIRGWIN'S garden party at his pretty suburban home at Streatham went off very successfully on Sunday. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Elvin, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tate, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Elen, Mr. and Mrs. Wal Pink, Barton and Ashley, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Conway, Mr. and Mrs. Alf Plotto, Mr. George Jackley, Miss Peggy Pryde, Mr. J. B. Johnson, Mr. Ted Manseyh. Mr. Wal Pink won the billiard match, and was presented with a handsome (?) silver cup. The garden of Easdale was very prettily illuminated, and the guests had a sumptuous time.

AN unknown admirer of Miss Vesta Victoria, has, through Mr. F. A. G. Haynes, solicitor, of Carey-street, made an offer of marriage with the prospect of a settlement in her favour of a fortune of £25,000. Miss Victoria has refused not only the offer but the proposal for an interview.

THE fine rendering of Murphy and Lipton's "Do a good turn when you're able" has placed that song in the forefront of the successful ditties of the time, and Mr. David Day's firm have received extensive orders for copies from every town at which the gifted artist has sung it. It will be sung by her on Monday at the Oxford, together with a pretty number, entitled "Sympathy," by Messrs. Kendis and Paley.

IN our advertisement columns appears a challenge from J. F. Stirling, of Stirling and Cashen, to dance anyone for a £20 belt and the championship. The proceeds of the match will be handed to the Music Hall Benevolent Fund. Communications to Richard Cass's agency.

THE Terriers are making some important changes. Their registered office is now at 4, Kennington-road, S.E., and on and after July 6 the committee meeting of the fraternity will be transferred to the "Three Stags," 69, Kennington-road.

MISS CORA CORINA, the clever and attractive Anglo-Spanish singer and dancer, who has been appearing successfully at the Empire, Johannesburg, and the Tivoli, Cape Town, will arrive in London about the end of July. Her business is in the hands of the well-known agent Mr. Fred Higham.

MR. WILLIAM PAYNE, having just resigned his position as manager and treasurer of the People's Palace, Tottenham, after five years' service, will take a complimentary benefit on Monday, July 16, at the Holcombe Hall, High-road, Tottenham.

MR. FRANK LAWTON, the whistler, who played the mixed ale pugilist at the Shaftesbury Theatre in the first London production of The Belle of New York, is the proud father of a daughter, born on the 22nd. Mother and child are doing excellently well.

MR. BOB HUTT, who produced his new musical sketch Welcome Home at the Empress, Brixton, last week, in recognition of the way the music was played, at the conclusion of his performance presented Mr. Robert Allington, the musical-director, with a silver-mounted bâton.

BY an ingenious cooling apparatus, the canopy above the sliding roof of Holloway Empire renders that house one of the coolest in North London at the present time.

TO-DAY (Saturday) Messrs. Francis, Day and Hunter's business premises will be entirely closed for the annual staff outing, when it is expected and hoped that Mr. David Day and Mr. William Francis will be the guests of the personnel of the two establishments. Reserved corridor coaches will be attached to the 9.35 a.m. train from Waterloo (north station), and the large party on arriving at Staines will embark on the launch Diamond Queen. Dinner will be partaken of at Tull's Restaurant at Windsor, opposite the Curfew Tower, and at 3 p.m. the party will again embark and proceed up the river as far as traffic and circumstances will permit, tea being served on the launch. Mr. "Sixpenny Pops" Smith is the chairman of the day, and Mr. William Ryke the vice-chairman.

GREAT regret has been occasioned by the announcement that Mr. Sydney Paxton, resident-manager of the Grand Theatre, and district-manager of the Hippodrome, Southampton, is severing his connection with these enterprises in September. During his residence in Southampton Mr. Paxton has secured the esteem and regard not only of the local playgoers but of a much larger circle of the townspeople, including very many of the public men and prominent residents. Clever and courteous, generous and genial, Mr. Paxton will doubtless experience no difficulty in securing a popularity such as he has gained here in whatever town he may go to.

THE shareholders of the Pavilion Theatre, Newcastle-on-Tyne, held their annual meeting on Tuesday afternoon, when the chairman, Mr. Hugh Astley, was in the happy position of stating that as the result of last year's working the company had been enabled to pay off £2,083 12s. 5d. lost last year, and declare a dividend of 5 per cent. on the ordinary shares The company, he said, was now in a prosperous condition, and to prove that the theatre was popular he mentioned that 698,000 people visited it during the year. For this pleasing state of affairs Mr. Astley complimented the popular manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman, on the successful and tactful manner in which he had conducted the theatre.

THE first annual picnic of the Glasgow Coliseum staff on Sunday resulted in a most enjoyable day being spent at Balloch. After dinner the only toast of the outing—"Moss's Empires"—was proposed by Mr. J. Rogers, stage manager, Mr. McLachlan, the manager of the Coliseum, replying. Boating parties were organised, and the sail up Loch Lomond was greatly enjoyed by the voyagers.

MESSRS. O'MALLEY AND BROWN have been engaged for pantomime at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, through Blackmore's Agency. They were specially recommended by Mr. Johnny Danvers, who will also play in the same pantomime, having been kindly lent by Mr. Arthur Collins. Mr. Danvers returns to Drury-lane the following season. The subject at the Shakespeare, Liverpool, next season will be Mother Goose, and Messrs. Danvers and O'Malley and Brown will play three important parts. Messrs. O'Malley and Brown have also been engaged by Mr. Oswald Stoll for all the Moss and Stoll tour owing to their recent success at the Coliseum, Glasgow. Mr. Will Oliver has become their representative.

MR. WALTER SMITH, the resident-manager of the Eastbourne Hippodrome, had a most successful benefit on Friday evening, the 22nd inst. A fine array of talent was offered to the excellent houses and included Miss Lily Burnand, Miss May Henderson, and Mr. Russel Wallet. During the second performance Mr. Goodson appeared upon the stage, and after speaking of the courtesy and ability with which the manager had carried out his duties, he presented Mr. Smith with a purse containing £25, and a handsome marble clock. The purse was subscribed by the patrons of the Hippodrome and the clock was given by the members of the staff. Mr. Smith, who was most cordially received, heartily thanked all those who had in any way taken part in providing the substantial presents, and also those who had assisted in making the benefit such an unqualified success.

MR. CHARLES PERRY, of the Happy Valley Minstrels Llandudno, writes:—"In your paragraphs of last week's issue you say that Wm. J. Churchill (in conjunction with the late Alf. Allen) 'made' the Happy Valley here. This I beg to contradict, as every resident or frequent visitor will acknowledge that the late Joe Perry is the man that made the Happy Valley entertainments so popular, and, instead of Billy Churchill 'making' the place, the Happy Valley made him."

A MILD sensation was caused at the Palace Theatre, Sunderland, on Monday night, by an accident in connection with a cycle act described as "The Globe of Life." This is a performance in which two cyclists go round a wire globe. During its progress in the "first house" the tyre of the machine of one of the performers, a lady, was punctured, and her partner collided with her. They both fell to bottom of the cage-like apparatus. The audience were momentarily alarmed, but it was soon found that neither of the performers was hurt, and the management announced that, after repairs to the lady's bicycle, the performance would be duly repeated at the "second house."

MR. BEN DE FRECE, who is extremely popular with the employees of the Colchester Hippodrome, was the recipient on Saturday last of some handsome presents on the occasion of his birthday, the orchestra, stage, and bar staffs presenting him with a handsome gold chain and a silver match-case, the latter being suitably engraved. Many telegrams were also received from old and new friends, besides numerous presents both from within and without the profession.

MANY and anxious inquiries were made after Miss Cissie Curlette's health on Saturday last at the Palace, Southampton, after her breakdown in her farmyard song, owing, it is thought, to the heat, which was most intense. Happily Miss Curlette was able to appear in the second house, and had a rousing reception.

ANTHONY, illusionist, has just returned from the provinces, after successful engagements with Messrs. Barrasford, De Frece, Wilmott, &c., and has signed for the Alhambra, Paris, with Mr. Barasford. As this gentleman speaks several languages he should just tickle Paris audiences with his extremely funny patter and clever leger-demain.

MR. E. C. CLAYTON, of 276, Western Bank, Sheffield, concludes to-night (Saturday) an engagement as cinematograph exhibitor at the Palace Theatre of Varieties, Attercliffe, extending from last August Bank Holiday without a break. Mr. Clayton's selections of pictures each week, which have included the latest and best films, both interesting and humorous, have proved so popular and given so much satisfaction, both to public and management, that Mr. T. Allan Edwardes has re-engaged him for his next season, which commences on Monday, August 6.

MISS ALICE MAY is still winning enthusiastic public favour on her successful provincial tour by her remarkable performance in her sketch Tranquillity. Lately at Manchester she has been highly complimented by the Press.

MR. HARRY NATION'S company at Herne Bay has certainly come to stay, judging by the crowds that listen to their performances nightly. Each performer is already very popular, and Miss Hettie Lee and Miss Alice Coates are constantly in receipt of bouquets.

MR. CHARLES EVANS, who, by the way, has just passed another anniversary as general-manager to Lord George Sanger at the Hall-by-the-Sea, Margate, again opens the doors of that popular resort for the summer season on Monday. He and the veteran showman have been busy for some weeks with an army of men redecorating the entire establishment in a manner which is almost beyond describing. The magnificent ballroom is, in fact, now a palace of gold, and the lavish way in which the whole structure has been adorned makes it one of the most gorgeous buildings in the country. We are sure that Lord George and his able manager can look forward to a most successful season.

THE directors of the Palace Theatre state that there is no truth in the report that the theatre will be closed for several weeks, or for any period, this year in order to carry out the requirements of the London County Council. As a matter of fact, many of these have already been complied with, others are in hand, and the remainder are having the careful consideration of the directors. The Palace Theatre, by the way, has no less than seven exits from the stalls level alone, and the numerous staircases communicating direct with the street are six feet wide.

MR. JOSEPH WILSON has secured Mr. Harry Fragson for the Tivoli, the Anglo-French comedian having signed a contract to appear there on Monday week. It is interesting to note that it is Mr. Fragson's first appearance on the English variety stage, and at the popular Tivoli he should prove a big success. Mr. Fragson will sing songs at the piano.

MR. EDGAR BUDDEN was married on Wednesday to Miss Millie Denham at St. John's Church, Broadway, Stratford, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Alexander Mansfield, who delivered from the altar an excellent exhortation to the young couple. The numerous handsome presents included a handsome travelling-case from the bridegroom's mother, a dining-room suite from Mr. and Mrs. Bradley, and from the best man, Mr. Pat Carey, a handsome diamond and sapphire pin and set of carvers.

THERE were present at the wedding breakfast, which was given by the bridegroom's mother at The Laurels, East Molesey, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Draper, Mr. and Mrs. Marhoff, Mr. and Mrs. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Clibbery, Mrs. Barnes (bride's mother), Mr. Charles Langridge, Mr. Tom Drury, Aunty Florry, and Mr. Pat Carey. Everything was thoroughly enjoyed, and the young couple departed to Yarmouth with the good wishes from everybody for their welfare and future happiness. The company was entertained afterwards to lunch, and the evening concluded with a concert and dance on the lawn, everyone going home well pleased that they had been at such an enjoyable and happy function.

"BERTIE'S ADVENTURE," a new farcical sketch by Stewart D. Wright, received a favourable introduction to a London audience at the Middlesex on Saturday. The new playlet, the scene of which is laid at a seaside hotel, teems with funny situations, and was smartly presented by Messrs. Holmes and Wright's company, consisting of Mr. Edward Morgan, Mr. A. T. Henden, Mr. E. H. Dobell, and Miss Cecile Egerton. The excellence of the sketch was fully appreciated, and it is being booked by leading agents.

MR. BERTRAM ROSS has been appointed manager of the Duchess Palace, Balham, in succession to Mr George Wilson, who has gone to the Islington Empire. Mr. Ross's promotion has been rapid. Serving for a short period under Mr. Walter Gibbons at Croydon, he was subsequently made acting-manager of the Duchess, and, after a few weeks in that capacity, succeeded to the post which he now holds. The new manager has youth, enthusiasm, and a capacity for hard work, and is a strict teetotaller.

MISS CONSTANCE MOXON will shortly produce at the Chelsea Palace an original musical monologue, entitled A Toff for Ten Minutes, written by Edgar Bateman. A special song, entitled "On the day when I was 'busking' on the Beach" has been written for the trifle. Mr. Harry Randall has secured all rights of this writer's comic song, "The garden outside in," and will himself compose the melody, as he did in the instance of the songs from the same pen, entitled "That interfering Marm downstairs," "It's a wonder I'm alive to tell the tale," "There isn't many wives like mine," and "Lightning results."

MISS CORA DUNCAN and Mr. Albert Brasque will shortly produce in London a new light comedy-sketch, specially written for them by Mr. William P. Sheen, author of many well-known plays and sketches. Miss Duncan will introduce a bright number, the music of which is being written by Mr. Tom Kent. The sketch bears the striking title, Dare I Marry? or, The Painter and the Pro.

A MEMORIAL stone has been erected to Walter Howard in East Ham churchyard to perpetuate the memory of one who lightened the burdens of life in so many thousands who witnessed his performances. The expenses have been met by a portion of the fund that a generous public subscribed to render the closing days of the minstrel comedian peaceful and happy. The Rev. W. E. Reginald Morrow, vicar of North Woolwich, was the prime mover in the raising of this fund.

THE 469th meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association was held on Tuesday, when Harry Blake was voted to the chair. There were also present Messrs. Geo. Booker, Charles Coborn, Charles Gardiner, Fred Herbert, Fred Neiman, Joe O'Gorman, George Preston, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). Minutes of the previous meeting were read and passed, and questions arising out of them settled. A letter was read from Mr. G. W. Gerald, the recently-elected agent of the Association in Paris, stating that he was endeavouring to arrange a concession on the part of various railways in the French capital. The secretary's financial statement for the week ending June 23, showing the addition of fifty-five new members, the receipt of £43 16s. 6d. and the expenditure of £17 7s. 1½d., was read and passed.

ONE of the most sensational crimes of modern times was reported on Tuesday from New York. Mr. Harry Thaw, a millionaire, and brother of the Countess of Yarmouth, shot dead Mr. Stanford White, also a millionaire, and a well-known architect. The murder was committed in the Madison-square Roof-garden Theatre, a building designed by the unfortunate victim of revenge. Mr. Thaw accused Mr. White of having wronged his wife, who, before her marriage, was Miss Florence Nesbit, a famous stage beauty of New York.

So great is the popularity of the present programme at the Empire that it will not be changed to any great extent for some time to come. Two turns of minor importance will be added to the bill on Monday in the Kremkas (comedy acrobats) and Paulton and Dooley (trick cyclists), who are old favourites at this house. Novelty is the keynote of the biograph pictures, the latest being the scenes at the coronation of King Haakon and Ascot Sunday on the river. All who were in or near Boulter's Lock on that particular afternoon should see these photographic records, as the portraits of some of those present are excellent.

MISS LENA VERDI is having a long and successful tour. Her admirers will welcome her return to London in August, when she reappears in the West End.

AT the Westminster Police-court on Friday, Edward Stebbing and Alfred Crew were before the magistrate on a remanded charge of stealing 30s. from Mr. Gunby Hadath, the popular song-writer, of Chichele-road, Cricklewood, who wrote the words of the well-known ballad, "Down the Vale." Mr. Hadath was reluctant to charge the prisoners, and said that if they were hard up he would let "the poor devils" go, and give them a sovereign each. For some five years Crew has kept out of trouble, and he was sentenced to seven weeks' hard labour. Stebbing was ordered to undergo six months' hard labour.

THE marriage of Mr. A. E. Maskelyne and Miss Cassie Bruce was celebrated at Holy Trinity Church, Marylebone, on Wednesday afternoon, the reception being afterwards held at St. George's Hall. The bride, who was given away by her uncle, Mr. Elton, looked very pretty in a simple white silk dress, with lace insertion, trimmed with orange blossom and white heather (her national flower), and a wreath of the same, her only ornament being an amethyst necklace and pendant, the gift of her aunt, Miss Kathleen Bruce, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies. The two bridesmaids, Miss Maud Bruce and Miss Olive Elton (sister and cousin of the bride), wore pale pink dresses, painted chiffon picture hats of the same delicate tint, and carried bouquets of pink and white flowers. The bridegroom presented them each with a gold chain and pendant composed of pearls and amethysts—the latter being the bride's birth stone.

A LARGE number of guests were received at St. George's Hall by Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Maskelyne. Lunch was served on the stage, charmingly decorated with garlands of flowers, sparkling with electric lights, the tables being festooned with wreaths of smilax. Mr. David Devant proposed the health of the bride and bridegroom in a most amusing speech, introducing the titles of the various sketches in which Miss Cassie Bruce has appeared since she joined the company. Later in the afternoon, after the wedding party had been photographed and the bride had cut the cake, an impromptu minstrel show was given, when Mr. Barclay Gammon, the clever musical sketch artist, acted as chairman, with Mr. David Devant and Mr. Morehen as cornermen.

A RHYMING alphabet was the feature of this unexpected entertainment, in which Mr. Gammon paid happy compliments to the young couple, and convulsed his audience with some excruciatingly bad—and consequently very good—puns on "Maskelyne," "medium," and "Colley." The wedding presents, which were displayed in one of the private rooms at the top of the building—to which Mr. Devant acted as guide—numbered over a hundred. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. "Archie" Maskelyne left London to spend their honeymoon in Paris. In three weeks time they join the company on tour. It is good news to hear that Miss Cassie Bruce, who is such a dainty little actress, does not intend to leave the stage.

MLLE. BORDEVERRY, who will appear at the Palace Theatre on Monday evening in a novel and daring shooting act, is the daughter of "Colonel" Bordeverry, the French crack rifle shot who made such a success at the Hippodrome and the Alhambra a while ago. Mlle. Bordeverry, who has been trained by her father, is young, pretty, and wears most effective costumes and jewels on the stage.

MR. EDMOND BOSANQUET, we regret to hear, is severely indisposed. On Saturday he saw Dr. Sheen, of Ramsgate, who pronounced him to be suffering from neurasthenia, and ordered him to take a month's rest. This enforced idleness is most unfortunate for the well-known virtuoso, who was working up a new show.

MISS MARIE LLOYD has, this week, accepted from the author and composer of her highly-popular Tivoli success, "That's the custom of the country," Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate, a special new number, to be produced at an early date, which has been tentatively christened "Boots."

ONE of the most popular songs with seaside entertainers just now is Messrs. Bert Delmar's and George Burton's stirring new march-song, "The Zing Ja-va-va Band" (a pantomime "certainty" this year), which is issued by the Monte Carlo Publishing Company in their popular "Sixpenny Successes," and is in great demand with pierrot troupes needing an effective "finale" song.

MR. HERBERT SHELLEY has received offers to appear as "Dan, the Outlaw," in South Africa, Australia, and America.

MR. GEORGE ADNEY PAYNE is having a delightful time at Marienbad with Mr. Emmanuel Warner, of the firm of Somers and Warner, dramatic and variety agents.

MR. GEORGE GULLIVER, ventriloquist, is returning from a long tour, in which he has fulfilled engagements at Gibraltar, Malta, Egypt, and India. In India he has appeared at all the principal European stations, and all round has had exceptional success and some stirring experiences. He left Bombay on June 14 by the Messageries steamer La Nerà, and, travelling viâ Marseilles, Dieppe, and Newhaven, expects to arrive in London to-morrow (Sunday).

MR. J. W. ROWLEY has made an immense hit at Halifax and other provincial towns with the Monte Carlo Publishing Company's Irish "gem," entitled "Widow Doolin," written and composed by J. F. Lambe; and this tuneful song is also being nightly featured by Messrs. Walter Munroe, Pat Carey, and "Billy" Ashcroft.

THE latest quotations of Music Hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1¾; Canterbury, 1; Empire (15s. pd), 1¼; Do. (10s. pd), 1⅛; London Pav. O., 3⅞; Do. Pref., 4⅜; Lon. Coliseum, ⅛; Metropolitan, ⅞, Moss Empire, 4⅜; Do. Pref., 4; Oxford, 6⅜; Palace, ⅛; Tivoli, 6; Var. Cons. Theas., 13s.

WE regret to announce that Mr. Kennedy Johnson, late assistant manager at the Hackney Empire, is still detained at the Victoria Park Hospital.

A NEW sketch, written by Mr. Forbes Dawson, was tried last Sunday evening at the Walsingham Club, and in consequence of its success will shortly see the light in the music halls. It is called The Midnight.

YVONNE, the beautiful Irish girl and American favourite, in her speciality, "Tabloid Turns," will shortly be seen at one of the West End Halls through the agency of Mr. Harry Leamar, of 157, Strand.

THE following artists sailed from Southampton on Saturday per the Kenilworth Castle to fulfil engagements in South Africa—The Maples, Phil and Nettie Peters, Dan Paulton, Rose Sylvester, and Hagedorn's Wonderful Grotto. Among the artists who arrived home on the same day were Douglas and Ford, Pierce and Maizie, and Mooney and Holbein.

MR. DAN THOMAS returns to town on Monday for two months to fulfil engagements on Payne and Walter Gibbons's suburban circuits.

MR. TOM FANCOURT AND MISS JENNIE RUBIE produced last week, at the Palace Theatre, Bristol, their new musical comedy duologue Nursery Pets, which proved a big success.

MR. BENNETT SCOTT writes:—"My attention has been called to a paragraph in your issue of June 9 last to the effect that Miss Marie Lloyd had not sung any but the late Geo. Le Brunn's music during the past fifteen years. On the contrary, she has sung many songs composed for her by (among others) Messrs. E. W. Rogers, Joseph Tabrar, Orlando Powell, George Rollitt, and Albert Perry; whilst, with all due modesty, I may personally confess to having composed at least half-a-dozen successes for our Queen of Comedy."

THE London Coliseum closed its doors on Saturday night with the possibility of reopening in October. The members of the company went gaily through the Revue, which was embellished by much impromptu dialogue and fun, in good spirits. Ringing cheers were given for some of the managers.

MR. FITZROY GARDNER, assistant-manager of the Palace Theatre of Varieties, applied on Monday to Mr. Kennedy, at the Marlborough-street Police-court, for licences to permit three little German children, two girls and a boy, to take part in the Colberg Family of Child Musicians. The licences were granted for one.

MR. BARRINGTON MATTHEWS, on behalf of the Palace Theatre, renewed the application at Marlborough-street on Tuesday with respect to the performance of some child artists belonging to the Colberg family. Mr. Matthews explained that two of the children—the girls—were thirteen and the boy twelve, and therefore they could perform without licences up till nine o'clock, the licence being required in order that the "turn" might be put on at an hour when a fashionable audience were in attendance—9.30 to 10. The licences, as granted on Monday, only covered that one evening until past nine. The children, though pale, were healthy, and the Palace management would not countenance the performance in any other circumstances. The police were present on Monday evening at the performance. Mr. Kennedy: A very sensible idea. If I could have gone myself I would have done so, as there is nothing like seeing. The licences were extended until 10 p.m.

MISS CARLOTTA DE YONSON produced a new sketch, entitled Crime and the Criminal, at the Pavilion, Leicester, on Monday. The author is Mr. C. Douglass Carlile, who has written several successful little dramas for the music hall stage. In Crime and the Criminal Miss de Yonson plays the part of the heroine, Muriel Belmore.

ONE of the most interesting and attractive features of the programme at the Islington Empire this week is the appearance of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lucas in scenes from Charles Dickens's novel "Martin Chuzzlewit." In the first scene, a rural one, with village church and burial ground in the distance, Mr. Lucas appears first as old Chuzzlewit, attired in the quaint garb of a bygone age, and Mrs. Lucas as Mercy Pecksniff. The miser warns the girl against making an unhappy marriage, but she only laughs at his words, and encourages the hopes of Jonas Chuzzlewit. In the second scene, when the curtain rises Mercy is found awaiting the return home of her husband Jonas, who presently makes his appearance in a drunken condition. The vileness of the man's character is revealed by his brutal treatment of his young wife, who bitterly regrets she did not heed old Chuzzlewit's advice. Mrs. Lucas cleverly contrasts the merry laughing girl of the first scene and the wretched wife of Jonas, who, in his drunken rage, savagely throws her to the ground. Old Chuzzlewit and the brutal Jonas are excellently played by Mr. Lucas.

IT is interesting to note that the first dramatic version of Martin Chuzzlewit, by Edward Stirling, was produced at the Lyceum Theatre on July 8, 1844, with Mr. Sam Emery as Jonas, Mr. Drinkwater Meadows as Tom Pinch—an admirable performance—and Miss Woolgar as Mercy. Another and less satisfactory version of the novel was produced at the Olympic Theatre on March 2, 1868, when the late Miss Nellie Farren gave a merry impersonation of the boy Bailey, Mr. John Clarke appeared as Sairey Gamp, and Mrs. Lennox Grey as Mercy Pecksniff.

MR. AND MRS. LUCAS concluded their entertainment by representing the well-known scene from "Bleak House," where poor Joe, the crossing-sweeper, dies in the presence of the kind friend, who gets him to repeat the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Lucas presented a touching and pathetic picture of the consumptive lad, with the hacking cough, who has suffered so much until at length his troubled life is brought to a sudden but peaceful close. At each performance the scenes from Dickens have been greeted with hearty applause.

MISS BILLIE BURKE has had the misfortune to lose rings to the value of nearly £1,000, which, she says, disappeared during the nine o'clock performance of the Revue at the Coliseum on the 22nd inst. These rings, nine in number, were in the case when she left the dressing-room for the stage, and the door of the room was locked. A diamond necklace and two brooches, which were also in the case, were left. "People will say that an actress robbed of her jewellery is an old story," said Miss Burke; "but that does not affect the loss or make it less. My property has gone, and I am badly upset, for most of these rings were mine since I was a child."

THE "Urbanora" exhibition of animated pictures at the Alhambra includes, during this week and next, some superb scenes of the coronation of King Haakon, at Trondhjem, and a complete record of the rehearsal of Warwick's historic pageant. Favoured by ideal weather conditions and exceptional privileges in the choice of positions, Mr. Urban has secured some truly remarkable pictures.

FRED AND LILLIE MONCKTON, who have won success in the provinces with their successful musical comedy duologues, A Woman's Curiosity and The Lady and the Burglar, are producing on August 6 a new and original comedy act, by Lawrence Berg, entitled The Lady Dentist.

MISS MARGUERITE BROADFOOTE will produce immediately Mr. John F. Lambe's tuneful song, "My Queen of Old Samara," published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Company in their "Sixpenny Successes" series, and considers that it will fit her like the proverbial glove.

MISS MARIE LOFTUS' success this week is great at the Bordesley Palace, where, it appears, writes our Birmingham correspondent, audiences cannot have too much of her, and as the brilliant commedienne is just now in extraordinary good form, this is excellent for all parties. Both in the merit and duration of her turn Miss Loftus is a fair miracle; she runs the gamut of the arts with ease and looks as radiant as ever, while her voice is singularly free from traces of fatigue. Much as this accomplished artist has done in the past, it is the present with which were are so specially and pleasantly concerned, and we commend—in its present form—"Singers, past and present," as one of the brightest and best studies ever submitted even by Marie Loftus, both in the opportunities it affords and the treatment thereof.

"MARKSMEN ALL!" is the title of a well-written song, the inspiriting words being by T. F. Ridgwell, and the broad, flowing melody by Frank Peskett. The number has received the warm commendation of Lord Roberts, who rightly believes that if we are to keep our Empire intact every able-bodied man should learn to shoot straight.

EARL ROBERTS has authorised the publishers, Messrs. Enoch and Sons, of Great Marlborough-street, to issue the song for the purpose of helping to establish a fund for the encouragement of rifle-shooting throughout the country. Every purchaser of a copy—issued at 1s. net—in the United Kingdom gives sixpence towards the fund. "Marksmen All!" should be well worth the attention of variety vocalists.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE EMPIRE.

The endeavour to acclimatise the revue has met with more success at the Empire than at other houses we could name, and Venus, 1906, the production by Mr. George Grossmith, jun., has followed the fashion set by musical plays at the theatres, and passed into a second edition. With "the Gibson girl" in the cast, it was of course inevitable that some reference should be made to the recent decision of the Courts against the Vaudeville management, and there is another quite up-to-date allusion at the end of the amusing trifle, when a gigantic property can is filled with all sorts of rubbish by the employees of the "prehistoric beef trust," the mixture being labelled "heavenly tinned beef." It was a wise move also to endow Miss Sybil Arundale with another song or two. This bright and attractive "principal boy" makes a hit in skirts as the "Don't go" girl, who appeals to well-placed admirers in the stalls, balcony, and circle—mostly of the male persuasion. "What price me?" answers the gentleman in the balcony to Miss Arundale's earnest entreaty for a sweetheart. The rejoinder is similar to that of the "artless" little Scotch girl in W. S. Gilbert's comedy, Engaged—"What is your income?" "Five thousand pounds a year." "Don't go, please," sings the attractive Sybil, who joins her "audience" in a final and harmonious rendering of the refrain. The music of the number is by H. E. Haines, and the lyrics by Charles H. Taylor, these two gentlemen being associated with the Lyric production last year of The Talk of the Town. Mr. George Gregory, who has succeeded Mr. W. H. Berry—now in the opera of See-See at the Prince of Wales's—has won considerable reputation in what may be termed Edmund Payne parts. He gives free rein to a decided gift for humour in the part of the judge, and is most amusing in a travesty of a principal boy in pantomime, the drollery of the number being added to considerably by a chorus of males in petticoats. Some whimsical business with property animals, dating from the pleiocene or other antediluvian period, adds to the success of the last scene. Miss Daisy Cordell is a fascinating Venus—a somewhat trying part. Miss Elizabeth Firth realises all the traditional smartness of the Gibson girl; Mr. T. Tremayne's Vulcan is effective; and Mr. Harry Grattan's fine sense of parody is put to good uses in his varying efforts as the professor, Mr. Onions, Jane Cakebread, and Mr. Nelson, R.N.V. As the modern representative of the hero of Trafalgar he is joined at the base of the Nelson column by a coquettish representative of La Belle France, the two realising the entente cordiale, which is reflected in the music given under the skilful direction of Mr. Cuthbert Clark.

Mr. Ludwig Amann in his many admirable impersonations had also a thought for the entente, when he imported into his gallery of celebrities M. Delcassé, until lately the French Minister for Foreign Affairs. The Kaiser and King Edward VII. are other opportune and heartily-welcomed introductions. Mr. Arthur Prince, who is termed on the bill "the world's greatest ventriloquist," is about to depart for America to sustain that title, which he certainly does something to justify by his excellent phonic work with Jim, the cabin-boy. Mr. Morris Cronin and troupe bombard us with surprises in the way of club juggling, the head of the crowd, which includes a couple of capital juggling comedians, being a performer of remarkable ability, who has gained in expertness since we saw him years since at the Alhambra. The Australian Ladies' Quartet sing concerted versions of Balfe's "Killarney" and the late Sir Arthur Sullivan's "The Lost Chord," and are responsible for a good ensemble and excellent forte and piano effects. The only thing lacking in their singing is tone colour.

The delightful ballet, Coppélia, enables us to see the winsome Adeline Genée at her very best as Swanilda, the village girl, whose rival in the affections of Franz, her sweetheart, is the doll, a masterpiece of mechanism by the old toy-maker. In the second scene the Danish prima donna assoluta shows what a consummate actress she is by her danse à la poupée, in which she has most artistic assistance from Mr. Fred Farren, who plays Coppelius, the eccentric genius, with rare ability. Mr. P. Sundberg and Miss Elise Clerc score most unmistakably in their pas comique; and in the pretty mazurka, the bold and dashing csárdás, and the divertissement on a Slav theme, with variations, are found "numbers" which are admirable alike in conception, composition, and execution. The ballet is admirably conducted by Mr. Glaser. Other turns in Mr. Harry Hitchens's excellent programme are the Biograph, the Brothers Martine, and that clever and droll monologuist, Mr. R. H. Douglass.

THE TIVOLI.

American turns are not so much in evidence at the Tivoli as at other variety theatres we might name; but there are at least two artists claiming the States across the streak as their birthplace who are among those adding to the variety of the bill that is being presented to crowded audiences by Mr. Joseph Wilson. The later comer of the two is John Ford, who has arrived on these shores to show us the way that the "American champion" dances. It may not be quite clear, but John claims the title quoted, and seemingly does all that is in the power of man to justify his assumption. We have seen nothing so wonderful as his pedal dexterity since we watched Dan Leno, wearing a big silver belt, accomplishing an intricate step-dance at the Oxford in 1884. The great little comedian, who in his day was the best dancer who ever wore clogs, did not take things quite so seriously as Mr. Ford, nor did he require a stage attendant to take from him his cloak and gloves—a piece of affectation that does not in the least impress an English audience. Miss Edith Helena, also from America, has some phenomenally high notes, which she displays in the ballad "Comin' thro' the rye" and in the intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana; but her rendering of the garden scene from Faust, in which she sings "The King of Thule" and "The Jewel Song," leaves something to be desired in point of finish and intonation.

The comic element in the bill is agreeably prominent when Mr. Gus Elen takes the stage as the "big loafer"—not in this instance a member of the Labour Party, but one of the fraternity entitled the Sons of Rest. He doesn't become footsore in his search for a job, his "argyment" being "if yer can't get work, yer can't get the sack." Since we first saw the coster comedian in this very amusing novelty he has added much "business," and his burlesque interlude is decidedly one of the best things in the programme. Mr. Wilkie Bard's return to the Tivoli synchronises with the introduction of a song, "Let me sing," which should be heard everywhere. Here, again, we have droll business which adds vastly to the whimsical nature of the number. Mr. Bard, after a dispute with a stage fireman, craves the assistance in the refrain of a choir-boy among the audience. From the "circle" comes the cheery voice of a gentleman with a flowing white beard, who, in the last verse, joins the comedian in the sort of harmony known, we believe, as "gipsy seconds," which should be a primary cause of trouble in any family of which the members possess a musical ear. Mr. Wilkie Bard has a capital burlesque skit on the "captain" who does not sail beyond Blackfriars Bridge. Mr. George Bastow, in his bucolic comic songs, has won fame far and wide; but he gets out of the beaten track with "The Galloping Major" and "Wire in." Another George—whose last name is Robey—has weighty responsibilities thrust upon him when the title of "Prime Minister of Mirth" is attached to his name. Mr. Robey, however, makes light of such responsibilities, and completely wins the ear of the house by his impersonation of "The Dresser," the humour of which has all those obvious qualities which make it a delight to the masses of music-hall frequenters who relish its mirth-inciting propensities. Miss Marie Lloyd queens it as a comedienne at the Tivoli as well as elsewhere, and is nightly adding to the number of her admirers by her singing of her latest number, "The custom of the country." Her other selections are older favourites, in which her success is still great and deserved. Mr. Tom Foy and company evoke roars of laughter with their favourite comedy act, The Yorkshire Lad in London; and nothing could be funnier than Harry Tate and company in the episode Fishing. The Anartos combine music and fun in their concoction The Morning Mail; Mr. Fred Russell, the humorist and ventriloquist, justifies both those titles in an entertainment that is excellently compiled and admirably worked; and other turns include Miss Edie King, vocalist and dancer; and Doody and Wright, Australian comiques.

SADLER'S WELLS.

Time has proved that Mr. Macnaghten's experiment with Sadler's Wells Theatre was a sound one, and every night sees crowded houses at each performance. There is always a good all-round programme. This week we have, among others, Joe Oliver, the singing coon. Mr. Oliver treats a sentimental theme in fitting fashion. His song, "I am longing for my old Kentucky home," is rendered in a way that at once commands the sympathy of the audience. A pretty feature of the programme is the picture songs of the Lynches. The coloured scenes thrown upon the sheet are both picturesque and sufficiently explanatory of the stories they tell. There are two series, one concerning the love affairs of Kate Kearney, and the other, "Lights of Home," gives us a taste of the briny. The singing of a young lady forms a delightful accompaniment to the pictures. Mr. Bert Bowden is indeed a quaint comedian. His principal ditty is "Tommy and I," in which he draws comparisons between two brothers. In the song Mr. Bowden appears as a droll schoolboy, and succeeds in bringing before us a ludicrous character. A gentleman who twists his body into all manner of shapes—and it would be well-nigh impossible to describe the various snake-like contortions his limbs assume—is Amiel, whose performances are of a somewhat surprising order, and seem to be much admired by the audience. The Bensley-Evans Sketch Company submit an exceedingly laughable trifle in Sally's Dilemma. The principal part—that of an absurd slavey—is a ridiculously comical figure in Miss Olive Lanty's hands. Miss Lanty excels in low comedy, and this Louie Freear kind of part is well-suited to her capabilities.

Martinet and Wallace, the coloured musical comedy artists, are makers of melody of a distinctly original turn of mind. Upon an instrument something like an inverted organ they touch a number of curiously-shapen keys, and we get an interpretation of "The old Kentucky home." Another melody is produced through the agency of what look like flowers and flower-pots; while the oboe and the cornet are also brought into requisition. In addition to their musical accomplishments, Martinet and Wallace are smart patterers. With a fine touch of humour in his facial expressions, Mr. Dave O'Toole treats the house to a few verses, sung in a swinging, lively manner, the chorus rhyming with the word "freezing." The adventures of a gay little party who went into various shops presumably to get out of the rain form the theme of his next number, and it provokes great merriment. Mr. O'Toole's lugubrious manner while singing this song is in itself something to laugh at. A couple of patterers whose rapid, discursive style scarce gives their hearers time to complete one laugh before they force another are Walker and Lane. Between them they have a fund of good stories, which are interpolated by witty sayings and apt repartee. In amusing fashion they propound jocular conundrums in the song, "That's the reason why," and as they themselves furnish the answers the conundrums are rendered still more diverting.

The Vaudeville Dramatic Company are responsible for the melodramatic element in the programme. The Bells of Vernavale is the playlet they are presenting, under the business and stage-management of Mr. Ernest Wingfield, and it has an undeniably interesting story. George Kendall, the foreman of the Vernavale Works, is the hero; while the villain is one Phillip Stafford, the son of the owner of the works. Phillip is not as scrupulous as he might be, and, after stealing some money and murdering his poor old father, he endeavours to incriminate Kendall. However, all ends well, and Kendall marries the beautiful heiress, Jessie Dane. Mr. Ernest Wingfield gives a most praiseworthy portrayal of the part of the hero, his style being manly and vigorous throughout. Mr. F. Fellows Bassett submits an effective character-study of an old man in the rôle of Edward Stanford; and Mr. Herbert Pearson makes himself distinctly obnoxious as the villainous Phillip Stafford. Miss Marguerite Trevosper is sweet and womanly as Jessie Dane, and the other parts are capably sustained. The concluding item in the evening's entertainment is a pictorial representation, by means of the Raymond Biotableaux, of certain episodes in the life of the notorious Charles Peace.

THE MIDDLESEX.

Mr. W. H. Sloan, the American comedian, who on Monday at the Middlesex made his début on the English music-hall stage, was last seen over here in The Belle of New York. In the American capital he has taken part in a great many Broadway Theatre successes, and all over the States he bears quite a name for musical comedy. The sketch he is this week introducing to London audiences is called The Plumber, and it may at once be said that at its première the playlet gained success. The story may be given briefly. An Anglo-German plumber is called to attend to a leaking pipe in a residence. The mistress of the house had at the same time sent out for a dentist to cure a violent attack of toothache. Well, she mistakes the plumber for the dentist, and as the plumber sees all the making of a good joke, he permits the assumption to pass unchallenged. They have a game at poker, which doesn't prove so enjoyable to the man of lead as it ought to be, owing to a maidservant having placed a lighted stove under his chair. Of course, the real dentist turns up in time, and the plumber makes a hasty exit into another room, where he can attend to his repairing job. A loud explosion is heard—apparently he has lighted a match—and in another second he rushes back to the lady of the house looking very much the worse for the explosion. It would indeed be difficult to describe the absurd comicalities of Mr. Sloan in the part of the plumber, but it is sufficient for the moment to say that he has unquestionably taken the Middlesex patrons by storm with his laughable acting. Miss Florence Gerald and Miss Kitti Hamilton render him excellent assistance in the production.

In a pretty low-neck pink dress, the flounces of which are adorned by delicate yellow lace, the dainty Miss Rosie Lloyd comes before the footlights and imparts good advice to an interested gathering. "Never let the grass grow under your feet," says she, and no one will deny the wisdom of the injunction. Then she treats us to a charming lyric about one Nolah who, we are informed, is an Indian maid, and after that we watch with admiring eyes while Miss Lloyd engages in an exquisite rainbow dance. One wishes that there were more artists on the variety stage like Miss Lloyd, for it is a pleasure to meet with a lady whose turn is so refined, so clever, and which so deservedly reaps the reward of applause. Kloof and Ramsey are an entertaining comedy couple; Sados, who claims to be the world's youngest juggler,

THEATRICALS IN AUSTRALIA.

CHAT WITH MR. HARRY RICKARDS.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

"Things theatrical have been very prosperous in Australia for some time past," says Mr. Harry Rickards, who is now in London on his annual visit to this country on the look-out for artists to take to the Antipodes.

"Does that mean that you are able to offer long contracts?"

"No; don't let anyone be misled on that point. At one time I used to be in a position to offer artists engagements lasting for twenty-four weeks. Now I cannot give them more than twelve or fourteen, and sixteen weeks is an outside limit. You see, the Australian public demand frequent changes. Not so many years ago I could run a star performer for three months each in my Melbourne and Sydney theatres; now the drawing powers come to an end in four weeks in any one town. At the same time, even under this new order, our variety establishments are more patronised than ever. I am open to make a great number of engagements a good way ahead. I haven't many vacancies for this year and next, but I am prepared to negotiate more fully for 1908."

"Then I suppose the fact that you have to send out every year an increasing number of turns spells additional expense to you in the way of travelling expenses?"

"During the last twelve months I have paid over £8,000 in passage fares alone to the P. and O. and the San Francisco steamship companies, and now that I am compelled to give shorter engagements a larger sum than that mentioned will have to be spent in sea voyages. At each of my four theatres—the Grand Opera House, Melbourne; the Tivoli, Sydney; the Tivoli, Adelaide, and the Theatre Royal, Perth—my expenses average about £600 per week."

MR HARRY RICKARDS.

"Is there one particular class of turn that the Australians most favour?"

"I don't think they have any special preferences. What they want is something new and startling in any line of business. We have been giving them so much of the best that they now demand stars. I remember at one time I could put one star on the programme and fill up with local people, but at the present moment they wouldn't tolerate such treatment. Competition out there is very keen. Every manager tries to do his utmost to furnish an up-to-date entertainment, and I venture to say that he Australian playgoer and music hall habitué get better value for their money than some of your British audiences. But, then, I have nothing to complain of. The country never was in such a prosperous state as it is now. Last Easter our business was absolutely unprecedented, and in four weeks I took more money in my theatre than I had taken before within a similar period. And, what is still more gratifying, there is every prospect of better business next year provided we get plenty of rain."

"Yet you contrive to do these things with a small population."

"Yes; but the country wants populating badly. We could do with a couple of million people in New South Wales and a couple of million in Victoria, let alone other parts. Mind you, they don't want paupers there, they want people to go on the land who intend working, and who can bring a little money with them. My opinion is that there are fortunes to be made by farmers and others. The agricultural, as well as the gold-mining prospects, are unlimited. As to the Australians themselves, I can only tell you that I have spent a good many years of my life in the colony, and have never found a straighter and more honest set of people in my life. And the farmers and men who come from up country are splendid specimens of manhood."

"For the last seven months," continues Mr. Rickards, "things have been very brisk with me. Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco, whom I took out, proved an immense success, both artistically and financially. I played them right through Australia, and extended their engagement into New Zealand. I am now running variety shows at my Melbourne, Sydney, and Perth theatres; while, in regard to the Tivoli, Adelaide, Mr. Walter Sanford's American company have been playing there for the past four months to enormous business in melodrama, and from what I can see it is likely to go on indefinitely. Mr. Sanford puts his pieces on in first-class manner, and has got together a capable company of American and Australian artists. He has had the longest season that has been known there for years, and as he has a very big repertoire, he can change frequently."

Mr. Rickards, who will remain in this country, along with his wife and younger daughter, some three months, has already engaged one of our West End attractions, the Motor Girl, to go to Australia.

When the steamship Macedonia sails for Australia on Friday next, it will convey Mr. Rickards' first contingent of artists, including Mr. Alf. Chester and the Two Cabias, the clever dancers who were at the Palace Theatre a little while ago. Between now and the end of September many other people engaged by Mr. Rickards will sail, among others being the Oxford and Cambridge Girls, Mr. Harry Bedford, Mr. Harry Tate's company with all his repertoire of sketches, Mr. Larry Lewis, Miss Violet Stockelle, Duncan and Godfrey, and the Alaskas.

Mr. Joseph Larkin, who has been associated with Mr. Rickards for the past fourteen years, and who for some time past has acted as his private secretary, is also in London, busily assisting his chief to arrange matters.

MR. CHARLES DIXTON will present on Monday a new comic act, entitled Uncle Obadiah, at the Royal Standard, Pimlico.

gives a praiseworthy exhibition of his talents; and Billy French shows himself to be in wonderfully good form with his humorous songs and smart dances. Mr. Jack and Miss May Mackenzie offer a few minutes' hearty diversion with their duologue, Married for Money; and the Clarion Trio are comedy artists and dancers of no small merit. The Wilfords cause one to marvel at their really herculean equilibristic acts; and Tray and Rich provide the wherewithal, and plenty of it, for the making of merriment with their patter.

It would be difficult to decide whether Messrs. Alexandre and Hughes excelled more with their musical accomplishments than with their comedy patter, for both are first-rate. We have a fine performance of "The Holy City" on the concertina, and an imitation of the bagpipes on the same instrument. But while their efforts in this line are most effective, not less so is the humour of their duologue, which further has the merit of being perfectly "clean." Miss Gwennie Hasto gives evidence of versatility in her songs, "When the leaves begin to fall," and "Never introduce your bloke to your lady friend." In the second number she appears as a coster "lydy," and her mannerisms and dialect are very characteristic. Miss Alice Maple, attired in what our fair friends would call a dream of a pink dress, sings in her sweet and engaging way about a schoolgirl who gives patriotic definitions of the meanings of certain letters. Her second song is "I love a lily," which is equally well rendered. Iee and Kingston have a mirth-creating act in Practical Joking; and the New Bioscope introduces a remarkably clear series of pictures, giving views of different parts of the world, and entitled "The Detective's Tour Round the World in Eighty Days." Mr. Fred G. Brooke and his able company are seen in the sensational episode, The Secret Spy, with which we dealt fully a week or two ago. The sketch has proved greatly to the liking of the Drury-lane folk.

ROYAL ALBERT.

Mr. Walter Leaver, the popular chairman of the Royal Albert Music Hall, Canning Town, is this week presiding over a goodly array of talent, the quantity, quality, and variety of which is really wonderful value for the money paid for admission. There is Mr. Harry Royde, whose eccentric comedy tickles one's fancy immensely. He has quite an entertaining manner, and of his three songs, that entitled "Don't move" seems to find most favour with the audience. Miss Josie Watson is an engaging artist, who sings her verses in the liveliest way imaginable. Her principal numbers are "What can a man do?" "Every night," and "My dearest girl," upon each of which is bestowed a full meed of appreciation. Mr. Harry Roxbury and company simply compel one to laugh at the absurd doings of the characters in their "musical mélange," The Prince of Monte Carlo. Mr. Roxbury in the title-rôle is an uproariously merry fellow. He is funny to a degree, both as the none too smart detective and also when he assumes to be a Royal personage. What with sprightly dances, light music, and songs, The Prince of Monte Carlo is an evening's "show" in itself. It should be mentioned that the lyrics and music are the work of Mr. Paul Knox, who shares the honours of authorship of the "book" with Mr. Harry Roxbury. All the members of the company work well in unison, with the result that we get an admirable tout ensemble. The chorus, "A man, a beard, and a spoon," proves a distinct hit in the little piece.

Mr. Harry Village is one of those born comedians who can express a whimsical thought by a movement of the face. He is, indeed, jolly good company while he occupies the stage, and we have no doubt that he is jolly good company off the stage. His songs, "You don't want to go too near him," "Oh, Fatanah," and "Ding, dong," are hugely enjoyed by those whose luck it is to hear Mr. Village sing. No manager need be in want of amusing patterers and smart dancers while he can obtain the services of Ferris and Farnley, who certainly contribute no small measure of pleasure to the evening's entertainment. Miss Rose Harvey appears in an agreeable petite scena, Black and White, in the presentation of which she is assisted by the Misses Harvey, Parkinson, and Somers. Two of the ladies are attired and made up as black coons—sweethearts, by the way—while the other two may be said to be the white counterparts. They sing and dance in most enchanting style, their different verses about "Little yellow coon," "Dinah," and "The stars are shining" being particularly popular with the gallery. As an extra turn we have Mr. Charles Dalton, who brings out a lot of eccentric notions, and whose song, "She's lost her ticket," finds great favour with the audience. There is a clever contortionist in Knoto, who hails from the Continent. Knoto is seen and admired in a number of interesting feats, the majority of which are gracefully and neatly performed.

Mr. Godfrey Maynard and Miss Magua France have an extremely diverting skit in A Perfect Lady, which provides merriment of the uproarious order. The doings and sayings of the characters in this sketch are exceedingly comical, and the parts are played with great spirit and zest. The Sisters Albert are old favourites in Canning Town, and their appearances are always looked forward to. This week it has been an immense treat to hear them singing such songs as "Snowflakes," "Bungalow for two," and "Come back to Borneo." As popular vocalists, the talented sisters hold a high position on the music-hall stage. Mr. Monte Bayley and company offer a sensational "episode" in The Doctor. A medical man is called to render assistance to a gentleman who has been seriously injured in a motor-car accident. The doctor recognises in his patient a person who had once done him an injury. Shall he allow his personal feelings to override his professional duty? He decides to do nothing of the kind, and his honourable conduct is pathetically recognised by the patient. The playlet is well acted by the three people who take part in it. Mr. Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope, as usual, brings to our notice some excellent pictures.

THE SURREY.

In spite of the tropical heat of the past few days there has been no falling off in the attendance here, and the programme, as usual, is remarkable for its length and excellence. Of the thirteen items on the programme six are sketches, distinction being gained by the Shakespearean episode by Mr. Albert Wyndham and company in Richard III.; or, the Battle of Bosworth Field. All the tragic incidents of the murder of King Henry VI. and the Battle of Bosworth Fields, with the combat between Richmond and the hunchback King are reproduced. Mr. Albert Wyndham in the title-rôle acts well, and speaks with a clearness and emphasis that give the lines their proper value. In the dual part of Henry VI. and Richmond, Mr. Charles Whitley essays both characters with sincerity and power, and well merited the warm applause bestowed. Miss Amy Hollom imbues the part of Lady Anne with a right appreciation of the character, her denunciation of the murderer of her husband completely holding her audience. Other characters are well filled by Miss F. Pateman as the attendant, Mr. Thomas Gilby as Tressel, and Mr. L. Deveridge as Catesby.

In direct contrast to the above is the farcical and musical absurdity, Muggins, V.C., energetically played by the Musical Vaudeville Sketch Company. The story is of the flimsiest character, but it serves as a vehicle for a series of songs, dances, and screamingly funny situations, by the clever and hard-working company, under the direction of Mr. Fred Lawrence, who is responsible for the title-rôle. Mr. Lawrence is very funny, and is the life and soul of this miniature musical comedy. As Priscilla, Miss Marie Brian is the very embodiment of a humble born hoyden, and is full of high spirits and tricky devices, while her rendering of "The rage of society" proves her to be the possessor of a capital voice. Miss Edith Harmer acts the part of Lady Clementina with vivacity, and has a pretty number in "Make hay while the sun shines." Mr. C. Herbert Summers as her lover, Captain Slashington, is decidedly good, and his song "The girl with the changeable eyes," in which he receives invaluable assistance from the chorus, makes a decided hit. Mr. Frank Ellis as the waiter Tibbs, with a sneeze in his voice, is decidedly funny; and Mr. Horace Selby as the irascible Colonel Pepper Potts, acts fully up to his name. A word of praise is due to the twelve "Black and White Girls," who not only do full justice as the tuneful chorus, but dance a fandango with much grace and energy. After the Races is a comedy act of the Box and Cox order, and Miss Madge Morley as the wife who has come to the races without the consent of her husband, carries the performance along to success. Unreserved praise must also be given to her confrères for their finished portrayal of the lady's husband, who has also come to the races without consulting his wife, and the excellent character-study of a Yorkshire landlady.

The Guyons appear in a powerful dramatic episode, entitled His One Great Sin, which contains much wholesome sentiment. Both the senior members of the trio give interesting performances, and the juvenile, who eventually gets her father to "sign the pledge" is deserving of praise for her pretty acting and dancing. Mr. Gus Harris's song-scena, The Synagogue, is brought fully up to date by reference to the recent massacre of Jews in Russia. Mr. Harris's vocal efforts win him hearty applause. The Society Quartette gain favour with their clever singing and untiring clog, big boot, and cake-walk dances. Arthur Kenny gives a daring and sensational trick cycle act, his exhibition, one of rare skill and judgment, being awarded loud applause. Will Farrell gives point and expression to his humorous song, "It's had a bit of wear and tear." G. H. Keith, in his comic ditty, "When you're in love," enlarges on the silly things youthful lovers do, and is well received; and Raymond's Tableaux creat much amusement and esnjoyment with pictures depicting "The Troubles of a Fireman; or, the Mistaken Laundry." The Bensons' vocal comedy act, The Page and the Maid, teems with smart comedy. The song, "There's my Molly," addressed to the lady in a private box, is a bright and merry episode in their clever entertainment, and their dancing arouses great enthusiasm. Perfect order is maintained at the Surrey under the direction of Mr. Charles Craig, the courteous acting-manager.

BANDURRIAS.

One of the prettiest music halls in London is the Granville, and to the attractions of the house is almost invariably added that of an excellent company. That appearing in the past week was particularly strong. The Bandurrias, on a return visit, brought with them a pot-pourri of music that gave unqualified delight to all worshippers at Euterpe's shrine. These clever instrumentalists put as much life and vigour into a comic song or march as they do tenderness and feeling into their rendering of more ambitious selections.—Lloyd's Weekly News, June 24, 1906.

WELSH SHOWMEN IN COUNCIL.

The annual gathering of the show fraternity in Wales took place at Porth Fair on Sunday last, and both in attendance of members of the Guild and its friends, and in the interest and enthusiasm the meeting provoked, maintained the high record of the Principality in the support of the common interests of the showman world. A very pleasing feature of the annual meeting in Wales is the Church service provided by the local clergy and the choir of the parish of Porth.

The hon. organising chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne, and the hon. local chaplains, the Rev. G. Francis and the Rev. — Williams, officiated, the preacher being the Rev. G. Francis, who delivered an able address on "The Lord's Prayer." The lesson was read by the Rev. T. Horne, and the Rev. — Williams intoned the service, the choir assisting in that marvellous wealth of sacred song for which Wales is world famous.

At the close of the service the hon. organising chaplain, in the name of the show people, thanked the local clergy and the choir, for coming amongst them and giving them the opportunity once more of fellowship in the things of God. He felt sure that the show people valued this act of united and common prayer. He, therefore, in their name, again most heartily thanked the clergy and the choir of Porth for coming amongst them in Christian fellowship of praise and prayer.

The Rev. G. Francis in reply said that both his colleague in the ministry and the choir readily responded to the request of the show people, and rejoiced that so signal an opportunity was given them of bringing the message of God and the worship of the Church to the people of the fair ground. The beautiful show booth in which the service was held—Wadbrook's Electrograph (proprietor Mr. H. Scard)—made a most suitable temporary church. The clergy occupied the raised platform before the stage, the choir occupied the three front rows of stalls, the organist had the use of the piano in the orchestra, and the congregation filled the auditorium.

Immediately after the departure of the clergy and choir the meeting of the Guild begun. Mr. Vice-President, Henry Studt, presided, supported by Mr. Vice-President John Studt, and Messrs. R. Dooner, S. Plinston, and J. B. Butlin, members of the committee.

The chairman said that, despite the fact, well known to all, that he had only just left a sick bed, and was physically unequal to the work of the position of honour to which they had again elected him, he responded with a ready mind and will to their manifest desire that he should preside over their meeting. He responded at once to the call of duty. Their reverend friend and adviser, Mr. Horne, would doubtless again, as in former years, lay before them the story of the Guild's work during the past year. He, for his part, could only say that the Guild had his hearty approval and support. He was proud to preside over a gathering of Welsh showmen to plead the cause of so good and useful a society as the Showmen's Guild. They in Wales had been able to practically look after their business interests without any call upon the general body of showmen for protection or defence. This had not been so with their brethren in England. There showmen had had to fight a vigilant and constant throng of enemies. The Welsh showmen had recognised that their duty was to stand by their persecuted brethren in England, and to send what material assistance they could to the work of common defence.

He trusted that, as in the past, so now, Wales would respond generously to the appeal for funds that the hon. chaplain would make in the address he now called upon him to deliver.

The Rev. T. Horne was received with a warm Welsh greeting, and after a tribute of appreciation to the chairman, and hearty congratulations from his English confrères on the happy evidences of recovery from his late serious illness, proceeded to lay before his deeply-interested hearers the report of the Guild's work in 1905-6. Taking the two Sessions of Parliament—the last of the late Government and the first of the present Ministry—the speaker showed over one hundred Corporations and public bodies had sought for additional powers in Private Acts of Parliament, and it was entirely owing to the vigilance of the Guild that not one of these Acts of Parliament contained clauses against the show business. When they were introduced, some twenty or more did contain such penal clauses, but by the persistent energy of the Guild's expert agents, and the work of its executive officials, not a single Bill in 1905, or in the present Session of 1906, passed into law with injurious enactments against their business. When they began their Parliamentary defence work in the year 1898, nearly every Corporation Bill introduced into Parliament contained clauses that gave Corporations power to prohibit or to penalise their business. By their peristent opposition to every proposal of this kind they had at last shown Corporations that the showmen were a determined and an organised body of traders, and that they would in every case, and at all costs, defend their trade and avocation in life. But, it must be borne in mind, that to produce this impression on the mind of public bodies meant constant work and also considerable expense.

Since 1898, year by year, the number of corporations seeking additional powers to penalise them in their business had been decreasing; but every Session of Parliament they had to fight a number of Bills, and in every instance with signal success. In the present year, although the corporations of Wallasey and Pontefract had given them considerable trouble and anxiety they had arrived at an agreement with both these public bodies, without meeting them in the Private Bills Committe Room at the House of Commons. The agreement in both cases meant the withdrawal from the Bill of the obnoxious clauses penalising the show business. These agreements, by mutual conference between Parliamentary solicitors and agents, minimise very largely the inevitable costly legal expenses, and every effort was made to bring these agreements about. There was, however, one great working truth in these matters that must never be forgotten—they could only negotiate peacefully with these mistaken foes. After they had shown their ability and readiness to defeat them at all possible cost at the House of Commons. With the powerful County Council of Middlesex governing the greater portion of suburban London, they had to persist until the very day of considering the Bill by Parliament. It was only when they had fully prepared their case, briefed their Parliamentary counsel, and summoned their array of witnesses, that they were able to convince the powerful corporation that we meant business, and that, powerful as they were, they could not bluff the showmen of England. Negotiations at the last moment were opened up, and the result was satisfactory in the highest degree, the County Council agreeing to embody a new clause to the effect that the powers they sought by their Bill to obtain "should not apply to any showman, roundabout proprietor, or stallholder using vans or tents for their business."

This, he ventured to declare, marked a distinct and notable step to all engaged in the show business—the recognition in an Act of Parliament for the first time of the fact, that all previous legislation had failed to define, that the travelling showman is not of necessity a gipsy. Again and again legislation obtained to prevent the danger to public health by the unsanitary squatting down in suburban places of gipsy vans and tents had been used to prevent show-people carrying on their legitimate business. Well, without saying a word against the poor gipsy, he congratulated them on the fact that at last it was recognised, and set out in an Act of Parliament, that show-vans and show-booths were not, for the necessities of public health, to be classed as gipsy vans or tents. The general work of the Guild (an ever-increasing quantity), concerned in championing their interests, and defending them against misrepresentation in the public Press, or by the busybodies and fanatics who fail to see any good in the showman's life and work—that work in which he was constantly engaged, assisted by an ever-growing number of fellow-workers throughout the Empire, had prospered. He, therefore, confidently asked the Welsh members to renew their annual subscriptions, and thus to show their solidarity with their brethren of the road—east, west, north, and south.

At the conclusion of Mr. Horne's address, Messrs. R. Dooner and Slocombe were kept busy enrolling members, the following being the very gratifying result :—

WELSH MIDSUMMER FAIRS.

The development of the Welsh coal industry completely revolutionised the country. From being a purely pastoral land—the habitat of an intensely land-loving race—Wales has become, within a very few years, the greatest coal exporting country in the world. The opening up of the Rhondda, the Taff Vale, and the Ebbw Vale district, and the settlement of half-a-million busy workers at the face of the coal has created a new Wales; not the Wales of song and fable, but Wales of the pick and spade.

Cotemporary with the growth of the steamcoal trade has been the march of the iron horse. Besides the great trunk lines—the G.W.R. and the L. and N.W.—there are local railways of great importance, like the Taff Vale, the Rhymney, the Cambrian, and the Barry Railways, all of them serving vast coalfields and acting as feeders to the main lines. The London and North-Western, in conjunction with the Great Western, runs through the heart of Wales. From Swansea to Hereford, the G.W.R.; from Swansea to Gloucester, and again from Swansea to Bristol.

With the industrial revolution there has, of course, been the growth and adaptation of fairs to the changed conditions of the life of the people. Instead of a series of old-time hiring fairs, or local pleasure fairs, we have now a well-ordered round of fairs, principally under the energetic management of Messrs. Henry and John Studt, the universally respected caterers and providers of open-air amusements in the Principality. True it is of all the world that the showman follows the people—this is eminently so of Wales. The greater number of fairs in the Principality are new, because the centres where they are held are new. It is not a parish festival or old Charter Fair that fixes the date, but the proximity of coal pits. The rise of a new town necessitated a new fair, and one important element in the phenomenal business success of the Studts is the fact that they were on the spot and saw the vast possibilities of show and fair-ground enterprise, and seeing its possibilities had the sound business ability to rise to the occasion.

The Rhondda Valley is a typical example of this growth of fairs in the local districts. Beginning the week after Whitsun at Treorchy, a great centre of colliery life, moving on to Porth, Ton-y-Pandy and Ferndale, the great valley of the Rhondda has a moving panorama of showland; the same wonderful delights of joyance, pleasure, and marvel moves from place to place, and the advent of the show is the one and only arbiter that fixes the time of the fair and the local holiday.

We visited Treorchy, where we found that, owing to the fact that the fair this year did not coincide with the big pay-day at the colleries, the wise showmen determined to wait another week, until the people had money in their hands to play with. This excellent business resolve was rewarded by the expected returns, and a big Saturday was the result.

The lessee of the ground, Mr. John Studt, exhibited his fine new machine, the International Motor-car Races, but owing to the limited space at his command, the other novelties under his management were not displayed. The principal shows were those of Messrs. Dooner and Son, H. Scord, Mrs. Baker and son, Sidney Braham, Prince Samonda, Carl White, Taylor and Scarrott. The providers of varieties—shooting and fairground novelties—were, amongst others, Messrs. Fossett, Freeman, Jones, Whisper, Davies, North, Chadwick, and the brothers Butlin.

The spacious and admirably arranged Fair-ground at Porth displayed to the best advantage the machines, exhibitions, side-shows, and varieties now in the Rhondda Valley for its cycle of Midsummer Fairs. Here Mr. Henry Studt joined forces with John Studt, and the superb electrical motor-car sets of the Studts were seen at their best. H. Studt and Son's machine, and John Studt's two sets—the motor-car race and the zoological roundabout. With these were the famous big wheel of Messrs. Plinston Brothers, and the juvenile and gem pony sets—three in number; of Messrs. Butlin Brothers and John North, Mrs. Baker's Metropolitan circus, and J. Scarrolt's athletes and school of boxers were located near the main entrance; and variety and throwing games lined the right-hand side of the avenue leading up to the colossal concerns—Wadbrook's electric cinematograph and Dooner and Son's bioscope of passing events, both facing down the fair; at this end was also Taylor's fistiana booth and British assault-at-arms. Making our way back again to the chief entrance, we found on the left-hand side of the ground that monarch of the modern side-show, Prince Samonda, the esoteric mystic and exponent of occult magic, Prof. Carl White, in his temple of mirth, magic, and mystery, and that delightful exhibition of trained birds of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Braham, one of the most unique shows on the road. Here, too, were the shooting ranges, bottle batteries, throwing and other games of Messrs. Fossett, North, Winsper, Hinder, Davies, Jones, Chadwick, Butlins, and the photo booths of Messrs. Fossett and Turner. Intensely modern as these fairs in the Rhondda are, there is one feature about them that links them with the olden time, and that is the long row of flannel stalls—the native industry of flannel-weaving was in its last throes of existence when it occurred to Mr. Henry Studt that if the small flannel weaver would travel the fairs and use the fair as a market for her goods the flannel industry might be saved. This was done, and now at most Welsh Fairs we have a curious revival. The Welsh flannel is traded, and extensively bought by the people, thus has the showman helped to save a native industry.

We are sorry to chronicle a somewhat serious accident to Mrs. Taylor, wife of Prof. Taylor, of the boxing booth. Mrs. Taylor was mounting a public conveyance at the entrance to the Fair-ground at Treorchy with the intention of visiting the lower portion of the town, when a cyclist, owing to the congestion of the traffic, lost command of his machine, which collided with the back of the carriage as Mrs. Taylor was in the act of mounting it. The result being that the handle-bar of the bicycle inflicted terrible injury upon her. So serious is the nature of the injury that Mrs. Taylor is now under surgical treatment.

The interesting old town of Llantwit Major, in the Vale of Glamorgan, gave us a glimpse of the old-time Welsh Fair. Here we were in a smiling pastoral land. No coal-pit or slate quarry within sight. A picture place with its dear old church and narrow, crooked streets. The fair only lasts a night or two; little business is done in the day-time. "Away from the coal away from the money" is true of Wales as far as the showman is concerned.

Here we found Danter's aggregation of fair-ground novelties—the four abreast ponies, ostriches and cockerells, throwing games, park swings, cokers, and dart-boards. Stockton's up-to-date peepshow, Mrs. Oxford's shooting ranges, and other varieties.

Just a few miles from Cardiff (the Liverpool of Wales) we have that Welsh "New Brighton"—Penarth, or Cardliff-by-the-Sea. Here, upon its breezy beach, fine promenade, and splendid pier we see another side of Welsh life, the busy city man and wife and family at the sea. The al fresco entertainments on the pier are provided by Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Mills. The open-air fit-up at the Pier-head is one of the best we have seen, and we heartily congratulate "the Royal Court entertainer" on the success of their show. In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Mills, both of them admirable variety artists, the company includes Mr. Arthur Ferriss, comedian; Mr. Caffyn Baxter, pianist; Mr. Charles Ellis, eccentric comedian; Miss E. Ferriss, comedienne; Miss M. Lawrence, comedienne; and Mr. W. Cameron, tenor. The programme included some of the most popular songs and concerted pieces of the day, and gave vast delight to their audience.

FROM the Birmingham round we have news of Sparkbrook Fair. Here the shows were Farrell's coliseum of varieties and animated photography, Cooper's freak show and novelty booth, and E. Johnson's ground booth; John Collins had three machines on the ground; the gondolas and motors, switchback, gallopers, steam yachts, and big boats; the steam horses were by S. Mercer, and the swings by J. Montgomery. Emma sheets, cokers, and throwing games by Mercer, Deeks, Johnson, and Montgomery; stalls by C. Blick, Mercer, Deeks, Johnson, Montgomery, Cooper, Latham, and Blood.

SOUTHWOLD FAIR was well maintained by Barker's cinématograph theatre, Stocks' steam circus, park swings, shooting concerns, cokers, and varieties; Messrs. Stocks, Prestney, R. Keeble, Abbott, and F. Keeble.

MAIDSTONE summer fair was entirely provided as regards show novelties by Mr. T. Pettigrove, who exhibited fine art show, switchback, swings, shooting concern, Emmas, cokers, and variety stalls.

FROM Lancashire we have news of that excellent wake in the Rossendale district—Rawtenstall. At the head of the show list was Col. Clark's electric coliseum and cinematograph; and with him, in close association, were that veteran showman James Norman with living picture exhibition, W. Shaw with fine art gallery, Haydon's mystics and second sight experts, and Blakey's novelty booth The machine list included Mitchell's motor cars, Geoghegan's steam horses, T. Holden's steam yachts, and Mrs. Holden's flying ostriches. The park swings and high fliers were by Messrs. Holland, Slater, Shuttleworth, and Sharpe; the shooting concerns were those of Messrs. Williams, Humphrey, Sharpe, and Royle. The other fair-ground caterers, stall-holders, &c., were Messrs. Horton, Slater, Jennings, Shorrocks, Hindle, Lorenzo, Ingham, Gall, Freer, Edwards, and Smith.

WANTED, July 23, between Manchester and Newcastle, Aug. 20, Sept. 3, onward. The visit of Dickie Clare's company to the Grand Theatre in the new musical farcical absurdity, "Lucky Liza," was last night a very great attraction, and is likely to continue to be throughout the show week. It was written by Mr. Fred Locke, the well-known pantomime writer, and author of "A Trip to the Highlands," and is brimful of music, singing, and dancing. The company is under the proprietorship of Mr. Dickie Clare, who himself heads the list of comedians and actors who have the play in hand. "Lucky Liza" is one of the funniest of pieces, and evoked merry laughter. It deals with the love-making of two young couples, including Lucky Liza, who is a lady's maid. She has been promised marriage by a gardener at the next villa. He refused to fulfil his promise. The audience is kept in a continuous roar of laughter from start to finish.—Derby Express, June 26. Refer T. Allen Edwards, Esq. Xmas and New Year's Week Vacant for this funny musical show, which is funnier than any pantomime. DICKIE CLARE, Grand Theatre, Blackpool.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking engagements, or turns not re-booked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

THE RIVAL BROTHERS.

Code Word, "BROCHAGE."

Two sons are receiving their aged father's blessing on his deathbed, and swear to stand by each other. Unfortunately a woman intervenes, whom both fall in love with. She cares for one only. The other's jealousy gets greater and greater, until finally he strikes his brother. A final reconciliation takes place over the father's grave—a beautiful story, amid lovely surroundings.

The detail and quality are superb. About 480ft. The Subject, £12.

THE DOG SMUGGLERS.

Code Word, "BROCHANT."

This is an absolutely unique film, in which a fine human interest is also depicted; but mainly the perfect training of the dogs is shown. The smugglers have trained dogs to carry lace and other commodities over the frontier to their friends on the other side. Two of the smugglers are in love with the same woman, one of whom is refused, and in revenge tells the police of the dog smugglers, and sets them on the track of the dogs themselves. Here ensues a wonderful chase of the dogs over steep hills, mountains, rivers, and railway lines, and finally the dogs arrive at the border quite safely. If a dog drops his booty by any chance there is always another one to pick it up. Finally there is a grand fight between the smugglers and police.

Very dramatic. Intensely exciting. About 610ft. The Subject, £15 5s

HONOUR IS SATISFIED.

Code Word, "BRASSEUR."

The furtive passing of a letter in a restaurant between a gentleman and lady causes the companion of the lady to get angry and arrange a duel. Pistols are chosen. The seconds get killed by accident; the rest are disabled. The two principals then using foils again accidentally kill the police who come to stop the duel. They decide to fly; honour is satisfied.

A very amusing and droll picture. About 214ft. The Subject, £5 7s.

Code Word, "BRODER."

A series of romantic letters passing between different people are treated in a very novel way by the people themselves stepping out of the envelopes and telling the story themselves.

Extremely quaint and original. About 345ft. The Subject, £8 12s. 6d.

HOLIDAYS.

Code Word, "BRIDE."

A most delightful film, depicting the holiday adventures of three little children sent to the country by their father to a brother farmer. Beer taps are turned on, fowls, geese, &c., are set loose and chased, donkeys ridden, cows milked in the most mischievous way. In desperation the farmer writes to his brother to take the children home, which he does, much to the chagrin of the young imps.

The quality, as usual, is perfect. About 560ft. The Subject, £14.

THE TROUBLESOME FLEA.

Code Word, "BROCATELLE."

At an evening reception one of the guests is attacked by this unpleasant little insect, and out of sheer annoyance removes his nether garments in an adjoining room. Unfortunately they fall out of the window. The other guests, bursting into the room, finding him in this dilemma, chase him into the street. He runs full tilt into a policeman, who likewise gives chase—into the country—up a tree—when the guest removes the policeman's trousers and tries to don them instead—finally coming a cropper in an outhouse.

Exceptionally clear, fine detail, and very amusing. About 328ft. The Subject, £8 4s.

THE RAJAH'S CASKET.

Code Word, "BREVETER."

The Rajah's Casket is very closely guarded, but a wizard manages to disappear with it. The Rajah summonses another wizard, who, after showing a vision of the casket being taken through the air on the back of a dragon, leads the Rajah through the country and over the mountains to a cave where it has been carried. The Rajah here witnesses a series of beautiful scenes, the stalactites being transformed into gorgeously-dressed women who dance before him, and while they are dancing many beautiful changes are made in the colours of their dresses. The Rajah is so pleased at the recovery of the casket that he presents each of the dancers with a string of pearls.

About 560ft. The Subject, £14. Colouring extra, net £5 10s.

A DETECTIVE'S TOUR ROUND THE WORLD.

Code Word, "BRIMER."

The flight in disguise. The detective just misses the train. At the Suez Canal. Scenes on the banks. A narrow escape. Bankrupt drugs the detective's drink. False arrest of the detective. A festival in Calcutta. Brilliant procession of elephants, &c. Bombay Pagoda. Close pursuit and another narrow escape on horseback. Chased on an elephant. In an opium-smoker's den. Visions of the bankrupt and his pursuer. In Yokohama. Missed by a hair's breadth. Flight to America. The detective is foiled again through getting mixed up with a procession of citizens advocating the election of President Roosevelt. The detective is captured by redskins, bound to a tree, and badly wounded. Rescue by the bankrupt. Pursuer and pursued are now close friends.—The bankrupt saves the detective's life, and the latter tears up his warrant. Leaving New York. A friend in need. An unexpected partnership.

About 1,150ft. The Subject, £28 15s. Colouring extra, net, £3.

We have now ready for delivery a large number of really first-class Films, both dramatic and comic, amongst which are the following:

No. 1718.

A PRIEST'S CONSCIENCE.

A theme which has not been dealt with before on the cinematograph. A priest is accused of a murder, after having shriven the wife of the actual criminal; and although all the circumstances in connection with the crime, he prefers to die rather than break the vow of the Holy Church. The denunciation of the murderer is dramatic in the extreme, and the picture is one which holds the audience spellbound from start to finish. Length 480ft.

No. 480. The Greatest Topical Skit of the Day.

ATTEMPTS TO SERVE A WRIT ON A DIRECTOR OF THE CHICAGO TINNED MEAT TRUST.

The Burning Question of the Day, "Shall We Eat Tinned Meat?" has its amusing side. The audience will join heartily in the chase for the Director, and will be delighted at the hard knocks which he gets, and deserves. Length 620ft.

No. 1722.

THE PENALTY OF FAME; or, The Interviewer's Victim.

The Plague of the Press. The Troubles of an over-popular Parliamentary Candidate. Length 235ft.

NOT DETAINED AT THE OFFICE.

The punishment of an erring hubby and the satisfaction of the missus and her rival. A spirited encounter and disrobing act. Length 160ft.

No. 462.

PLAYMATES.

A Delightful Animal Study, showing a puppy and kitten frolicking.

THE CORONATION OF THE KING AND QUEEN OF NORWAY.

A Magnificent Picture, showing all the interesting events. Capital Portraits of the King and Queen, and young Prince Olaf; also all the foreign princes. After the Coronation the King and Queen are seen plainly in their state coach, wearing their Crowns.

The films reached London on Monday, mid-day, and were exhibited at several halls same evening. Length 340ft. Price £8 10s.

No. 1723.

THE ENCHANTED WINE.

Splendid Mystical and Spectacular Comic Subject.

460ft.

THE SERENADE.

The adventures of a present day love-lorn youth, who has a very hot time in steering clear of the irate father of his adored one. A happy ending to a story, full of fun and frolic. Length 400ft.

NEW NORWOOD FILM.

THE CHASER CHASED.

The Wrong Man Every Time. A really brilliant conception, and sure to be a great success. Length 285ft.

No. 1071.

THE PIRATE SHIP.

This is a very realistic picture of an old time piratical venture, which so often occurred in the good old days of "wooden walls." At a very isolated but picturesque spot on the coast are three or four smugglers in deep conversation, the result of which is soon seen. A young and pretty maiden sitting in a very artistic room, at her spinning wheel, is rudely interrupted by the sudden entrance of a pirate, who commands her to go with him. As soon as he attempts to lay hands on her the plucky girl shows fight. The noise brings her father on the scene, and he closes with the enemy, who, however, soon overpowers and kills the old man. The girl in desperation snatches the pistol from the hands of the assailant and points it at his head, gradually backing towards the window. Her triumph is of short duration, as another desperado opening the lattice window seizes her hand and obtains possession of the weapon. The men now easily carry off their victim, and take her down to the coast, where a small boat has been left. They put her in, despite her struggles, and row out to sea. Upon coming to their ship they first of all get the prisoner aboard and then swarm up themselves.

The frantic maiden rushes about on deck seeking some loophole of safety, dodging all efforts of the crew to detain her. Brandishing an oar, she threatens any who endeavour to touch her, but the audience are simply amused by the vain and futile actions. The captain carries her off to his own cabin, having her put in irons, so that she is absolutely deprived of freedom. The poor fettered prisoner, worn out with her hard labours, abandons all hope and gives way to despairing grief. The officer is interrupted by one of his crew, who apparently requires his services on deck. As soon as the captain is once again alone with the captive he forcibly lifts her face, kisses it passionately, and leaves her.

Excitement is very pronounced, as evidently a ship is sighted coming on with all speed. The pirates immediately get ready to resist attack, and a splendid fight is shown. Our tars, with their usual bold methods, send a boarding party, who in the face of powder and shot clamber over the rail and get on board, where a fearful struggle for possession takes place. The law-breakers are overcome, and finally give way when they perceive their chief killed by the naval commander. Down below in the cabin the chained captive is listening intently to the noise and bustle, and her beautiful face is wreathed in smiles as she sees her little brother rush in. With quick, sharp strokes from his sword the girl is soon freed, and, going on deck, embraces her deliverer rapturously.
